SHIP PARTHIA BURNED AT SEA.

Captain, Chief Mate and Nineteen of Crew Missing.

WAS AN AMERICAN VESSEL.

Some of the Crew Landed at Valparaiso, Chili, in One of the Ship's Boats.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—A dispatch to Lloyds from Valparaiso, Chili, announces that the American ship Parthia, Capt. Carter, from Liverpool, on June 25, for San Francisco with coal, was burned at sea on Oct. 1. The Parthia proved a total loss. Several of her crew landed at Valparaiso in one of the ship's boats, but the captain, chief mate and nineteen of the crew who left the wreck in boats are still missing.

The Parthia was built at Bath, Maine, in 1891. She was a double decked ship, registered at 2,371 tons, was 260 feet long, had 44 feet beam, and was 28 feet deep. She was owned by Houghton Brothers of Bath, Me.

SNUBBED BY CLEVELAND.

Supreme Court Judges Mortified at the President's Slight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—When the Supreme Court assembled for the October term the customary call of respect upon the President of the United States could not be made. President Cleveland was sailing in Mr. Benedict's yacht in profound indifference to the custom which demanded his presence at the White House.

Once before, in his first term, did Mr. Cleveland make it impossible for the Justices to call upon him, but that occasion was passed over as unintentional, although the members of the court were outraged

FOR A CHANGE OF VENUE.

Mr. Pulitzer's Attorneys File an Application Before Judge Wood.

After the Circuit Judges in general term had ruled that the Jones-Pulitzer injunction proceedings were pending in division No. 7 and that the hearing should be before Judge Wood, Judge Henry S. Priest sent notice to Messrs. Judson and Lewis, the legal representatives of the plaintiff, notifying them that an application for a change of venue would be filed and that the counsel for the defendants would appear before Judge Wood in support of it on Wednesday morning. He then filed with the clerk of Courtroom 6 the application for the change, together with the affidavit of the defendants, as to the grounds therefor. The application reads as follows:

"Now comes defendants, the Pulitzer Publishing Company, Samuel Williams, S. S. Carvalho and Florence D. White, and move the court to grant a change of venue in the above cause from this division to some other division of said court, where the causes herein alleged as the basis of this application do not exist; and for ground of this motion says:

"That the plaintiff herein, Charles H. Jones, has an undue influence over the Judge of this division of this court, and that said Charles H. Jones has a like undue influence over the Judge of Division No. 7 of this court, to-wit: Thomas A. Russell.

"These defendants further say that said Judge of said Division No. 7 sat in the audience during the hearing of the application for a temporary injunction on the side of said complainant and his attorneys, and has since taken an active part, as they are informed and believe, in complainant's behalf.

"These defendants further say that knowledge of the foregoing facts first came to them since the filing of the answers herein and the beginning of this term of this court."

The application was accompanied by the following affidavit:

"S. S. Carvalho, secretary of the Pulitzer Publishing Company, and for himself, Florence D. White and Samuel Williams, each make oath and say that the facts set forth in the foregoing application are true to the best of their knowledge and belief, and that they have just cause to believe that they cannot have a fair and impartial trial of said cause before this division of this court or Division No. 7 of this court, for the causes alleged in said application.

"S. S. CARVALHO.
"FLORENCE D. WHITE.
"SAM WILLIAMS."

These documents were duly filed and Judge Wood will probably pass on them Friday morning.

THE WEATHER.

Generally Clear, With Little Change in Temperature.

For St. Louis and vicinity—Generally clear weather, with little change in temperature Tuesday night and Wednesday.

For Illinois—Generally fair to-night and Wednesday; slight changes in temperature.

For Missouri—Fair to-night and Wednesday; slight changes in temperature.

The pressure is above the normal this morning except in the extreme North, which is covered with a low area. It is highest in the Middle Slope.

The temperatures have fallen from 2 to 18 degrees except in the Southeast and extreme Northwest.

There have been light showers in the Lake Region and Northwest, while fair weather has prevailed elsewhere.

Address to the St. Louis Advertisers.

Ordered by the Paper Carriers' Protective and Benevolent Association (organized July 15th, 1891), at a regular monthly meeting held August 15th, and approved at the meeting held September 19th, 1895.

To _____

Gentlemen:

The undersigned officers of the Paper Carriers' P. & B. Ass'n think that on account of the nature of your business you will welcome any information pertaining to the Circulation of the St. Louis English Daily Papers in the city. We believe also (absurd as it may seem at the first glance) that you have in some respect a common interest in the matter to which we would like to call your attention, and therefore respectfully ask you to peruse the following statements and to consider the concluding request.

There are existing at present in the City three kinds of News Paper Circulation.

The FREE DISTRIBUTION, the NEWSBOY and NEWS-STAND, and the CARRIER SYSTEM of CIRCULATION.

Our Business as Carriers gives us a good opportunity to see into the value of each and all of them.

OF THE LEAST VALUE

IS THE CIRCULATION BY FREE DISTRIBUTION, practised so extensively at present by the CHRONICLE and STAR-SAYINGS.

All over the city, even in the domain of the well to do Westenders, they have,—by holding out prospects of increased business,—induced Grocers, Bakers, Saloonists, etc., to buy at a nominal rate large lots of their sheets every day to be given away Free of Charge. Compared to the entire Circulation of these two Evening Papers, this Free distribution kind has grown to incredulous dimensions:

The WORTHLESSNESS of the Circulation obtained by this method is APPARENT when you consider that it is IMPOSSIBLE TO ASCERTAIN the NUMBER of PAPERS actually READ, OUT of the VAST QUANTITY DELIVERED TO these STOREKEEPERS.

The rate charged for these Papers is about the price of Wrapping Paper.

Therefore do Trades People,—that sell goods that have to be wrapped,—hold on to the scheme. Caring little if only one-fifth or less of their supply of these News Papers is used as first intended. Saloonists and others having no use for such coverings for their wares, again,—finding only an occasional demand for and consequently little help to their business in these papers,—soon discontinue.

But the agents for these publications quickly find in their places other shopkeepers also desiring to gain trade.

There is NO LIMIT to THIS SORT of CIRCULATION. Dazzling Figures of an increase can be procured and laid before the Advertizers in this manner. BUT by all their efforts in this direction the NUMBER of regular EVERY-DAY READERS of these Sheets will NOT perceptibly be INCREASED. It merely takes out of the ranks a good number of their Own and some of their Contemporaries Regular Readers and reduces them to stragglers.

As an illustration: paying the Carrier becomes inconvenient to a Subscriber. He resolves to take his daily news gratis at the Baker's. But alas! it requires an extra walk of one or more blocks to obtain a copy. The average man;- unless he is in want and looking for work,- will not go to so much exertion, (regularly every day) to save one cent the price of these papers. He is soon content to get one, only when his curiosity is especially aroused or the weather is fine and nothing else to do. NET RESULT; LOSS to the CARRIER.

By the way: we do not attempt to discuss the Value of different classes of News Paper Readers from the Advertisers standpoint. But we cannot refrain from stating that an Advertiser having Commodities to dispose of, cannot be much concerned in the readers referred to, as: 'being in want and looking for work.'

Small part News Paper, bigger part Wrapping Paper (hardly an Advertising Medium) considerable part Waste Paper, that's the Free Distribution Circulation.

That the Managers of the Chronicle and Star-Sayings make use of it, can only be explained by assuming that they rely on the Credulity or Liberality of the Advertisers. To pay for their Ads. in these Papers, at rates in accordance with the big Figures claimed for their Circulation, as a Whole. Rates that would be proper if the Circulation,—in a great part,—was not so problematical.

BETTER IS THE CIRCULATION BY NEWS STANDS AND NEWS-BOYS.

But it is subject to great Fluctuations. The respectable number of the average daily Sales and Readers, that may be claimed for it, are of little importance to an Advertisement when on the day it happens to be in print, the Sales decrease eighty per cent on account of extreme cold or wet weather. The lottery like chance, that an Ad. might profit by extra large Sales, caused by some exciting event, will not outweigh this advantage.

Owing to the intricacies of the accounts of this branch of the Circulation, only the approximate Figures of it, and that with difficulty, can be obtained. Thereby greatly lessening its value. Even the Sunday Circulation, by this method, is effected by these conditions.

THE BEST AND THE ONLY RELIABLE CIRCULATION IS THE CARRIER CIRCULATION.

One of its merits is: that it never will drop or rise on account of the weather or the occurrences of the day. It will cause work and expenses and take some time to increase it, and if from any cause, it should decrease, it will not happen suddenly.

Another of its merits is the GUARANTEE it gives, that the PAPERS CIRCULATED will be READ.

Nobody will waste money, however small, on a thing he has no use for. Therefore does every 3c., 5c., 9c., 12c., as the rate for a copy for seven days may be, at the different Paper Offices, paid by the Carrier each week, surely represent one Reader. To reckon upon three additional Readers, for each of the paying Ones, is not unreasonable, because: the paying Readers are mostly heads of families.

But its CHIEF MERIT lays in THE POSSIBILITY, (excluded with other methods of Circulation) that an ADVERTISER CAN, very easily ASCERTAIN the EXACT NUMBER of "THIS" CIRCULATION, by inspecting the Carriers' Cash Accounts.

CARRIER CIRCULATION ONLY IS A CERTAINTY!

Publishers of leading journals in this city,—knowing this to be true,— have asserted in their columns that: "Carrier Circulation is what most interests St. Louis Advertisers." They have therefore also, (as some will remember) on occasions, gone so far, as to publish, for the benefit of the Advertisers,— severally by Routes,— the correct Figures of their Carrier Circulation.

In conclusion let us state, that we think it would be greatly to the interest of your Firm to make, at the proper time an inquiry, (courted by some of them) into the Circulation of the Papers seeking your Ads. Carefully noting, especially with the Papers that employ diverse methods, the part which is by Carrier.

By doing so, you will protect yourself against being taken undue advantage off, encourage the managers of the Papers striving to increase reliable Circulation, and confer a favor upon the Paper Carriers' Ass'n, a body composed of Carriers on all the different Papers of the city.

Respectfully asking this Favor, we are,

Yours,

Victor H. Handschug, President.

INDICTED FOR MURDER.

Charles Andrus and Wife Charged With Killing His Father.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOWEN, Ill., Oct. 15.—The Hancock County Grand-jury found an indictment against Charles and Julia Andrus, his wife, for the murder of W. P. "Yankee" Andrus, whose death occurred last February and the fact of whose death was kept secret until a few days ago for the purpose of preventing the foreclosure of a mortgage on the home place, which was occupied by the son, Charles. The testimony of two children, Hugh and Nellie Webb, who had been making their home with the Andrus family, is the grounds for the indictment. These children testified that the old man was made to stay out in a shed in the cold and damp without food or fire. Charles Andrus is reported to have left the country.

WASN'T QUICK ENOUGH.

Why Ex-Detective Jackson Failed to Shoot Detective Patrick Lally.

Ex-Detective James Jackson of the Terminal Association service attempted about 1:30 a. m. to shoot Detective Patrick Lally of the Missouri Pacific service, but was prevented by the latter's prompt action. The trouble took place in Henry Scherer's saloon, at Eighteenth and Market streets.

Jackson was discharged from the Terminal service Monday and, drawing his pay, proceeded to fill up. About 1:30 a. m., as Lally was standing at the saloon bar raising a glass of beer to his lips, he was surprised by the barkeeper's cry of warning, the latter at the same time ducking below the bar. Lally wheeled and saw Jackson standing in the door with a revolver leveled at Lally's head. The latter drew his own weapon and before Jackson could fire took a shot at him. Jackson turned and ran down Eighteenth street, turning into an alley, with Lally in pursuit. At the alley Lally caught up with Jackson, who again leveled his weapon, but surrendered it upon Lally's threat to shoot to kill. Lally at the same time shoving his pistol against Jackson's breast.

Lally then turned Jackson over to some of the latter's friends and went back to the saloon, where he had been waiting for an owl car to pass. Jackson immediately complained to the regular officers on the Union Station beat and took them to Lally's waiting place. At the latter's request the barkeeper told the story of the affray, but Jackson interrupted the statement with such epithets directed at Lally that the latter knocked him down. Jackson was taken away and Lally was requested to make a statement at headquarters this morning, which he did. Jackson is under arrest. The police will prefer a charge against Lally of discharging firearms within the city limits. He will plead self-defense. The cases of both come up Oct. 22.

Jackson's attempt on Lally's life is believed to be the result of an old grudge, though there were no words passed before the former drew his weapon.

HARRISON OUT OF THE QUESTION.

Senator Thurston Scouts the Idea of the Indianian's Candidacy.

HE PROTESTS TOO MUCH.

Neither of the Great Parties Will, the Nebraskan Says, Declare for Free and Unlimited Silver Coinage.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 15.—"The location of the next Republican National Convention lies between three cities—San Francisco, Pittsburg and Chicago," said National Committeeman John M. Thurston of Nebraska.

Mr. Thurston is at present on the Coast in the interest of the Union Pacific railway, relative to the receivership on two appeals from orders made from the State of Oregon. Mr. Thurston was inclined to be communicative on matters pertaining to politics and stated that Joseph Manley, the National Committeeman from Maine, had expressed the wish to him that San Francisco might be the next convention place of the Republican party and that many of the other members of the Eastern States had expressed the same desire.

"As for myself," continued the Senator, "I have not made up my mind. It is sure to go to either Chicago, Pittsburg or San Francisco and any one of the three places named will suit me.

"What do I think of the probable nominee of the party? Well, my State is rather inclined toward McKinley, but I hear Allison or Reed of Maine frequently referred to as available and safe for the party. Harrison, did you say? Never. He is entirely out of the question. I believe there was an attempt to work him into the fight, but it has about given out.

"You recall the quotation, 'Methinks the lady doth protest too much.' Well, that applies to Harrison. He will never do."

"Will the Republican party give the West a free coinage plank?"

"Yes, I think so. One similar to the plank of the last campaign; but I do not think the Republicans or the Democrats either will ever declare for the free and unlimited coinage of silver without regard to any other country. I think the money question will have to be settled in such a way that there will never be any great disturbance in money values. I have always thought that way and cannot see it in any other and-Jury Holds Her for the Killing of the Negro Boy.

DICTED MISS FLAGLER.

The Post-Dispatch

KINGTON, Oct 15.—The Grand-jury ding has voted to indict Miss Eliza- Flagler, daughter of Gen. D. W. U. S. A., for manslaughter, in having the negro boy Ernest Green on The indictment may be handed in or withheld until the end of the term ary.

deeply by the slight. Yesterday the offense was repeated in the most glaring manner, and it will take a long time to smooth the ruffled dignity of those representing a co-ordinate branch of the Government, who never fail to pay strict attention to the slightest detail of official courtesy.

When the court learned that the Presi- t of the United States, after four months ishing and yachting, had deliberately rmined to take another day's outing, ithstanding their presence and the tra- which required an exchange of com- nts, there was much feeling exhibited.

FIVE BOYS AT ONE BIRTH.

Mrs. John Langdon of Ohio the Mother of Quintuplets.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 15.—Information from a reliable source has reached this city to the effect that Mrs. John Langdon, residing six miles northeast of Delta, in Fulton County, has given birth to five children, all boys, and all doing nicely. People are driving there from all over the county, but thus far only a few have been permitted to see the little ones, owing to the objections of the mother. The father declines to be interviewed.

THE IROQUOIS CLUB.

Chicago's Leading Democratic Society in a Bad Way.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—At a meeting of the Iroquois Club, the leading Democratic organization in Cook County, last night it was decided to give up the club rooms. The club will now have no permanent place in which to hold its meetings. It is said, however, that the organization will be preserved and that some time in the future new headquarters will be secured.

The club has been in financial straights for some time. At the meeting last night it was reported that the expenses were about $1,600 a month in excess of the receipts, and the only way the club could come out even was by levying a monthly assessment. This was not satisfactory and the club decided to give up its rooms.

DOWN AN EMBANKMENT.

Railroad Wreck, Killing One Man and Injuring Two Others.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 15.—A bad wreck occurred on the Buffalo division of the Western New York & Pennsylvania at 1 o'clock this morning. As a north bound train was passing Eldred station the locomotive left the track and plunged down an embankment, followed by eleven loaded cars.

Fireman Jessie Baxter of Buffalo was caught beneath the engine, and crushed to death. Engineer Brockway and Brakeman Hagmire, both of Buffalo, were seriously injured. It is feared the engineer's injuries will prove fatal.

MAILS ON STREET CARS.

The Adoption of the System May Prevent Strikes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 15.—The Chronicle says: The announcement by Postmaster Frank McCoppin that he is endeavoring to bring about the carrying of the mails between sub-stations and the central post office on the street railway lines of this city is looked upon very auspiciously by the railway employes. The railway employes claim to see behind the proposition the hand of the Southern Pacific Railway, that it is a scheme of the railway company to bring its immense street car system within the protection of that celebrated Omnibus decision of Attorney-General Olney during the strike against the Pullman Car Co.

The provisions of that decision were broad enough to bring under its wing all railway companies carrying mails. It was maintained that the refusal of the train men to move trains carrying Pullman coaches was indirectly an interference with the United States mails and consequently a serious offense in the Federal [illegible] ar of crimes.

GUYED THE POLICEMAN.

When He Arrested the Boys They Sang About "Teddy."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—St. Louis policemen can pick up lots of tips from their Gotham brethren. Yesterday in Jefferson Market Police Court Patrolman Maguire arraigned before Magistrate Wentworth three lads, whom he charged with singing on the streets on Sunday. The mother of each was present.

"What were you singing, a religious or a comic song?" asked the Magistrate.

With a sheepish grin on his face, one of the lads replied: "We were singing the 'Coochee-Coochee, but we were not singing loud."

"Oh, your Honor," interrupted Maguire, "but when I arrested them and was taking them to the station they further insulted the dignity of the police by singing:

"'Oh, Teddy, dear, will you drink with me? The liquor law won't hinder thee.'

"This they warbled all the way to the station and caused the crowd to laugh."

The boys were discharged with a warning.

DANGEROUS COMPLICATIONS.

Possible Result of the Changed Conditions in Corea.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—The Soleil, to-day, commenting upon the uprising in Seoul, says: "The powers, and Russia in particular, cannot allow Japan to establish a stringent protectorate over Corea. Very dangerous complications have arisen which may compromise the results obtained by the intervention of the powers in the settlement of the China-Janan dispute." The Figaro, referring to the Corean situation, remarks: "The Coreans do not want the Japanese yoke. Japan is in a nasty position. Her policy has received a check from which it will have difficulty in recovering."

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 15.—An Imperial ordinance has been issued prohibiting Japanese from visiting Corea without special permission from the Government of Japan.

A dispatch from Seoul states that during the confusion which followed the recent attack on the Royal Palace there, the rioters entered a bed-room and murdered three women, one of whom is supposed to have been Queen of Corea.

KIER HARDIE IS IN TOWN.

Has Come to Make Known His Views on Socialism.

IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA.

Doesn't Take Much Stock in the Boasted American Equality and Talks About Trusts and Combines.

Domination of the American clergy by the moneyed classes is, in the opinion of J. Kier Hardie, one of the chief of many potent causes that will change the greatest republic of the world into a commune before the next century opens. Mr. Hardie states that his conception of the cause is not due to the Chicago ministerial incident, already publicly exploited, and that his startling prophecy of the overthrow of present government in the United States is not to be confuted.

The great Scotch labor leader and Socialist arrived in St. Louis from Kansas City at 7:10 o'clock Tuesday morning, with Secretary Frank Smith of the London Federation of the Independent Labor party and an ex-member of the London Municipal Council. At Hurst's Hotel Mr. Hardie registered in a bold, dashing hand and with his companion was shown to room 106, where, an hour later, he told to a Post-Dispatch reporter his impressions on his American tour.

Mr. Hardie is President of the Independent Labor party and of the Aryshire Miners' Union and ex-member of the British House of Commons. He is rather tall, of stalwart frame and the rugged appearance characteristic of a Scot. He wears his brown hair long, and a full, shaggy beard of brown covers almost his entire face. He speaks with a pronounced accent, but with an enunciation easily understood. For fifteen years he worked in English mine pits until blacklisted as a Trades' Union official. Then he became, as he states, "an agitator and journalist." Until 1886 Mr. Hardie was a Henry George disciple. Since then he has become an ardent Socialist.

"Everyone to whom I have spoken during my nine weeks' tour of America," said Mr. Hardie to the reporter, "agrees in saying that the social status of the workingman in America has lowered during the past twenty years. I myself, can state as a fact that boasted American equality is not a fact, but a myth. You have millionaires and great trusts, and combines dominating your Congress; your State Legislatures, and to a great extent, your press; to a considerable extent your pulpits and your universities.

"I base my assertion that your pulpits are controlled upon the very fact of their inaction. If the church, and I use the term in its general sense, meaning all denominations, were true to the principles of its founder, the present social conditions could not exist one year."

"Is not your statement concerning the church induced by your experience at Chicago?" asked the reporter.

"No sir. That incident has been distorted past all recognition. A number of our friends present at the meeting of ministers applauded my declaration that Socialism was Christianity applied, and that the churches are not doing their duty. Objection to applause was sustained by the chair. Subsequently my statement that the clergy of all classes should not allow prejudice to color their judgment, and that in the early days of Christianity its advocates were burned and crucified, and possibly the Anarchists hanged Chicago, however much we might disagree with their methods, were as much pioneers of a new gospel as were the arly Christians called forth one cry of No! No! Thereupon one of those who had applauded said that if there were to be no expressions of approval none of dis approval should be allowed. That was the entire incident.

"The alliance between the pulpit and wealth and wealth and the Government will of necessity bring Socialism. They will bring it when the present improvement in trade begins to decline. The conditions in America will then have become such as will compel the people to think for themselves and to act. The business depression will come, because the sun, once risen, must set. And it will come between now and the year 1900."

"Do you mean that Socialism will have started its ascendancy by then, or will have attained it?"

"I have noticed during my tour," replied Mr. Hardie, "a nervous activity about men that is apparently characteristic. The English and the Scots are rather phlegmatic. Here all is rush. This leads me to say that when Socialism once gets a 'move on' (that is a colloquialism I have picked up) it will sweep on irresistibly. At present hundreds of thousands in America accept Socialism in theory. There has not yet been pressure enough to bring action. Each succeeding wave pressure, in the shape of business depression and the like, brings to Socialism new adherents. The next wave pressure will bring action and put the United States under Socialistic government.

"The tendency is already toward it. Events are educating the people as well as the long-continued hardship of their condition, which is due to the alliance between capital and government between combines and pulpits and educational institutions, and to the fact that you have few representatives of the laboring classes making or administering the laws.

"A great railroad corporation can do practically as it pleases. The leader of the railway workers is put in jail, not for breaking any law, but for violating an illegal injunction, and is sentenced without trial by jury, robbed of the most sacred right of democracy. That could not happen in America to a wealthy man. That could not happen in the monarchy of Great Britain to the poorest man without previous declaration of martial law."

"Will the introduction of Socialism in your opinion be accompanied by force, and will anarchy follow?" Mr. Hardie was asked.

"Unless the movement in America takes a political shape," was Mr. Hardie's reply, "then an outlet is certain to be found in anarchy. The phase I hope to see it take here and in the old country is the political one. It is already shaped politically in Europe, and anarchy will not appear to any extent there or in England. We sometimes confound methods with ends. Anarchy means a system of production akin to that of to-day, in which the individual will be allowed perfect freedom. Socialism means the regulation of industry and the restraint of the individual when he trenches upon the well-being of his fellows. The methods by which these two results are to be attained differ. The constitutional Socialist reasons that by sending Socialists to make laws Socialism will be brought gradually to pass.

"Now if the propertied interests, when Socialism is about to secure a foothold, seek by illegal methods to prevent the Socialists from attaining power, when they are numerically strong enough to be entitled to it, there will be in America what is commonly known as anarchy, and fraud will be met with force. What I have said applies in part to Great Britain and the Continent. In Germany Socialism, first promulgated in 1848, has become a philosophy accepted by members of all classes, and an outbreak of Socialism in Germany would be met with support from a considerable proportion of the propertied classes. I find here that Socialistic organizations lack cohesion, but they are being rapidly welded."

"Are you yourself an Anarchist, Mr. Hardie?"

"No, sir! I differ widely in my views from Mr. Mowbray, who spoke here last Sunday, for whom, however, I have a great admiration."

"Then why are you called an Anarchist?"

"Because it suits the moneyed interests to so characterize me. I am attacking their strongholds."

"What has been your reception in America?"

"Very cordial from all sides, save from political boodlers, to use another Americanism. They fear their craft is in danger, and I take this as a compliment. When a Trades Council desires to invite us to address a meeting under its auspices, these men oppose me, for they are to be found in labor organizations. The present weakness of the latter is the presence of traitors in camp."

"What do you find the condition of the laboring classes?"

"In large cities their condition is little different from that in the old country. I find relatively the same number at work and idle. I find that their freedom here is becoming more restricted, sweat shops developing more and more and wages all around has a tendency to decrease. On the other hand, their standard of living is higher here than abroad. This means that when out of work they suffer more than when not used to luxuries. Outside the large cities conditions are much better than in Great Britain.

"I have been greatly impressed with the size of the country and its varieties of climate, but chiefly with the lack of personal freedom here. There is less than in Great Britain. In San Francisco a man on horseback was arrested for advertising my meeting with a placard. A man distributing dodgers telling of the other's arrest was then locked up."

The incident with ex-Gov. Waite of Colorado at Denver, like that at Chicago, Mr. Hardie stated, has been grossly exaggerated, neither of them having lost their temper.

At 7:30 o'clock to-night Mr. Hardie lectures at Pickwick Hall under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council, on the "Socialist Solution of the Labor Problem," although the advertised subject is: "Topics of the Day." Mr. Smith, his companion, will also lecture there, his subject being the labor problem. Mr. Hardie states he will remain in the United States five or six weeks longer, but does not know how long will be his stay in St. Louis.

KIER HARDIE.
(Sketched in His Room at Hurst Hotel.)

He Had to See the Show.

James B. McLane, who first claimed to be a loafer and afterward said he was an insurance agent, was fined $25 by Judge Peabody Tuesday morning for boisterous and disorderly conduct. Monday night McLane, possessed of an idea that he must break into the Standard Theater performance. Treasurer Dick Burke, noticing his intoxicated condition, refused him admission. This angered McLane, who declared he would see the show or die. Dashing by the doorkeeper, McLane entered and when an officer went after him rushed up stairs to the balcony. The officer took him, but McLane broke away and again tried to break into the home of burlesque. He was then placed under arrest.

ROADMASTERS CONVENE.

They Began Their Thirteenth Annual Session at the Southern.

The Roadmasters' Association of America begun its thirteenth annual session at the Southern at 10 a. m. The present convention of the czars of construction, on whose faithful work depends the safety of the traveling public, is attended by about 150 members, representing as many roads in all parts of this country and Canada.

The officers of the association are Robert Black, New York Elevated Road, President; C. E. Jones, Burlington System, First Vice-President; John A. Kerwin, Chicago & Northwestern, Second Vice-President, and W. W. Sharp, Plant System, Secretary and Treasurer.

President Black arrived here Monday, but in response to an urgent telegram left for home Monday night. Secretary Sharp has not arrived owing to pressing business in the East.

The convention begun with an address of welcome by Mayor Walbridge, who was introduced by Vice-President Jones as "the Mayor of the most hospitable city in the world." The Mayor's remarks were followed by short talks from ex-Presidents Burnett and Doyle.

After the approval of the minutes twelve new members were elected and the reports of committees taken up. The morning session was devoted entirely to routine matters.

After lunch the convention went into executive session to consider several matters of importance. The election of officers for the ensuing year has been made the last order of business. A night session may be held.

The storage room and rotunda of the Southern are crowded with exhibits of switches, frogs, hand cars, gasoline inspection cars, "cow gates," wire fence, inspecting bicycles and other devices. Much time was spent by the delegates inspecting them, before and after the sessions.

The programme of the convention calls for daily sessions from 10:30 to 2:30, and includes a theater party Tuesday evening and an inspection of the interlocking signal and switch system of the Union Station early Friday morning.

Among the prominent ex-officers of the association who are present at the convention are Isaac Burnett, formerly with the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, who was one of the organizers of the association and president from 1881 to 1887, and John Doyle of the Chicago & West Michigan, who was president for two years.

FAINTED DEAD AWAY.

Identification of C. R. Mounce Too Much for His Nerve.

Clarence R. Mounce, a fashionably attired individual, 35 years old, was arrested Tuesday by Detectives Archambault and Connors as he came out of his boarding-house, 1706 Lucas place, on the charge of passing fraudulent checks.

Monday he is said to have purchased a railroad ticket from Samuel Steiner, a broker at 210 South Fourth street, for $10. He gave him a check for $30 drawn on the Merchants' National Bank of Indianapolis. Steiner gave him $20 in change. This check proved to be worthless. He is also said to have passed worthless checks for $50 each on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. and the Merchants' Hotel.

Mounce was positively identified during the morning by Mr. Steiner as the man who gave him the check. Upon being identified Mounce gave a groan, and covering his face with his hands, sank to the floor of his cell in a dead faint.

All efforts to revive him on the part of the officers proved futile, and he was hurried to the Dispensary, where he soon regained consciousness.

As he seemed to be suffering under a heavy mental strain, he was sent to the City Hospital as a prisoner.

At his boarding-house it is claimed he is in debt there over $100 for board. He has a wife and baby.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Robert Friedmeyer Shoots Himself in the Temple.

Between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning Robert Friedmeyer, 24 years old, living with his parents at 2526A University street, attempted suicide in the basement of the residence by shooting himself in the right temple with a 32-calibre revolver. The ball lodged in the flesh, just above the right eye. The shot was heard by the occupants of the house up-stairs, who ran down to the basement and found Friedmeyer lying unconscious on the floor, his head in a pool of blood and the weapon still clinched in his hand.

Dr. Summa of 2247 St. Louis avenue, who was called, pronounced the wound serious but not necessarily fatal. The alleged cause for the deed is temporary insanity, caused from continued sickness. He is now lying at the home of his parents. He is a harness maker and unmarried.

LIKE A COUNTY FAIR.

Opening of the Federal Grand Jury's Session To-Day.

The scene in the United States District Court Tuesday much resembled the opening of a county fair. It was the occasion of the appearance of the members of the October Grand-jury and there was a large and varied assortment of whiskers on hand.

Judge Adams ascended the bench at 10:10 a. m., but it was nearly 11 before the prospective jurors could be gathered together from the various parts of the big building. The large dome and, despite the cold weather, the very top of it, afforded amusement to the visitors, who made life lively for Weather Prophet Frankenfield.

It was all well enough while it lasted. The jurors, when finally settled down, will find things coming their way good and hard. According to Assistant District Attorney Anthony's statement, the docket is unusually heavy. Counterfeiters will cause much work for the jurors, for there are twelve separate cases on the list. J. Fuller Thomas, the colored postal clerk, charged with embezzlement, will go before the jury probably Thursday. Fifteen unlawful dispensers of liquor, mostly farmers, are also slated for the jury-room. There are five cases of "assault on steamboat roustabouts," including Mate Botsai of the Mary Morton, and his series of offenses. Kirby L. May, who, under the nom-de-plume of Ollie May, attempted to rob the matrimonially-inclined all over the country, is listed in the fraud column, along with three others. John McLain of Doniphan, Mo., who gained much notoriety by impersonating a United States officer and feeding free at country inns, and later jumping his bond, all of which recalls his clever capture in Chicago by Marshal Lynch, is listed with one other individual charged with a like crime.

In addition to the above there are four pension fraud cases, five cases of sending obscene letters through the mail, four of sending unmailable postal cards and two post-office robberies.

The jury was impaneled at noon and is as follows: J. A. Hickman of Stoddard County, James H. Huchison, Jr., of Pendleton, Warren County; H. C. Jones of Eminence, Shannon County; S. S. Tucker of Perryville; James C. Paulus of Coldwater; John Biggs of Stone Hill; George W. Crain of Pilot Knob; A. C. Bogard of Charleston; C. E. Musick of Wentzville, St. Charles County; Wm. C. Dyer of St. Paul, St. Charles County; Robert Carrahan of Elsinor, and F. D. Hirschberg, T. J. Herbel, W. J. Kinsella, C. W. Ladd, Justin F. Weston, Ellis Wainwright, Geo. K. Andrews, C. H. Sampson, W. F. Hubbard, Archer W. Douglas, Eugene F. Le Marchal and Wm. F. Nolker of St. Louis.

DAMPENED AFFECTION.

Paddy McKevitt's Love for Mrs. Barbara Geiger Was Too Fierce.

Judge Peabody's fine of $25 will have a tendency to dampen Paddy McKevitt's amorous proclivities.

Paddy was in the First District Court Monday morning for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Barbara Geiger of 5877 Wilson avenue. Mrs. Geiger testified that October 8 Paddy entered her house and refused to leave when she ordered him to do so. In fact, instead of going away, he entered the room where Mrs. Geiger was standing, threw his arms around her neck and made an indecent proposal. Then, when she repulsed him, he offered to marry her.

In his own behalf Paddy testified that he met Mrs. Geiger last Fourth of July, and hadn't been in her house since. He said Mrs. Geiger's mother was continually quarreling with his mother and that the family were taking out their spite on him.

McKevitt disappeared from his home October 8 and didn't return until Monday, when he was arrested. His mother says Mrs. Geiger has been telling around the neighborhood that Paddy left home attired in woman's clothing, but denies that such was the fact.

Warrant Against Grundemeyer.

Assistant Prosecuting Atorney Johnson Tuesday issued a warrant against Fred Grundemeyer, charging him with manslaughter in the second degree. Last Wednesday Grundemeyer struck George Tomlin in the face because he had taken a plum from Grundemeyer's stand at the Union Market. Tomlin fell, striking his head against the curbing on the sidewalk and fracturing his skull, which caused almost instant death.

One Lost and One Found.

The police of the Second District have been asked to look for 11-year-old Charles Storieck, of 2117 South Seventh street, who disappeared from home Monday night. They have found a 9-year-old boy who gives his name as Louis Decker, but cannot tell where he lives.

Della Fox Fined $10.

Della Fox was fined $10 this morning by Judge Peabody for being a public woman and "roping." But this isn't Della, the footlight deity—only a damsel brunette both in color and reputation.

TUXEDO PARK COMPANY.

Will Enlarge the Subdivision and Add to Its Improvements.

It was reported "on the street" Tuesday that the Tuxedo Park Co., owners of Tuxedo Park, would purchase twenty-three acres adjoining on the west. In addition it is said to have been planned to construct three seventy-foot boulevards through the place and improve many other streets.

In confirmation of the report it was learned authentically that the capital stock of the company had been increased from $40,000 to $75,000. In filing the notice of increase the assets were given as $190,000; liabilities, $85,000.

The largest stockholders of the company are H. M. Pollock, President; J. B. Case of the Lincoln Trust Co., and J. C. Richardson. Messrs. Rutledge & Kilpatrick are the agents and during the past summer have sold many lots.

In addition, the park is soon to have street-car connection with St. Louis and it is predicted that next summer will see prices advanced from 10 to 20 per cent.

The value of the property during the past four years has advanced 50 per cent. With the additional improvements the owners hope to further increase value. Agents interested in neighboring property are elated at the action of the owners of Tuxedo. The residents and owners of lots are all anxious that the proposed plans shall be carried out.

If the weather permits the work of improvement will be done during the winter.

West End Apartment House.

Ground has been broken on the west side of King's highway, between West Belle place and Morgan street, for a magnificent apartment building. The McPherson Realty Co. will erect the new structure. The building will have a frontage of 175 feet on King's highway. It will be upon a terraced lot, surrounded by a lawn and trees. The building will be of buff brick with terra cotta trimmings. The interior will include all the very latest in building fads. The stairway and floors will be of hard-wood. The wainscoting, etc., of mahogany, brick and oak. The building will be completed in February.

Chemical-Building Foundation.

After considerable difficulty the Chemical Building Co. have succeeded in getting a solid base for the foundation of their proposed sixteen-story building. The contractors experienced most trouble on the Eighth street side of the excavation, directly opposite the Federal building, where the Government experienced much difficulty years ago. After excavating twenty feet, the depth of the cellar, it was found necessary to deepen the western part of the excavation thirty feet before reaching a solid base. This was filled up with crushed rock and mortar and over this, on a level with the floor of the cellar, heavy iron ties were placed. Work has been commenced on the foundation, and under the present arrangement there will be little chance for the building to "settle."

Realty Notes.

Paul Jones & Co. have sold houses Nos. 1805 and 1807 Carr street, a three-story brick dwelling, lot 37½x152 feet, from James Mason and wife to Louis Jeffe for $8,500; also a seven-room brick house, No. 2655 Morgan street, lot 25x145 feet, from Louis Jeffe to a client for $4,000.

Love & Sons report the sale of a lot 100x120 feet, on Burd avenue, west side, between Minerva and Ridge, from Caroline Baum to Mary Nicholson at $30 a foot. The purchaser will improve.

Terry Bros. have sold the nine-room brick dwelling, No. 1226 Goodfellow avenue, and lot 25x130 feet, from Mrs. Lizzie E. Terry to Julius F. Baltzell for $4,200.

BRAWNY BOYS ON THE GRIDIRON.

Indiana and Missouri Collegians Will Play Saturday.

PERSONNEL OF THE TEAMS.

The Purdue Eleven Is Composed of Heavyweights, but State University Men May Beat Them.

The football game at the old Pastime grounds next Saturday between the Missouri State University team and Purdue University of Lafayette, Ind., promises to be a good one.

The alumni of the two colleges are making preparations for the entertainment of the teams. The boys will stop at the Southern, where an informal reception will be held Friday night.

After the game the teams will be entertained at a theater party.

A permit will probably be asked for from Mayor Walbridge to allow the college boys to celebrate in regular college style, as this is done in other cities.

The Missouri University alumni in the city met Saturday night and ordered 500 seats for the game in the grandstand. Provisions were made for colors galore, yells and other accompaniments of a football game.

The members of the team are the leaders in their respective colleges.

The following is a personnel of the two teams as they will line up Saturday in the great game:

Clarence H. Robertson, the Captain of the Purdue team, is of fine physical proportions. He is 6 feet and 2 inches in height and weighs 195 pounds. He plays right tackle and has complete control of his men on the field. He is a good ground gainer and a fast man, both in defensive and offensive plays.

H. C. Buschman is considered a wonder in foot ball circles. He is young, but holds the State championship for the 100 yards dash of 10 seconds. He weighs 190 pounds, plays right half-back and is a terror to opposing ends and lines.

Moore, the left half-back, although a new man, is showing up well. He is a splendid man on long distance runs and hard to tackle. He is good on defensive plays, his tackling being low and sure. He weighs 170 pounds.

Jamison, the full-back, is the lightest man on the Purdue team, but his nerve and agility more than compensate for the lack of weight.

Alward, the right tackle, is a good man for the place. He weighs 180 pounds and is very quick. He is a brilliant man with the ball and hard to stop and running low and strong.

Kerkhoff, the left guard, is a comparatively new man, but his great strength and quick work have won him a place on the team. He plays a fast game and makes it interesting for the opposing line. He weighs 220 pounds.

Ewry, right end, is a terror to the enemy's half backs. He is good on breaking up the interference. He weighs 165 pounds.

Webb, the right guard, weighs 225 pounds, and is active for his weight.

Kerchival, the center rush, is a big man, and under the special training of Ballief has developed into a fine center.

Marshall at left end is of stocky build and agile movements, and is a good tackler.

Sinnett, left end, is the lightest man on the Missouri team. He weighs only 140 pounds, but is a fast man, getting into the interference in great shape. He hails from Sedalia, Mo., and is Junior Law.

Pauley, left tackle, is a heavyweight, tipping the beam at 190 pounds. He is an exceptionally fast man for his weight and a good ground gainer. Pauley played with the team of '93 and has a good record. He is a native of Boone County and is studying law.

Evans, at quarter back, is a good man, but inclined to grandstand plays. He weighs 150 pounds, is a fast runner. He comes from Carthage and is a senior in the Academic A. B. course.

Hill, the left guard, comes from a family of football players. He has three brothers that have at different times distinguished themselves on the gridiron. He weighs 173 pounds and is only 19 years old. He lives at Independence, Mo.

Thompson, at center, is considered a phenomenal center man. He lives at Jonesburg.

Davis, the right guard, played football at Marmaduke Military Academy before going to the University. He weighs 190 pounds and hails from Kansas City.

Conley, at right tackle, has the reputation of being the hardest man to stop in the West. He is powerfully built, weighing 175. He is a Columbia boy.

Price, the right end, is an old football player, having played on the University of Virginia. He is a sure tackler, generally bringing his man down. He is a good runner and a sure around gainer. He weighs 164 pounds and is from Jefferson City.

Young, captain and right half-back, is believed to be without a superior on the football fields in the West. He is a good, heady player and handles his men with a masterly hand. He is a good specimen of physical manhood, weighing 165 pounds and measuring 5 feet 9 inches in height. He resides at Oregon.

Allee, the full back, is a comparatively light man, weighing 150 pounds, but nevertheless is a good man for the position. He is a good line backer and punts well.

Shawhan, the left half-back, has had considerable foot-ball experience. He weighs 160 pounds, and is a good runner. He has been injured this season but will be able to play again by Saturday. He lives at Lone Jack, and is a junior Agriculture.

Cocked Hat Match.

The West Ends and Grand Bowling Clubs belonging to the St. Louis Cocked Hat League played their first match last night. The score was as follows: Grands, 905; West Ends, 894.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

Will the West End and Varsity Teams Meet Thursday.

Thursday the football season in St. Louis will be opened at the West End Athletic Club's grounds with flying colors and the whoopings of college yells and slogans, when the St. Louis University eleven will meet the West End Foot Ball Team.

The St. Louis University has heretofore put a splendid team on the field, and this year the orange, white and blue will be worn by winners.

It is almost the same team that chased the pigskin for the college last year, and which not only suffered no defeat, but was not even scored against, although it met such teams as the Smith Academy, High School, Manual Training School, Christian Brothers' College and the strong St. Charles Athletic Club. This year it has already defeated the Rippers by a score of 20-0 and the Pine Streets 28-0, in the latter game yielding only three yards to their opponents.

The rush line is by far the heaviest in the city, and second only to one in the State. Paul Dillon, brother of John, the famous Georgetown half-back, is at quarter. Straat, left half-back, 136 pounds, who with Dowling has run 100 yards in full football uniform in 10 2-5; Drew, captain and right half, with four years of football training, is one of the best and most artistic tacklers in the city. McNichols, the new full-back, is considered a "phenom."

The eleven is coached by Bob McDonald and Charles Thierry, who have been aided by Capt. Knipe of Pennsylvania.

The West Ends, while not as heavy as the St. L. U.'s, have the advantage of a large gymnasium where they practice in secret. Interesting work may be expected from Reynolds, Wear, Menzie and Chapman, while Joe Howard's tackling abilities will be put to a severe test.

The game will be played according to Harvard-Pennsylvania-Cornell rules.

Ladies will be admitted free. Space has been set aside for drags and tally-hos.

On Oct. 26 the St. Louis University will play the Smiths; on Oct. 31 the C. B. C.; on Nov. 6 the McGrew Guards. Games have also been arranged with Rolla, Alton, St. Charles and Marmaduke.

The teams will line up Thursday as follows:

St. L. U.	Position.	West Ends.
Troy-Dowling	Left End.	McClellan
Frost	Left Tackle.	Force
Lucas	Left Guard.	Berge
Davis	Center.	Lawton
Garesche	Right Guard.	McCormack
Roemacher	Right Tackle.	Howard
Halpin	Right End.	Chapin
Dillon	Quarter.	Reynolds
Drew	Right Half.	Menzie
McNichols	Full Back.	Chapman

BILL M'GUIGAN HERE.

The Arkansas Turfman Wears a Stanley Cap and Has Become a Swell.

William McGuigan, Jr., the Hot Springs horseman and ex-member of the Arkansas Legislature, was among the arrivals at the Fair Grounds Monday. McGuigan came over from Latonia with his stable, which includes such well known performers as Ben Eder, Lady Inez, Concession and Star Beam. Since he left St. Louis last spring McGuigan has had good success with his horses. He raced at Detroit, Windsor, Oakley and Latonia, and at every one of these tracks the Hot Springs Stable's colors have been seen in front frequently. When he arrived at the Fair Grounds Monday McGuigan caused great excitement. The famous old cotton umbrella was missing from its usual place under his arm. This fact alone would have been enough to cause great comment, but it was overshadowed to a certain exten by the change noticed in the Arkansas turfman's make-up—None of his local friends ever thought he would have ambition to shine as the swellest of the swell on the race track, but when they saw him wearing a Stanley yachting cap, and with his red beard trimmed to a Vandyke point, it was admitted that the atmosphere in which he has been circulating all summer must have caused a wonderful change to come over him. McGuigan himself was exceedingly shy and modest when questioned as to the report that he had concluded that the cigarette was the appropriate thing for an after dinner smoke. Rumor has it that McGuigan will run for the Legislature again at the next State election in Arkansas. Even money can he had at the track that he will be riding a bicycle by that time. Just what kind of a reception McGuigan would receive from the backwoodsmen of Arkansas if he were to make a canvass among them on a bicycle, attired in knickerbockers and a Stanley cap, is rather a dubious question. They might stand it, but it is not believed McGuigan would be foolish enough to go among them and endeavor to persuade them that the cigarette was the proper caper these days.

There are a large number of millionaire harness horse fanciers attending the trotting and pacing races at Lexington, Ky., this week. Among them are such men as William Russell Allen of the Southern Hotel, St. Louis, and owned of a well-stocked trotting-horse farm at Pittsfield, Mass.; Maj. Dubois, one of the owners of the great horse Sulphide of Denver; Wm. M. Singerly, owner of the Philadelphia Record; Monroe Salisbury of Pleasanton, Cal.; W. S. Corbett of the San Mateo farm, California, and C. J. Hamlin of the Village farm, East Aurora, N. Y. An amusing feature of these millionaires' visits to Kentucky is that they "turn themselves loose" while in Lexington and have a royally good time. At a little impromptu entertainment the other night given by Teddy Mehan, William Russell Allen, although worth $3,000,000, played the fiddle while Maj. Dubois danced a jig. To Mr. Allen's credit it can be said that he played the violin remarkably well and his performance was a surprise to the band of colored musicians of whom he borrowed the instrument.

Walter O. Parmer, Secretary of the Cumberland Park Jockey Club of Nashville, Tenn., was a visitor in St. Louis Monday. He came over direct from Cincinnati and is authority for the statement that the meeting of the Turf Congress, which was to have taken place in St. Louis to-morrow, has been transferred to Cincinnati. The change was made because Ed Corrigan, Jim Rees, Ed Hopper, W. F. Schulte and several other Western race-track magnates are now at Cincinnati, and it would be more convenient to ask President Mafftt to come over there than to bring all of them here. According to Mr. Parmer the outlaws are almost certain to be reinstated at the coming meeting of the Turf Congress. The rule against winter and night racing will, it is believed, be allowed to remain in force and all who disobey it, after Dec. 1, will come under the ban of the congress. President Mafftt or Secretary Gwynn will represent St. Louis at the Cincinnati gathering Wednesday. Most of the outlaws to be reinstated by the congress are those from Madison and South Side Park.

Mannie Gray, dam of the great Domino, and one of the best brood mares in America, died at the barn of her owner, Maj. B. G. Thomas, near Lexington, Ky. She was 21 years old, and died of heart disease. The dead mare was by Enquirer, dam Lizzie G., by War Dance. Mannie Gray's produce have won nearly $500,000 on the turf. Of this immense sum Domino captured $303,000; Correction, $48,000; Ten Strike, $11,000; Bandalla, $8,000; Lady Reel, $5,000 and Free Mason $4,000. Maj. Thomas owns a yearling sister to the speedy Domino. Mannie Gray is the second great brood mare to pass away in Kentucky recently, Belle Knight's death having occurred the other day.

Galen Brown won the first race at 'Frisco Monday with his 2-year-old Claude Hill, who was named in honor of a well-known Chicago railroad official.

W. Wheeler bet $25 against $50 on Danton, and if the money won he intended to parley the money back on Emma S. Danton ran second, and Wheeler's disgust can be imagined when Emma S. won at 12 to 1.

Secretary J. K. Gwynn stated last night that although it has not been settled, he thought C. C. Pettus would again be selected to preside in the stand at the Fair Grounds.

The world's record by a pacing team was broken at Lexington, Ky., Monday by Miss Rita and Josie B., driven by Orrin Hickok. Fractional time—:34½, 1:07¾, 1:41¼, 2:12¼. Rita is owned by Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes, New York City, and Josie B. by her husband.

Gov. Clarke Commended.

NEW LEWISVILLE, Ark., Oct. 15.—At the annual meeting of the Columbia Baptist bodies in Southern Arkansas, which is now in session at Buckner, there were over 2,000 people present. Strong resolutions against the proposed fight at Hot Springs and commending the action of Governor Clarke were adopted.

Corbett Arrives in Palestine.

PALESTINE, Tex., Oct. 15.—James J. Corbett and party will spend to-day in Palestine. They arrived last evening from San Antonio. The opera house has been engaged and he will go through his usual course of training, probably giving a sparring exhibition in the evening, after which the party will proceed to Arkansas, where the great contest is expected to take place as advertised.

IS NOT CORBETT'S FRIEND.

John L. Sullivan Has No Use for the Present Champion.

While giving an exhibition in Jersey City, N. J., last night John L. Sullivan, ex-champion pugilist of the world, said:

"I am a pretty good old 'has been.' I have always made mistakes, but I have a warm heart. When foreigners came here to fight I did not go to a newspaper office to put up money and talk through the newspapers, but the newspapers have always treated me kindly, and I don't want to say anything against them. I have never been defeated but once, and that was by the present champion. I wish him success; but I wish to say this, now, I am not his friend."

FOUGHT ON A FLAGSHIP.

Kid Foley and Ed Hanlon Give a Brutal an Exhibition.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 15.—News has just reached this city that a prize-fight took place on the flagship New York in Hampton Roads Saturday night. The principals were "Kid" Foley, of the New York, and "Ed" Hanlon, of the Texas, which is also lying in the roadstead.

The fight was for a purse [illegible] to be determined in fifteen rounds, but Hanlon was knocked out in the eighth round. It was fully half an hour before Hanlon regained consciousness. Great anxiety was felt lest the end should prove fatal.

Such an affair as this is without precedent in the navy during the last thirty years.

Theodore Breitenstein, George Miller, Tommie Dowd, Henry Peitz, Frank Pears, Jack Crooks, Bill Joyce and Pat Flaherty are daily visitors at new Sportsman's Park track.

Sporting Notes.

Owen Ziegler and Jack Everhardt will fight for a $2,500 purse in New Orleans, Oct. 24.

Griffo and Lavigne, who fought a twenty-round draw Saturday night, have been arrested for prize-fighting.

Eddie Bald landed two prizes at the Lincoln, Neb., bicycle race meeting yesterday.

The Doane College football team from Crete, Neb., defeated the Y. M. C. A. eleven of Des Moines, Io., yesterday by a score of 10 to 6.

The Anderson, Ind., and Indianapolis cricket teams played in Anderson yesterday and the Anderson team won by a score of 108 to 89.

De Pauw football eleven of Greencastle, Ind., beat the University of Kentucky team yesterday 18 to 0.

Bicycle records were broken at the Louisville, Ky., meeting yesterday as follows: Two miles, Will Decardy, 3m. 53 2-5s.; former record, 3m. 54 4-5s. Five miles, Arthur Gardner, 9m. 58 1-5s; former record, 10m. 18s. Mile tandem, Anderson and Van Herrick, 1m. 51s.; former record, 1m 51 3-5s. N. Jasnogrosky defeated M. M. Sterling after twenty-five moves in the Manhattan Chess Club tournament yesterday. The score is now 2 to 0 in favor of the former.

Johnny Van Heest, who is in St. Louis, says that George Dixon is afraid to meet him in a finish fight.

An effort is being made to arrange a match between "Kid" Lavigne and Joe Walcott. Walcott also wants to fight "Kid" McCoy.

John L. Brewer, the famous trap shooter, and Tom Morfey will shoot at 100 live birds for $1,000 a side at Pittsburg this month. Morfey is given a three yards handicap.

Pacific Coast clubs are after Jack O'Connor to play ball this winter, but Jack will remain in St. Louis.

Manager Bancroft of Cincinnati has a scheme to barnstorm in Hot Springs before and after the big fight. He wants Manager Tebeau and the Spiders to accompany members of the Cincinnati team to Arkansas.

The Philadelphia ball club will build a new club-house this winter. It is proposed to make this a model structure of its kind and a veritable baseball dressing-room palace, with hot and cold shower baths and a plunge 35 or 40 feet long.

CREEDON WHIPPED CRAIG.

But the Coffee Cooler Made Things Hot for Dan.

Dan Creedon, the St. Louis middleweight, won a twenty-round fight with Frank Craig, the "Harlem Coffee Cooler," in the National Sporting Club arena at London last night.

The fight was a corker from the moment time was called, and Creedon was knocked down and almost out in the sixth round by a hot right-handed swing which the "Cooler" landed on his neck. After going to his corner in a dazed condition Dan took the defensive and kept away from Craig for the next two rounds, during which he recovered rapidly. Just as the gong rung in the eighth round Creedon smashed his opponent squarely on the jaw and rattled Craig so that he had the best of the remaining rounds, and, although he could not knock his man out, was given the decision.

A crowd of roughs tried to create a riot and were suppressed with difficulty by the police.

Craig and Creedon met in New York Feb. 7, 1894, for four rounds, and Creedon failed to stop the "Cooler" per agreement.

As a curtain raiser for the principal event, Dide Plumb, a London lightweight, knocked out Jack Lewis, an American boxer, in three rounds.

Creedon will now probably return to America and will accept "Kid" McCoy's challenge for a fight to a finish.

BALTIMORE'S BENEFIT.

Winners of the League Pennant Give an Exhibition.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 15.—About 1,500 people yesterday witnessed a series of novel field sports arranged for the benefit of the base ball champions. The first event was long distance throwing. Kelley won at 379 feet, which is within 20 feet of the record. Next came the accurate pitching contest. A frame fastened to a pedestal made of plank was placed over the plate, the space being about that allowed a pitcher for a strike. Esper proved to be in the best form, sending the ball through five times out of nine. Clarkson was second, with four strikes out of nine, and Hoffer, who was wild, had only two strikes.

The same frame was placed on second base, and the catchers threw for prizes. Robinson was ill, and did not compete. Down the front of the frame was hung a muslin cloth, which was a mark for the thrower. Clarke and Bowerman each hit this five out of nine times. In the throw-off Clarke won.

Keeler won the base running contest, making the circuit in 15s. flat. McGraw was second, in 15 1-5s.; Kelley third, 15⅘s., and Jennings fourth, 15 4-5s.

In batting Jennings carried off the honors. He drove the ball 363 feet 2 inches.

In the 100 yard dash Keeler made a remarkable record. He had no special training, ran over rough turf, with shoes that had no spikes, yet covered the distance in 11s. Jennings was a good second.

Base Ball Notes.

Jack Boyle was fined in a Cincinnati Police Court for disturbing the peace.

Hartman, the Milwaukee third baseman, would be a good man for Von der Ahe to give a trial.

Perry Werden may go up to Minneapolis shortly to see about signing for next season.

The Browns' dressing-rooms at new Sportsman's Park, have been used by the jockeys since racing was commenced at the park.

All the professional ball players who are wintering in St. Louis think Tim Hurst would make an ideal referee for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight.

The Murphysboro Clarkes won the Southern Illinois League pennant. Cairo was second, Belleville third, Springfield fourth and East St. Louis fifth.

DEATH OF GEN. KEYES.

He Was an Aide to Gen. Scott and Fought at Bull Run.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15.—News has reached this city of the death of Gen. Erasmus Darwin Keyes in Nice, France, on Oct. 11. Gen. Keyes was born in Brimfield, Mass., May 29, 1810. He was admitted as a cadet at West Point during the year 1828 and was graduated in 1832. In 1837 he was aide to Gen. Scott and in 1848 he went to the frontier and did garrison duty until 1860, commanding a battery of artillery against hostile Indians in the Northwest. At the breaking out of the rebellion Maj. Keyes was given command of the 11th Regular Infantry, with a Colonel's commission. He took part in the battle of Bull Run and was shortly after appointed Brigadier-General of volunteers. He was attached to the Army of the Potomac under Gen. McClellan and his division was actively engaged in the contests along the Chickahominy.

Gen. Keyes was breveted Brigadier-General of the regular army from May 31, 1862, for meritorious service.

In 1864 he removed to California. He was President of the Mexican Gold Mining Co. in 1867-69 and Vice-President of the California Wine Culture Society in 1878. He also became acquainted with a party of capitalists and established in San Francisco the Humboldt Savings and Loan Society and became its Vice-President.

PUNCHED BY A WOMAN.

A New York Policeman Gallantly Submits to Kicks and Cuffs.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The spectacle of a young woman kicking and punching a park policeman was witnesed by 500 persons in City Hall Park yesterday. During the excitement a watch valued at $4 was stolen, and the woman got away. Her clothing and hair were disheveled. Her conduct attracted a crowd of boys, who began to jeer at her. She stood up against the wire fence around the grass plot to the east of the City Hall and cursed her tormentors. In a twinkling a big crowd was watching her performances. Park Policeman No. 262 came along and said mildly:

"You had better go home, young woman."

This advice was not received in a proper spirit, for the young woman raised her skirt and deliberately kicked the policeman in the back. The crowd howled with delight. Then the young woman's right arm shot out and she landed on the policeman's neck. Twice she struck him. The policeman, instead of retaliating, or placing her under arrest, said: "Now, don't do that."

No Clew to the Murderer.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 15.—The mystery surrounding the dead body identified as Jas. H. Miller in a cornfield near this city is still unsolved, there is every indication to show that he was murdered. C. R. Seifreid has telegraphed from Adrian, Ill., that he was well acquainted with Miller who was en route to that place from Oklahoma. Miller's body was buried in the potter's field.

Cholera in Japan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Reports to the United States Supervising Surgeons General of the Marine Hospital Service indicate that during the present epidemic of cholera in Japan there have been 42,706 cases and 28,513 deaths. These reports agree in saying that the disease was unusually virulent this year in certain districts, almost all the cases proving fatal. It is believed that the epidemic has reached its climax and is now declining.

Superintendent Stewart Removed.

OLATHE, Kan., Oct. 15.—At a meeting of the State Board of Charities to-day A. A. Stewart was removed as Superintendent of the State Deaf and Dumb Institution here, and H. G. Hammond of Chicago was appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Hammond is principal of the Day schools for the deaf in Chicago.

SWEEPING OVER FARMS.

Destructive Prairie Fires Raging in North Dakota.

GRAND FORK, N. D., Oct. 15.—Prairie fires are raising havoc with the farmers of the northern part of the State, and also with those living in Polk and Marshall Counties, on the Minnesota side of the river. Reports of large quantities of wheat being consumed, hay losses and frequently farm dwellings and barns are received by the insurance agencies in this city daily. The exceedingly dry fall has placed everything in condition to burn, and that rapidly. Contrary to all previous years, the fires this year will spread in stubble, which in many instances renders fire breaks useless. Several of the small towns have lately had close calls and were it not for the tireless efforts made in fighting back the fire would have burned them. The scare which the people of Devil's Lake experienced Saturday night is but a sample of that with which many other towns have met, and are liable to meet in the future unless extra precaution is taken.

CARRIAGE BUILDERS MEET.

Henry Timkin of St. Louis Is a Candidate for President.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 15.—The annual convention of the Carriage Builders' Nation met here to-day with an attendance estimated at over 2,000. The association was organized twenty-three years ago. It includes nearly all the prominent manufacturers of the different branches of the trade throughout the country in its ranks, and has for its object the mutual aid and support of its members, who come together once a year to discuss matters relating to their trade. At the morning session to-day Mayor McKisson delivered an address of welcome, after which the various officers and committees made their reports. A committee was appointed to recommend officers for the ensuing year. It is probable that George M. Studebaker of South Bend, Ind., will be named as the Presidente to succeeed President C. M. Britton of New York. Among the other candidates for President are Henry Timkin of St. Louis and Henry C. Stover of Chicago.

Herold—Sauter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MASCOUTAH, Ill., Oct. 15.—Dr. Hugo Herold and Miss Lizzette Sauter, prominent Mascoutah society people, were married here at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the elegant residence just erected by the bride's father, the well-known Mascoutah capitalist. Dr. Herold is a graduate of the Missouri Medical College and for a number of years resided in St. Louis. He is a nephew of the well-known St. Louis brewer and steamboat owner.

Bridg Builders' Awful Fall.

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 15.—John McVarrish was instantly killed and Dan Harrison, John Holmes and Joe Abraham, all bridge builders on the Northern Pacific, were probably fatally injured yesterday afternoon by falling 60 feet from a trestle among the rocks eight miles east of Butte.

Killed for a Burglar.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 15.—After Frank Napoli, an Italian storekeeper, had retired to bed Sunday night, his partner, Giovanni Sherota, who slept in the same room with him, came home. Napoli, who claims he mistook Sherota for a negro burglar, jumped up and cut his throat. Neighbors were summoned, but Sherota died without making a statement. It is claimed both men had been drinking heavily during the day, and Napoli has been arrested.

Holden Gets a Nolle Prosequi.

In the case of Joseph Holden, accused of highway robbery, a nolle prosequi was entered Monday in the Criminal Court. He is 60 years old and was arrested on the charge of holding up William Haare of 2706 Franklin avenue. Later Frank Watson surrendered himself for the crime and was given three years, but Holden was held for trial until it became apparent he could not be convicted.

TOO THIN?

Why Not Put on Flesh?

Why Not Take Loring's Predigested Fat Making Fat-Ten-U and Corpula?—These Foods Rejuvenate Worn-Out Men and Women—They Impart Vigor—They Give Health and Plumpness.

Dr. Hartley W. McMahon writes: "In a long general practice I have never found another remedy which imparted strength and repaired wasted animation so quickly and so completely as Corpula and Fat-Ten-U Foods. In cases of thinness unaccompanied by brain and nervous exhaustion they make flesh rapidly and permanently. Where such exhaustion exists they build up 'all run down' men and women in a way that is truly wonderful."

Mina Wesley Thomas, Cass avenue, near 12th street, writes: "I was run down and very thin. I took Corpula and Fat-Ten-U Foods five weeks. They gave me strength and vigor, made me 29 pounds heavier and developed my bust nicely."

Bessie Thayer Bestworth, Hawthorne avenue, near O'Fallon Park, writes: "In seven weeks Loring's Predigested Corpula and Fat-Ten-U Foods gave me a gain in weight of nearly fifty pounds and gave me a plumpness of form such as had never been mine before, developing my bust and making my thin neck round and smooth."

Caroline De Muth Lastrange, Lafayette avenue, near Grand, writes: "Our physician prescribed for my husband, Captain Lastrange, of the steamer Mississippi, Loring's Corpula and Fat-Ten-U Foods. He was in very bad shape from nervous exhaustion. In four weeks he gained in flesh 23 pounds and he is in all ways so vigorous in action, in appearance and in reality that he seems to be fifteen years younger than he was."

Price of Corpula, $1.00 per package.
Fat-Ten-U, $1.00 and $2.00 per package.

"In regard to the silver question, I cannot degrade myself in my own eyes and disgrace myself in the eyes of the people who have trusted me, by telling them that I have changed my views on a question that vitally concerns them. when I have not. What I have written on the money question I have written from conviction, and I do not hold my convictions subject to any one else's change of mind. I would as soon go down on Olive street and tell a lie to the first group of men I might meet as to tell the readers of the Post-Dispatch that I am no longer a bimetallist, but am now a believer in the single gold standard. I will not lie to them nor permit them to suppose that I am capable of deceiving them as to my real views."—Extract from letter of C. H. Jones to Joseph Pulitzer dated Sept. 14, 1895.

PRAISE FROM CHICAGO.

To paraphrase a familiar line—praise from an ancient rival is praise indeed. St. Louis received this high order of praise from Chicago men, who filled two columns of the Post-Dispatch yesterday with good things about this city.

In those interviews St. Louis was viewed from three distinct standpoints. Vice-President J. T. Harahan of the Illinois Central told of the growth and glowing prospects of St. Louis as a railroad center. On a solid basis the business of the city is shown to be rapidly developing by that best of all tests, the returns of the railroads.

Mr. A. J. Cooper testified to the remarkable improvement of St. Louis realty interests and to the splendid opportunities here for profitable investment—the best, he believed, in any city in the Union, not excepting his own Chicago.

Prof. E. B. Warman of Chicago viewed St. Louis from the aesthetic and educational standpoint and pronounced it a beautiful and progressive city, one of the choicest places of residence. He praised the completeness of our street railroad system and the elegance of the cars. He praised the parks, especially Forest Park, which he said was unequaled in natural beauty and attractiveness by any other park in the country. He praised our High School and educational advantages.

There are Chicago men who sneer at St. Louis and say it cannot hold a candle to Chicago; but they are Chicago men who have not seen St. Louis.

OLNEY AND JINGOISM.

The hints that the Administration under Secretary Olney's leadership intends to embark on a vigorous foreign policy [..]e so frequent and strong that there [..]ns cause for wonder if the new [..]tary of State proposes to pick up [..]ntle of the late James G. Blaine [..] as the champion of jingoism. [..]e rumors that Secretary Olney [..]ered a new point in the seal [..] which will utterly confound [..]n, that he proposes to give [..] lesson on the Monroe [..]hole world an exhibi[..] and power of the [..]rs of ultimatums [..]he Naval and [..]earty ac[..] meas-ures to enforce the respect due to the United States and to vindicate their rights. They want the Monroe doctrine enforced when there is occasion for its enforcement. They would support fair resentment, even to an appeal to arms, in case of insult and maltreatment. But they are opposed to any wanton aggressiveness in foreign affairs, to any demonstration of the majesty and power of the United States for spectacular and political purposes; in short, to any form of jingoism.

Secretary Olney may cherish the hope that by appealing to patriotic sentimentalism he can divert attention from his record in the Attorney-Generalship. But if he does, it is a vain hope. To embark on a career of jingoism, so far from winning him solid popularity, would only increase the unpopularity which he earned by shielding the trusts.

Again last Sunday the bona fide circulation of the Sunday Post-Dispatch exceeded 85,000 copies. The exact figures were 85,254 and the average circulation of the last four Sundays was 84,592. The circulation will continue to climb, because the Sunday Post-Dispatch will continue to improve.

FAIR WARNING.

It has been suggested that St. Louis follow the example of New York and put its street cleaning and sprinkling inspectors on bicycles.

The Post-Dispatch would gladly second the suggestion if it were not restrained by a feeling of humanity. Inspectors are human and are, therefore, entitled to consideration. Their lives and limbs and clothes are as dear to them as to plain unofficial folk.

Every one who has ridden a wheel knows that wheeling on wet and muddy streets is a horror. The wheelman is in constant danger of having his machine slip from under him to the great risk of limb and the ruin of clothes. Whether the wheel slips or not, the spattering of mud ruins the rider's clothes.

To compel inspectors, therefore, to ride wheels for the purpose of inspecting the cleaning and sprinkling of the streets as the cleaning and sprinkling is now done would be to force them to assume great risks, discomfort and loss.

But the Post-Dispatch feels justified in warning the inspectors that if the streets are not better cleaned and if the flooding of them by sprinkling carts is not stopped it may be necessary to sacrifice some of them for the public good.

THE COST OF SPOILS.

The value of the application of the merit system to municipal service has been peculiarly demonstrated in New York City.

Investigation discloses the fact that the merit system has saved the city $17,000 a year in salaries through a reduction of offices. When heads of departments discovered that they could not appoint favorite henchmen to places under the civil service regulations they found that they could dispense with the places altogether—hence the saving.

Experience with the merit system was not required to demonstrate that the spoils system is the most wasteful and burdensome that can be adopted. Reason would affirm this proposition if practice had not proved it. When the offices can be distributed as political rewards at the will of the appointive power the pressure to increase them is irresistible. Every new office is a plum for a political worker, a new source of strength for the machine, an additional stimulus to corruption.

Every city has suffered from this constant pressure for fresh pap under the spoils system, and few more than St. Louis, where the offices are now far in excess of the needs of the municipality and are still being increased despite the conclusion of a commission controlled by a majority of the party in power that there should be extensive cutting down of offices. The city is burdened with useless salaries in order to satisfy the requirements of the machine and the demands of party workers.

NO STARVATION HERE.

A correspondent of the Post-Dispatch suggests that a subscription be started to open a food and shelter depot, to be placed in charge of the Salvation Army, to provide for cases of destitution. He cites the case of London, where destitution is chronic, and says that most of the large cities of the United States have followed the example of London and are doing much good by means of such food and shelter depots.

The suggestion is one that it would be well to keep in mind, but at present there seems no necessity for carrying it out. No complaints have been received from destitute persons recently. The charitable organizations have not appealed for help, and the local officers of the Salvation Army have not given any hint that cases of destitution are prevalent.

The present season in St. Louis seems to be one of reasonable comfort for all classes. The weather is delightful. A good fall trade had opened the avenues of remunerative labor for all who desire to work. Several families are subsisting on the products of their efforts as tillers of the soil under the Detroit Plan, and the outlook for the winter is not alarming.

Less than a week ago New York had a case of starvation, but New York, like London, can always boast the abnormal. St. Louis has had no such cases since the panic, and the present outlook appears to be that the regular charitable organizations will be able to care for the indigent during the coming winter.

Should the emergency arise, St. Louis will no doubt be equal to it.

If esteemed contemporaries were not aware that the Post-Dispatch is the best newspaper property in the city, they would pay little attention to it. As matters are, they make a hopeless fight against it. Its circulation is visible to every one who cares to honestly investigate, and its advertising patrons are not deceived by envious misrepresentations.

With every factory in Cleveland, O., running full time, and some of them going day and night to catch up on orders on which they are months behind, the situation is peculiarly embarrassing to Mr. McKinley.

Cuspidors do not come so high in Quebec that the dead Premier's brother should [..] it i[..] the face of the new Premier, but that is what he has announced that he will do. Perhaps we should hesitate about annexing these Canadians, whose blood is so hot in a climate so cold.

Senator Sherman must be shocked to hear Senator Chandler talking bimetallism and representing the Democratic leaders as monometallists. If Mr. Sherman's financial teachings are no better received in New Hampshire than in the West the campaign of education is waning.

Walter Wellman thinks he has reason to believe that Mr. Carlisle will not recommend an increase of the tax on beer, and that a bill providing for such a tax would be vetoed. St. Louis would cut a big figure in any tax on beer, as we make the best article and the largest quantities.

Let not the Missouri friends of Mr. Harrison who are endeavoring to start his boom in this State be discouraged by that Indianapolis happening. Are we not assured by many faithful Republican journals that the Hoosier city election was purely local?

The British lion's tail dropped when he read that Don Dickinson would be a candidate for a Presidential nomination. The cowardly brute should have remembered that Washington is a much longer distance from Windsor than Detroit.

The labor employed in the Pennsylvania anthracite region is not only not American, but it is not being naturalized. Pennsylvania's pretended solicitude for American labor has always been a sham, worked for political purposes.

Ex-Consul Green does not believe the Corean Queen has been assassinated, because the Orientals are addicted to diplomatic misrepresentations. Possibly the whole story is intended for the marines, who have landed in force.

Ten thousand Arkansans stand ready at the call of the Governor to stop the prize fight. Possibly several thousand of these would like to get a glimpse of Fitz and Corbett, anyhow; such is human nature.

Instead of mingling with the politicians and talking up his third term, Mr. Cleveland, on reaching New York, merely dined with his doctor. Was this ambition?

Mr. Olney's olfactories may be so constructed that he can smell the blood of an Englishman very much sooner than he can detect the peculiar odor of a trust.

"How to down Filley" is the problem with the better class of Missouri Republicans. Perhaps the only way they will down him will be to swallow him.

Senator Chandler wants to be Vice-President. As Vice-President he would preside in the Senate. Would Senator Blackburn then get his ear?

Col. Clark looks upon St. Louis as the coming turf center. And where in all the land is there a better judge of turf matters than Col. Clark?

The rank of Lieutenant-General dies hard, and Gen. Miles would be happy if he could keep it alive while he is here.

Should Marlborough succeed in uniting the parents of his bride it will be a greater victory than Blenheim.

Fifer does not wish to be understood as introducing discordant music into the Illinois Republican camp.

It may at least be inferred that the Corean Queen has not gone off somewhere on her bicycle.

Senator Chandler has placed a big tack on Mr. Reed's bicycle route.

Spain can be humane when she is forced to be so.

They All Bike.

From the Chicago Record.

At the present rate of progress there will soon not be a single crowned head in Europe exempt from the bicycle mania, save Queen Victoria, whose age, girth and infirmities contribute to debar her from this form of exercise. The latest victims to this all-prevalent epidemic are the Prince of Wales, the Queen Regent of Spain and the Emperor of Germany. The latter is having a very elaborate track constructed for his use in the park by which his palace at Potsdam is surrounded. In his case the acquisition of the art of riding the wheel has been more than usually difficult owing to the complete paralysis of his left arm, which, being deformed and withered, is incapable of doing its part in preserving his balance.

Sherman Not Up-to-Date.

From the Kansas City Star.

Senator Sherman of Ohio declares that the business revival is not general and will not become so until there shall be some more tariff tinkering with high protection hot irons and solder. The country at large would be much obliged to the Senator if he would give some particulars as to the branches of business which have not improved. Even domestic wools, about which he comes nearest to particularizing, according to to-day's reports, are "more sought after and in better position."

Gen. Grant's Sons.

From the San Francisco Call.

It is an interesting coincidence that two sons of Gen. Grant appeared last Monday at important meetings held in widely separated parts of the country. Jesse R. Grant of Montana, youngest son of the illustrious soldier, was chosen chairman of the fourth national irrigation Congress, held at Albuquerque, N. M., and Col. Fred Grant made the principal speech on that day before the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, which held its annual reunion at Cincinnati.

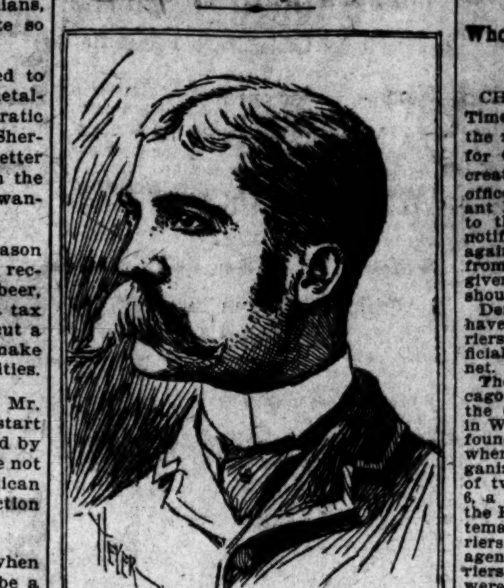

The Humble Life.

From the Boston Budget.

Three roads, diverging, wend their several ways.
Along the first
The glad notes burst
In splendor through the long bright days,
The pathway's name
Is Fame.
Along the second splendid castles rise
Before the wondering eyes.
Wealth in this pathway lies.
Along the third are common flowers,
And bees hum through unchanging hours.
Yet closer seen the flowers have fairest hue,
This is the way
Called "Every day."

RICHARD BARKER SHELTON.

WELL-KNOWN ST. LOUISAN.

Frank D. Seward.

Frank D. Seward is a native of New York and is 36 years of age. He was engaged in the stove manufacturing business at Bloomington, Ill., before coming to St. Louis. He became a partner in the Dodge-Seward Confectionery Co. some years since, the firm being afterward changed to the F. D. Seward Confectionery Co. on the death of Mr. Dodge. Mr Seward has for four years consecutively been elected Secretary of the National Confectioners' Association of the United States. He is a member of the Mercantile Club and the Royal Arcanum.

MEN OF MARK.

Congressman Heatwole of Minnesota will be the handsomest member of the next House of Representatives.

The heaviest man whose weight is recorded authentically was Miles Darden of Tennessee. He weighed a little less than 1,000 pounds.

Prof. Dyche, the Kansas man who brought back such a collection of stuff from the North Pole, was a poor lad, and has taught himself most of what he knows.

Guerrita, who is now the first bull fighter in Spain, has appeared in fifty-eight fights this season and is engaged for nineteen more. He receives $1,200 for each appearance. His clear income amounts to over $60,000 a year besides the presents made to him.

To-day King George of Greece is one of the wealthiest princes in Christendom. He has erected quietly and without attracting much attention a superb palace for himself about fifteen miles out from Copenhagen, and it is thither that for some time past he has been quietly transferring all his treasures and favorite belongings.

Henry Howe, a member of Sir Henry Irving's company, is the oldest actor in the world. He is 84 years of age and has been an actor since he abandoned his creed as a Quaker, fifty-six years ago. He played at the Haymarket, London, for over forty years. Queen Victoria asked for his autograph in 1892. He is in fine health and is very young in spirit. He has played with Irving for thirteen years.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Gen. Cassius M. Clay has tired of having governesses in his house for his young wife and has sent her to school.

There are now twenty-five women in Chicago who are practicing lawyers, and fifteen more will soon be admitted to the bar.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is one of the most thrifty of women. The author of "Robert Elsmere" has saved $100,000 from her receipts from her novels.

Two women of Salt Lake City are running for the State Legislature. One is Mrs. Lilian Pardee, a college instructor and an all-around club woman. The other candidate is Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells, editor of a woman's paper.

Mrs. John Coffee, aged 104 years, mother of Michael Coffee of Moosup, Conn., arrived in that village the other day from Ireland. She is said to be the oldest person who ever crossed the Atlantic Ocean.

Mrs. Gen. Grant has purchased the house of ex-Senator Edmunds at 211 Massachusetts avenue, Washington, and will move into it on her return from New York. The house was occupied for a time by Senator Washburn, the rich Minneapolis miller, and afterward by Senator Edmunds, and was taken by Secretary Olney when he first became Attorney-General.

Our Improved Corn.

From the New York Commercial-Advertiser.

Among the things to be grateful for this year is the exceptional tenderness, milkiness and sweetness of the corn for table use. For years the so-called roasting-ears have not not differed from ordinary corn, but this year the real article is in the market.

OFF GO THEIR HEADS.

Wholesale Dismissal of Letter Carriers in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 15.—A special to the Times-Herald from Washington says that the mail which left Washington last night for Chicago carried 173 letters which will create an earthquake in the Chicago Post-office. They were sent by the first Assistant Postmaster-General and are addressed to the letter carriers in Chicago. They notify 173 men that charges have been filed against them sufficient to cause dismissal from the service, and that they will be given ten days to show cause why they should not be removed.

Derelictions of the most serious nature have been discovered among the letter carriers. Even some of the subordinate officials of the office have been caught in the net.

The state of affairs disclosed in the Chicago office and sub-stations has astonished the officers of the Post-office Department in Washington. The service has even been found worse than it was in Philadelphia, where a wholesale cleaning out and re-organization was necessary. For a period of twenty-eight days, beginning September 6, a large force of special secret agents of the Post-office Department conducted a systematic espionage of the Chicago letter carriers. When the reports of the special agents were all in, it was found that 800 carriers had been reported. The cases of 173 were serious enough to demand attention individually. It cannot be told until their explanations have been made how many of these carriers will be removed. It is safe to guess, however, that fifty will be removed altogether, and probably fifty more will be placed on the substitute list. Others will be suspended from five to twenty days, according to the gravity of their offenses and the plausibility of their explanations.

The secrecy with which the whole investigation has been managed is one of its most noteworthy features. Presumably not a single carrier knows that he has been shadowed by secret agents. Postmaster Hesing knows nothing about it. The whole undertaking was managed from Washington and was the result of long and careful preparation.

In passing upon the offenses with which they are charged, the same rule will govern. The name of the offending carrier will not be revealed to any one. When the final dismissals are made, there will be no way to discover the cause in any case unless the carrier himself reveals it.

THE DEAD COMES TO LIFE.

After Twelve Years a Minnesota Man Recovers His Identity.

LONG PRAIRIE, Minn., Oct. 15.—For 12 years Mrs. Wickham Silvernail has mourned the death of her husband, who mysteriously disappeared in 1883; but now he has turned up with a fortune as William G. Silvey of Sopala, I. T. Mrs. Silvernail received a letter from him a few days ago in which he stated that after he left Long Prairie his mind was a blank so far as his past was concerned until he saw the name of Mrs. William Silvernail in a paper as having applied for a pension. This name recalled the forgotten past and Silvernail, who had called himself Silvey for the reason that a card with that name was found in his pocket when he was taken to a hospital in some city he does not remember, realized that he had been practically dead for many years, and was now a totally different man. On finding who he really was he lost no time in communicating with his family, and is now on the way here. He will take his family back with him.

A HITCH IN THE LAW.

Board of Election Commissioners Finds Difficulty in Redistricting the City.

The Board of Election Commissioners has begun the work of redistricting the city under the new election law. The board is in a quandary over a condition of fact with which the law is at variance. The law specifically states that the new precincts must not contain to exceed 300 voters, and that the redistricting must be done on the basis of the vote cast at the general election of 1892.

It has been found that in all the wards lying west of Jefferson avenue the population has about doubled since the 1892 election, and if the work is based on these figures the new precincts will contain more than 300 voters, contrary to law.

Secretarw W. F. Saunders says it will be necessary to keep the number in each precinct below 300, and the clause requiring the board to base its work on the 1892 returns will have to be disregarded to a greater or less extent. It will be followed as closely as possible, however. It will take several weeks to complete the work, and a new map will have to be made.

John Faudi, formery Chief Deputy Recorder under Chas. P. Higgins, has completed the work of arranging the records of the office and resigned. He has taken a position in the United States Sub-Treasury under George H. Small.

FORT WAYNE'S CENTENNIAL.

The Indiana City Is Celebrating It With Much Enthusiasm.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 15.—The celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of Ft. Wayne's existence as a city, which is to continue for four days, was begun this morning, and large crowds are in attendance from northern Indiana, southern Michigan and northwestern Ohio. The day was ushered in at 6 o'clock by firing a salute of one hundred guns and the ringing of all the bells of the city. At 10 o'clock the Art Building, containing relics of pioneer days and art displays, was opened with interesting exercises. This afternoon an immense bicycle parade was given over the paved streets, followed by bicycle races and base ball games. This evening the opening Centennial meeting will be held at the big Princess Rink.

Cleveland's Lake Front.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 15.—Between midnight and daybreak this morning the city government took possession of the lake front, which has been in litigation for many years between the railroad and the city. The Mayor and his Cabinet were personally on the ground and directed the work by which a number of streets were opened and graded that have been closed for years and were opened to the water's edge. WOMEN AND HOME

Isn't This Pretty?

Here is a lovely costume in mauve cambric, trimmed with bows, belt and shoulder straps in turquoise-blue brocaded ribbon.

An Aromatic Bath.

A very old recipe for an aromatic bath, found in a very old book dealing with herbs and simples, runs thus: In a sufficient quantity of soft water boil for the space of two or three minutes one or more of the following aromatic herbs: Anise, clove, July flowers, balm, sweet basil, bastard marjoram, wild thyme, wild mint or any other herbs that have an agreeable scent. Having strained off the liquor from the herbs, add to it a little brandy or camphorated spirits of wine. About half a pint of this liquor added to the bath water will have a delightfully soothing and refreshing effect.

Pewter Platters Again.

The woman who has carefully cherished as heirlooms old-time pewter platters finds herself just in fashion by way of table appointments. In private houses, where the host prefers to carve, metal platters are in great favor for fish, roasts, game, etc. If without convenience of underneath hot water receptacle, as many of them are, this can be supplied at any leading housefurnishing establishment.

Discriminating Against Bloomers.

In Evanston, Ill., there is a hotel which, in the words of the clerk, "draws the line at bloomers." Wheeling parties in which there are bloomered bicyclists may not dine at this conservative hostelry. Doubtless in the course of time there will be interesting suits brought against the proprietor if he persists in his determination to exclude bloomers, for it is a rather grave matter to refuse a lady admission to a public dining-room because she evinces a preference for the bloomer costume.

Dumpling Soup.

When the meat is nearly done put some of the liquid in which it was boiled in a clean soup kettle. Add to this three chopped onions, one-half teaspoonful of pepper and drop in dumplings made as follows: Take one pint of sweet milk and mix it with three teacupfuls of flour, in which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been thoroughly sifted. Mix the milk and flour carefully, to prevent lumps, then add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Drop this into the boiling soup, a teaspoonful at a time, and boil until tender and flaky.

Miss Pullman's Duty.

Miss Florence Pullman, daughter of the head of the company, whose marriage with a foreign nobleman of questionable antecedents has been repeatedly announced and as often denied, draws a salary of $10,000 a year for naming the cars. In the performance of her duties Miss Pullman evinces a decided preference for names which sound euphoniously and which have a soft and musical quality. Most of the names of the cars are of Spanish origin.

Sweet Potato Pie.

Take one pint of sweet potatoes after they have been stewed, put in a sieve and press and strain dry as possible; then set away to cool; beat four eggs very lightly and stir them gradually into the sweet potatoes a little at a time, with a pint of rich cream and half a pound of sugar; put in a lump of butter about the size of an egg; add spices to suit your taste; when all is mixed stir very hard; line your pie dishes with puff paste and put the mixture in. This will make four custards.

The Nun.

From Harper's Bazar.

'Tis not for you, my lady fair,
To fold your dimpled hands,
To darker hood your raven hair,
And on your lily brow to wear
The sister's whiter bands.

Those eyes which mock the cloister cloths
And glitter through the gloom
Too brightly tempt us mortal moths
For one whose virgin soul betroths
The convent for a groom.

Let those retire who quit mankind
To measure scorn for scorn—
The weak of heart and strong of mind,
Who there may take their wounds to bind
Or guard against the thorn.

But you? Ah, no, my lady fair;
The maker's marks are plain;
Such cheeks could never bring despair;
The crimson currents coursing there
And not for cold disdain.

But if you needs must take the vail,
And henceforth dwell apart,
Come where the Credo and the Hail
Are loyal love's own tenderest tale,
And cloister in my heart.

THE DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

I am troubled with costiveness and quite frequent attacks of dizziness. Will you please suggest a good remedy?

Pure sulphate of soda is usually very beneficial in such cases. Take one teaspoonful in a gobletful of hot water one hour before breakfast every morning.

Will you please print a good remedy for dry and scaly eczema on the face? The itching is very troublesome.

Try a mixture consisting of equal parts of zinc ointment and tar ointment. Apply it twice a day.

I am greatly troubled with severe night sweats. Will you oblige me with a remedy?

You may find a very good remedy in the aromatic sulphuric acid. Take ten drops in water at bedtime.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Judges, Please Take Notice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Please insert the inclosed ad. and send the bill to Messrs. Priest and Lehman:

WANTED—A Circuit Judge who is hostile to Gov. Stone, holds the advocacy of free silver to be "lunacy," believes Joe Pulitzer to be a philanthropist and sage, is convinced that Col. Jones is ruining the Post-Dispatch, and who will allow the corporation attorneys, Priest and Lehman, to write his decision for him. Any Circuit Judge possessing these qualifications and who will make affidavit thereto can obtain a "case" by applying at the office of the aforesaid attorneys.

Things have reached a pretty pass when Joseph Pulitzer can sit in his "villa" two thousand miles away and order his dummies to insult the Governor of Missouri and the entire bench of Circuit Judges of St. Louis.

King's Highway Unrepublican.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The vituperation indulged in by your correspondent, "W. J. B.," in calling people "lunatics," "idiots," etc., who differ with him and wish to give to King's highway some more appropriate name is regrettable. This gentleman should not permit his love for htings regal to upset his mental equipoise. It would be very sad to think that "W. J. B.'s" "tinge of delightful romance" (sic) should be dissipated by changing the name of the street. It is hard to understand how anyone can find romance in such a name. In England the original King's highway (route de roi) is now popularly and generally known as "Rotten Row." Romance here? Billingsgate rather. But then, there is no accounting for taste and the endless variety of them.

My contention is that the present name of this street is ridiculously inconsistent with our political system, repugnant to the sense of honest patriotism and repellent to every true American, who need go no farther than "his school book" to learn what little regard kings have for republican institutions. A Free Coinage Bogy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Everybody knows that at present the silver contained in our dollar is worth only 53 cents as bullion. It is self-evident that under free coinage the value of the dollar and of the silver which it contains must be exactly the same; that the 371¼ grains of silver cannot be worth less than the dollar, nor can the free coinage dollar be worth more than the silver it contains. But here is the point: There are two distinct ways in which this can happen under free coinage. One way is that the value of the silver shall increase so that the value of the 371¼ grains of silver bullion in the markets shall be equal to what our dollar is worth at present. The other way is that the value of our dollar shall decline to 53 cents, the present bullion value of 371¼ grains of silver. The advocates of free silver fail to understand that our dollar is not a fixed, unalterable quantity. Anybody who has studied the course of the gold premium during our civil war will readily appreciate this. During that whole time that we spoke of gold premiums, the value of gold bullion had not changed a particle; outside of our country it was worth exactly the same when it was quoted at 280 premium over our dollar as before the war when it had no premium. It was our dollar that was falling and fluctuating in value. When gold was not at a premium our $1 was equal in value to 25 8-10 grains of gold. With the defeat of our armies at Chancellorville the gold premium rose to 280, that is to say our credit was not so good and our $1 had depreciated so that it was only equal to 8 3-10 grains of gold. With our victory at Antietam the premium fell to 232, that is to say, our credit improved and our $1 rose in value to equal 10 grains of gold. Neither our victories or defeats could have any effect on the value of gold bullion; it remained the same. And now we can by free silver coinage accomplish exactly the same thing as by the defeat of our armies. We can destroy our credit and send gold to a premium, which is equivalent to depreciating our $1 to a discount. Fifty-three cents of our present dollar are equal to 12 3-10 grains of gold. With gold at a premium of 93 per cent our whole $1 will only equal 12 3-10 grains of gold, to wit: will only be worth what 53 cents are worth now.

Reincarnation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

So long as we set up the causes of re-birth, I think reincarnation is compulsory; that it is possible to work out these causes and by avoiding the setting up of fresh causes, we may rise above the necessity of re-birth. Reincarnation, or re-embodiment, is a law in nature; all matter is continually changing forms as science acknowledges, hence why not man? Instead of being repulsive, I think reincarnation is the only law by which harmony once destroyed may be restored to equilibrium.

In regard to the negress mentioned, if she had never existed before in a human form and had been placed here for the first time, under such circumstances it would seem a cruel and unmerited fate. But if we look at it in the light that her present circumstances were merited by past actions, our own likewise, I think we will be more inclined to recognize the supremacy of a law of perfect justice in preference to one of "special providence."

Through reincarnation we are entitled to as many chances to rise in the scale of evolution and progress as could be desired. One short life is scarcely sufficient in which to realize even a few of our cherished ideals. And for what end then are these ideals implanted in the minds of man, if he be not enabled to realize them at some time or other.

In case the "Student" is not aware of the existence of a theosophical branch society in St. Louis, I would state that meetings are held every Sunday at 3 p. m. at hall southwest corner of Tenth and Olive streets, to which he is cordially invited; also all others interested in the law of "universal brotherhood."

ANOTHER STUDENT.

St. Louis, Oct. 7.

March of the Millionaire.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Forty-five years ago a man worth $100,000 was an object of remark and envy. To-day such a man is obscure and unnoticed and is considered to have laid merely the beginnings of a very moderate part of the wealth necessary to make a living. Forty-five years ago there was but one man in this country worth more than $5,000,000.

At present there are several Astors, each of whom is worth at least $50,000,000. Ten times as many men are worth $20,000,000 to-day as there were forty-five years ago who were worth $1,000,000, and several men are worth now over $100,000,000 each. This state of things is developing more and more rapidly, and it can be demonstrated that at the present day less than 100,000 persons, constituting only about one two hundred and fiftieth part of our working force, are possessed of incomes which enable them to save about three-fifths of all the wealth annually saved in this country. As wealth is substantially all reproduced within less than thirty years, this means that within thirty years 100,000 persons will own three-fifths of the entire wealth of the United States—land, houses, improvements, goods, chattels, personal property of every kind.

BRAINY MEN EXCHANGE IDEAS.

Convention of the American Institute of Architects.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Upward of 200 of the Leading Architects of America Assemble at the St. Nicholas.

One of the most interesting of all the annual association meetings held in the country is that of the American Institute of Architects. The twenty-ninth convention of this body began at 10 o'clock to-day in the banquet hall of the St. Nicholas Hotel, and will continue over Wednesday and Thursday.

There was a large proportion of the 454 active members of the institute on hand at the opening of the convention by its President, David H. Burnham of Chicago. Previously to the call to order these bright men of art and of structure, the earliest of all arts, the noblest of all occupations—the building of homes—spent an hour in the lobbies and areas of the hotel, exchanging greetings and inquiries of the year since the separation at New York last October. There was a great deal of jollity and good humor among them. They are as fine a body of men socially as this City of Conventions has seen within its confines for many a day. This is the first time in the history of the institute that St. Louis has had the honor of entertaining its members as an organization, and right royally it is being done.

Elaborate arrangements have been made by the local committee of architects for the entertainment of their visiting brethren, and the three days of their stay will be marked by a constant blending of hospitality with the more serious affairs of the session. The Chairman of this committee is A. F. Rosenheim of the St. Louis Chapter, and his associates are Charles K. Ramsey, Thomas C. Young, W. B. Ittner and E. A. Manny. Three outside members, George B. Post, Cass Gilbert and W. W. Clay, are also on the Arrangements Committee. Mr. Rosenheim has been a very busy man for a week preparing for this big event in the architectural world, and the prospect, which is already in process of realization, of a most happy and successful meeting is due very largely to his zeal.

The order of business of the three days' sessions is as follows:

1. Report of the Board of Directors.
2. Report of the Treasurer and appointment of the Auditing Committee.
3. Report of chapters, a synopsis of which will be read by the Secretary.
4. Reports of standing committees: Committee on Foreign Correspondence, W. L. B. Jenney, Chairman, of Chicago; Committee on Education, Henry Van Brunt, Chairman, of Kansas City; Committee on Publication and Library, W. L. B. Jenney, Chairman, of Chicago; Committee on Uniform Contract, S. A. Treat, Chairman, of Chicago; Committee on Conservation of Public Buildings, R. M. Upjohn, Chairman, of New York; Committee on Fire Protection, T. M. Clark, Chairman, of Boston.
5. Consideration of the annual address of the President, of the report of the Board of Directors, and of the reports of the chapters and standing committees, followed by the appointment of special committees to which recommendations contained therin shall be referred.
6. Report of Special Committee on the Proportionate Representation of Chapters in the Board of Directors, and consideration of the same, and of proposed amendments to the by-laws.

In the evening there will be a formal reception at the Museum of Fine Arts to the Fellows of the Institute and their friends, as guests of the St. Louis chapter, on the occasion of the opening of the exhibition of the St. Louis Architectural Club, and an address of welcome by Mayor Walbridge.

President Burnham was greeted with a hearty round of applause on his assumption of the chair. In the absence of a gavel the famous World's Fair builder used his knuckles, to the manifest amusement of his fellows, and when silence came he spoke as follows:

"I congratulate you on assembling in this noble city. Hospitality seems to be especially at home here in St. Louis. Her hand is ever gracefully extended, and is ever most pleasant to the grasp, when once she opens her door to a worthy guest, as she has done to-day in your case.

"Our present membership is 454. Of those Fellows who have been forever removed from our earthly vision Richard Morris Hunt ranks first. When the door of the future opened and let this giant stalk through we almost heard the shout of welcome from the mighty masters who had gone before him. They must at once have recognized his right to such a place among them by his lofty bearing and the noble aspect of his countenance. May he breathe upon our souls that pure knowledge of law which he is now enjoying, that through us the men who follow us may be enlightened.

"There has been no change during the year in the attitude of the United States Government toward the architects of the country. The provisions of the Tarsney bill, by which all the buildings may be designed through a competition of architects, lies dormant. This is because the Secretary of the Treasury still holds that he cannot proceed under that bill until after a clause in an enactment of 1875 shall have been repealed, which clause, as you may remember, is to the effect that no government building shall be commenced until after the design for it shall have previously been made by the Supervising Architect of the Treasury. Last spring Congress appropriated $4,000,000 for a new Chicago Post-office Building, $30,000 of which was for draughtsmanship and expert services. Under that act the Secretary of the Treasury is reported to have established a department in the Supervising Architect's office called the 'Chicago department.'

"It is also said that the Secretary will employ a Chicago practitioner to make the design for the building I have mentioned, but it is understood that the architect must go to Washington as an assistant to the supervising architect, and that he must be paid for his services out of the $30,000, such portion of that sum being used for his salary as may not be necessary for draughtsmanship and expert service. This would seem to require the architect to sacrifice his residence and his time for little else than glory. The precedent once established would probably be followed by the Government of the United States, and thereafter Government work would not be placed in the hands of an architect unless he were willing to neglect his private practice and do it practically without compensation. If the National Government adopts this method, will not States, counties and cities follow? Even if it stops with the Government I fear the result will be injurious to the architects and to the architecture of the country.

"The practice of architecture has been rapidly improving during the past few years. This is true in the design and in the execution of the architects themselves. Not only are the schools and opportunities for study increasing, but a higher class of men are coming forward in the profession itself. Our own schools throughout the country are educating architectural assistants who have a better training than was wont to be the case. Besides this, the foreign schools are doing much for our American youths. I am informed that until this year the French school has never issued its full diploma to an American, though many of our countrymen have been under its tutelage. It is, therefore, a fact worth mentioning that two Americans, John Van Pelt and Herbert Hale, have taken the full diploma of the French school of Fine Arts. Surely it can not be claimed that originality and imagination will be dwarfed by a training in the knowledge of fundamental laws, the observance of which lies at the bottom of all good architecture.

"We ought to rejoice over the schools of architecture because the teachers in them are becoming more skillful, and because so many of our eager, talented American youths are at work in them. A most notable fact, involving great benefit to our profession, is the recent establishment in Rome of a school for the study of the classics. It is intended for those who have already become proficient in the application of fundamental principles of architecture. It has only been in operation about one year, but has already accomplished valuable work. The promise of architecture for the Twentieth Century is hopeful.

"The need of a home for the institute is growing. At no distant day we should possess permanent fireproof quarters, where may be gathered our own records and those sent to us by learned societies of the world, also the portraits of our distinguished dead, and, what is of still greater value, the writings and drawings made by their hands. These can be gathered now, and the records of the fellows who have passed away may be made quite complete. A fund to buy a lot and to place thereon a fireproof building should be started at once, and I recommend that steps be taken to this end. Into such a national building might be gathered many highly valuable documents and designs left by the distinguished fellows of this institute who have passed away during the past twenty years. A family without a home does not gain from the community the consideration which is its due; and the institute will not possess its full and proper influence until its meetings shall be held under its own roof, where traditions of its noble dead shall surround its living members. Let us have an abiding place where the tablets that speak of the works of our brothers shall invite us to emulate their labors.

"The policy of compelling members of the institute to remain members of a chapter has been tried long enough to give it a fair test. It seems to me that it has not proven satisfactory. Has not the time come to change it? It appears evident that the rule we have been trying to observe, namely, that chapters may not over-lap each other, is impracticable and should be abolished. I can see no good reason why two or more chapters should not be formed in the same territory. It is quite possible that some of our fellows will, in the future, desire to form themselves into a chapter for the purpose of furthering fine art alone, and there may be others who will have quite different ends in view. Should not each be allowed to organize a chapter? Will not the institute be benefited thereby?"

At the conclusion of the President's address Secretary Stone read a report from the Board of Directors, showing the practical operation of the Institute for the year. There were nineteen resignations, seventeen elections and one rejection—the latter by eleven negative votes in a letter ballot of the whole membership. The board proposes an amendment, changing grades of membership as follows:

1, practicing members; 2, associate practicing members; 3, a third grade of associate members; 4, junior members; 5, such other grades of honorary, corresponding, life or other class as any chapter may create.

The board also recommends its own abolition and the substitution of an Executive Committee of seven, to include the President, Secretary and Treasurer. The board consists of twenty-nine members, and it says of itself that it is too cumbersome a body for executive work.

The report shows progress in three States, New York, California and Illinois, toward laws to license architects and to prohibit architectural practice under a penalty without examination and license by a State board; but there has not been, the report says, unanimous support from the best men in the profession. The board thinks a higher standard of admission to the Institute should be adopted, to render membership more conclusive evidence than it now is of fitness to practice architecture.

Nominations for honorary members were submitted as follows: I. Q. A. Ward and Augustus St. Gaudens, sculptors, New York; John La Farge, New York; John S. Sargent, Paris; E. A. Abbey and E. H. Blashfield, artists, New York. Also a number of other nominations for corresponding members.

O'Fallon Park Plans.

The Board of Public Improvements did not meet this morning owing to a lack of quorum. They will meet at 3 p. m., when Water Commissioner Holman, who was at the Chain of Rocks, will be back.

At this afternoon's meeting the plans for O'Fallon Park will be approved and a date for letting the work will be fixed. The plans are for a lake 900 feet long, 350 feet wide in the middle of an oval elliptical shape, and four feet deep. It will cost $5,000 and must be finished in six months.

CALLED OUT AND SHOT DOWN.

Eugene Vanay, Colored, Killed by a Mob in Tennessee.

WHITE GIRL IN HIS HOUSE.

Believed the Crowd Only Intended Whipping Him, but His Defiance Brought On His Death.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Eugene Vanay, a negro living near Manchester, in Coffey County, was called out from his cabin last night by a crowd of white men and shot to death. He was charged with keeping a young white girl named Daisy Copeland at his house.

The girl is an orphan and half-witted. It is thought that the intention of the crowd was to whip Venay, but that he was defiant and threatening, and thereby brought on his death. The victim had several bulet holes through his body. He was 22 years old. Aside from this affair, he bore a good character.

SPIRITUALISTS MEET.

Opening Proceedings of the National Association at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The National Spiritualist Association began its third annual session here to-day, and it will continue until Thursday. There will be three sessions each day, and it has arranged to have the meetings addressed by some of the most prominent speakers and best mediums of the country.

This morning's session convened at 10 o'clock. The opening address was delivered by the President of the association, H. D. Barrett. Mrs. Cora L. Richmond delivered the address of welcome to the delegates and Mrs. Colby Luther responded on behalf of the delegates. The standing committees were appointed, and the Committee on Credentials and Rules reported.

The afternoon session will be devoted to the report of the President, the Secretary, the Treasurer and the Finance Committee. At the evening session Mrs. A. M. Jacques will present a national flag to the convention, which will be accepted by Mr. Milan O. Edson. Mrs. Rachael Walcott will deliver a short address, after which there will be a test by the well-known medium, Dr. G. C. B. Ewell. Mrs. Ida P. A. Whitlock and Dr. George A. Fuller will deliver short addresses.

To-morrow's session will be devoted to routine business both in the morning and afternoon. In the evening there will be addresses by Mr. M. T. Longley, Prof. W. M. Lockwood and Mrs. M. E. Cadwallader, and tests by Mrs. J. J. Whitney and Miss Maggie Gault.

The morning and afternoon meetings of the third day's session will be taken up with regular business, including the election of delegates to the International Congress of Spiritualists and the election of officers. In the evening there will be addresses by Mrs. A. M. Glading, Mrs. Luther and Mrs. Richmond, and tests by Mrs. Maggie Waite and Mrs. Edgar W. Emerson. Music and devotional exercises will be features of every session.

PUSHING THE RATES DOWN.

Western Roads Determined to Making Cutting Unprofitable.

The Western railroads, of which Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Trinidad, Colo., are common points, are keeping up their rate war with undiminished vigor. In addition to the various cuts of the past two weeks, which arose from the Santa Fe's determination to stop secret cutting, Monday morning another cut was made, including all rates from fifth class through to class E inclusive. These rates are now 20 cents from Kansas City; 25 cents from St. Louis and 30 cents from Chicago. Before the first cut was made the rates were fifth class, 87 cents; class A, 99½ cents; class B, 74½ cents; class C, 62 cents; class D, 53 cents; class E, 46 cents. Each of these rates is now 25 cents from St. Louis.

Wednesday two meetings will be held at Chicago to consider the rate situation, one of general freight agents, the other of vice presidents. It is thought an agreement will be reached and rates restored. If restored the advance cannot take effect for two weeks as under the law ten days' notice of an advance must be given, dating from the filing of the notice with the Commissioners at Washington.

AIDED BY THE STORM.

Cubans Take Advantage of the Damage Incurred by Spaniards.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A local paper has the following advices from Havana under date of Oct. 8: Taking advantage of the great damage done in the western provinces of Havana and Pinar del Rio by the recent storm, the Cubans are pushing the revolutionary movement there. A patriot group was formed last week at La Guira, fifty miles from this city. It is commanded by Perico del Gado, once a famous bandit captain. He is said to have now 600 men well armed and equipped.

On Sunday all available troops here and at Santiago de Las Vegas, Bejucal and San Antonio de Las Banos were ordered to move West. The railroad bridges were carried away by the flood, and troops cannot move, large tracts of land being under water. Vuelta Abajo Province suffered terribly from the storm. The flood washed away houess and people. The tobacco fields and plants have been so damaged it is feared no crop will be harvested this season, if reports are not exaggerated.

BOARDED BY THE SPANIARDS.

An American Skipper Charged With Smuggling Arms for Cuba.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A special to the Herald from Havana says:

The American brigantine Harriet G., which arrived at Nuevitas a week ago with a cargo of coal for the Puerto Principe Railway, has been boarded in the bay and searched by an armed Spanish force, whose commanding officer accused the vessel's master, Capt. Miller, of having brought arms and munitions for the rebels and smuggled them ashore.

Capt. Miller denies the charge, and nothing of a compromising nature was discovered by the soldiers during their search. He has filed a formal protest before the United States commercial agent, to be forwarded, through Consul-General Williams, to the State Department at Washington.

EX-PRIEST WAGNER.

His Trial for Embezzling Continued Until the November Term.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 15.—Casper J. Wagner, the ex-priest, was arraigned in the Criminal Court for trial this morning, and, on application of attorneys for the defendant, the case was continued until the November term, at which time Wagner will be tried on the charge of embezzlement and possibly on the charges of rape and kidnapping. No mention was made of bail today, as Wagner does not desire to be released, but will remain in jail pending a trial of his case.

WHAT AN EDITORIAL!

In the Lafayette (Ind.) Daily Call.

The Editor of This Newspaper Tells a Strange Story,

And Vouches for Its Absolute Truth and Accuracy.

Prominence of Paper and Startling Nature of Facts

Make Article of Vast Interest to the Public.

"Jacob J. Reitemeier," says the Lafayette (Ind.) Daily Call, of Jan. 18th, "the well-known compositor in the Call news-room, son of one of our oldest and best known German citizens, has a daughter just three years old last Saturday, who almost from her birth, has been afflicted with spinal meningitis, and has just experienced a recovery which is little short of miraculous.

"Mr. and Mrs. Reitemeier were three years ago made the proud parents of twin sisters, one of whom died on the 5th of June two years ago, with spinal meningitis. The latter part of the same month her surviving twin sister was attacked with the disease in a most aggravated form. The family had the constant services throughout the whole summer of some of our best physicians, three of whom in turn examined and attended the cases. The child was unable to walk, almost unable to move, and entirely helpless.

"The physicians, one and all, agreed that the case was hopeless that nothing could be done for this child. Their opinion was that she could never be cured, and probably would soon die. From every thing done for her she experienced no benefit, and the physicians, candidly stating that they could do nothing for the cure of the child, were dismissed, and beyond mild domestic treatment, rubbing with alcohol, etc., to alleviate immediate symptoms, nothing was done for her, and the sad hearted parents only waited the summons which they felt must soon come for her final release from her afflictions.

"Thus matters went on for about a year, the little one changing, if at all, only for the worse, and steadily but surely going down. One year this month, Mr. Reitemeier informs us, attracted by the advertisement of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, in the Call, he and his wife finally concluded to try it, though with but very slender hope of deriving any benefit. There was a decided improvement in the child's condition with the use of the first bottle, which continued during the second, and before the third bottle was all used the child was able to walk upright, and apparently cured. Thereupon the use of the medicine was discontinued, and has not been resumed.

"In the year which has since elapsed the child has grown to be as fat and healthy and active a little one as any parent need wish to see, and Mr. and Mrs. Reitemeier say they feel beyond a doubt that the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy saved her life. The case is certainly a very remarkable one, and the well-known and reliable character of the parties gives it especial importance and significance."

This is indeed a most wonderful cure, and a great triumph for Dr. Greene's Nervura, and occurring as it did in the Daily Call's official family, the fact will have the greatest weight in influencing all who are sick or ailing to use this truly marvelous restorer of health. This grand remedy should not be classed with ordinary patent medicines, as it is the discovery of a successful physician who has the largest practice in the world among nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He can be consulted without charge in regard to any case, personally or by letter, by all who use the medicine.

Straw Bond Cancelled.

Judge Edmunds Tuesday declared the $500 bond of Stephen Hillner, a saloonkeeper at Ninth and Market streets, void because Hillner has transferred his property and if he were accepted as security now the bond would be a "straw" one.

Hillner went security last March for Grant Miller and Adam Ostherheimer, charged with grand larceny. Judge Edmunds was notified Tuesday that Hillner had transferred his property, so he declared the bond void, and Miller and Ostherheimer were locked up.

THE GREATEST MAN!
Said It Was Our McNichol

"Who was the greatest man we knew?"
The teacher asked one day;
"I mean the man who did the most For Americans—every way."
"George Washington," said Willie Green;
"Quite right," was the reply;
"But I know one that's living now,"
Said little Johnny Fry.

"Speak out, my little man, and say
Who is this hero bold;"
"He's not a hero like you mean;
He saves folks from the cold.
He helps when help is needed bad;
He makes homes for the poor;
All those who have not cash to pay
He turns not from his door."

"He aided father well, I know,
And many another man,
When work gave out and money scarce
With his installment plan.
We lived from hand to mouth last year,
I've heard my mother say;
Only he made for us a home
And did not urge for pay."

"You ought to call and see our house;
We're everything so nice;
And mother says McNichol's was
The lowest goods in price.
My father pays him by the week
Small sums what best he can;
Our every comfort now we owe
To his installment plan."

There is something in this. The little boy's reason for calling him a great man—ever jolly friend—to all.

H[illegible]NGS [illegible]THLETIC CLUB

May Yet Pull Off the Corbett-Fitzsimmons Fight.

TRYING TO EVADE THE LAW.

Gov. Clarke Has Assumed a Belligerency That Makes the Promoters of the Fight Doubtful.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 15.—There is a prospect now that the Hot Springs Athletic Association will have the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight pulled off under its auspices, instead of those of the Florida Athletic Association.

Dan Stuart and Billy Brady have been in consultation with an attorney and the impression prevails that if a foreign corporation enters the State for the purpose of conducting a prize fight the authorities will have more hold upon the men than if the big mill is given under the auspices of a home institution.

Corbett will arrive here Wednesday morning and give an entertainment in the evening at the Opera-house. He will then go to Spring Lake, where Mayor Waters owns a hotel, and take possession of the whole building for training purposes.

Mayor Waters and Brady are inseparable and can be seen at any hour conferring about the fight. If public sentiment has anything to do with it, the fight will take place here to a certainty. Everybody is in favor of it except the ministers, and that their opposition will not carry much weight was shown by the fact that Brady was able to stampede the meeting they called to oppose the fight last night.

Whittington Park, where the fight will be held, is about a half mile from the city and of easy access. It is a ball park and contains a quarter mile bicycle track. The old grand stand will be extended around the park and accommodations arranged for 20,000 people.

When Brady was asked by the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent as to the condition of the champion he said: "I will not attempt to explain all rumors about Corbett's condition other than to say that he was never in better condition in his life, and that when he steps into the ring he will be as absolutely perfect a piece of human flesh physically as was ever seen. However, let them say that he is broken down, then there will be so much more credit to him as a sick man for whipping Fitzsimmons."

GOV. CLARKE'S BELLIGERANCY.

Causes Hot Springs Sports Considerable Uneasiness.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 15.—Notwithstanding the fact that the Citizen Committee have assured the managers of the Florida Athletic Club that they can pull off the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight in Hot Springs they are not altogether satisfied of that fact on account of the belligerent attitude of Gov. Clarke. They have amended their articles so as to make it a glove contest limited to twenty-five rounds, but the Governor says he won't permit that, so they have arrived at the conclusion that they cannot please his excellency.

Dan Stuart, who arrived yesterday, said to-day that he did not like the looks of things, yet he admitted this would be the grandest place on the American continent for the fight.

[illegible] Brady addressed a church mass [illegible] last night. He assured them that [illegible] glove contest would not be brutal and agreed to put up $1,000 to be forfeited to some charitable institution if he was not speaking the truth.

Joe Vendig said this morning that they were going into court to ascertain whether or not they had a right under the law to give a limited round glove contest. If they had the fight would take place here, if not they would go to NewMexico where he said they were guaranteed protection.

It is the opinion of able lawyers here that they cannot be interfered with.

The champion will arrive here to-morrow morning. Fitzsimmons will not budge from his quarters at Corpus Christi until he is assured beyond a doubt that the contest will take place here. The question will be definitely settled by to-morrow, whether the fight will take place in Hot Springs or not.

NOT IN MEXICO.

Mexicans Consider Prize Fighting Too Brutal.

LAREDO, Tex., Oct. 15.—Rumors are being circulated to the effect that should the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight not occur at Hot Springs it would take place somewhere in Mexico. A representative of the Associated Press interviewed the Mexican Consul, Lamada Diaz, in this city to-day. He very emphatically stated that President Diaz would nexer consent to allow the fight in Mexico, and owing to the strong feeling of good will of the people towards the President they would not participate in anything to meet his disapproval. The representative of the Associated Press was shown official dispatches from the Mexican capital of a tenor decidedly adverse to the contest, and which authorized the Consul here to State that the fight should not occur on Mexican soil.

FOR THE NEW MOVEMENT.

The Spirit of Grattan's Volunteers Arising in St. Louis.

There will be a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening in St. Lawrence O'Toole's school hall, the climax of a series of recent meetings, which have resulted in the preparation of an Irish-American military programme in accordance with the decrees of the "New Movement" Convention in Chicago. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Wolf Tone Civic and Military Organization. It is not a resurrection of the old Wolf Tone Rifles, with whom the people of St. Louis were for several years familiar. It is the Wolf Tone Society of the New Movement.

The martial spirit of the Irish race is not dead in St. Louis, as this new organization intends to demonstrate. A month prior to the holding of the convention in Chicago St. Louisans put in practical shape the nucleus of a military organization that may yet form a part of a volunteer service animated by one ambition and consoled by one aspiration—like Grattan's volunteers in 1782.

This will be the fifth meeting of the new organization, which has been promoted by the older heads and will be perfected in united array for the political and civil autonomy of Ireland. Among the promoters are Andrew F. Hoolan, President of the civic society, and Joseph McDonald, acting captain and drill master of the military; Con Maloney and James B. Brophy, lieutenants. The Secretary is William O'Shea and the Treasurer Judge James J. Spaulding. The Executive Committee is composed of Con Creedon, P. R. Fitzgibbon and Phil Dwyer.

Already 105 men have been enrolled and to-night it is expected that there will be an addition of another hundred. Five hundred Springfield rifles have been ordered, to be paid for on delivery.

Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be the regular meeting evenings.

Colored Missionary Women.

The Colored Baptist Women's State Missionary Society is meeting at Central Colored Baptist Church, Twenty-third and Morgan streets. Mrs. B. F. Woods of St. Louis called the convention to order Tuesday morning and named as a committee on enrollment Ida B. Fowler, Martha Harris and Mrs. Octavia Walker. The convention will continue Wednesday. The Colored Baptist State Association will meet in Central Church Thursday.

NIPPED IN THE BUD.

Plans of George Martin and Joe Nichols Spoiled by Arrest.

George Martin and Joe Nichols, alias John B. Murray, said to be two of the smoothest confidence men in the country, arrived in the city on a morning train well prepared to fleece any victim who chanced to fall into their clutches. Their plans were nipped in the bud, however by Detective Smith, who recognized the pair as they came out of a saloon at Broadway and Benton street. He arrested both and took them to the Fourth District Station. Each man carried a valise. When searched swindling appliances of nearly every kind, from the "gold brick" to the "shells," were found in their possession. Large "flash rolls" were also found in the pockets of each. They were transferred to the Four Courts during the morning, where, after being questioned they admitted their calling. They said they had been making a tour of the surrounding country, following fairs, etc.

They will be sent to the police court.

A bottle containing what the police claim to be "knockout drops" was found in the pocket of Nichols.

EMPEROR AND EMPRESS.

William and His Wife Make a Visit to Alsace-Lorraine.

COURCELLES, Oct. 15.—The streets of this town were profusely decorated and the railroad station was crowded inside and out to-day with people eager to greet the Emperor and Empress of Germany upon the occasion of their visit to Alsace-Lorraine. Their Majesties arrived at 9 o'clock and were received at the station by Baron Von Hammerstein, President of the District of Lorraine, the Burgomaster and other public officials. The Emperor and Empress subsequently proceeded to Chateau Urville. The route to the Chateau was lined with members of the different veterans' associations, school children, etc., who enthusiastically cheered the imperial party and pelted their Majesties with flowers. The Emperor Frederick monument on the battlefield of Woerth will be unveiled on Friday next.

BILLIARDS WITH BRICKS.

One Caromed off the Refrigerator and Sadly Bruised Mr. Horton.

James Horton, who keeps a restaurant at 212 North Thirteenth street, had all kinds of an exciting time Monday night with an angry female and her escort. The woman until recently roomed over the restaurant and when she moved away she carried away some of his dishes.

Monday night she entered the restaurant and Horton's partner got into an angry dispute with her about the dishes. When the wordy war was at its height, the woman's escort brought in bricks to add force to her arguments. They were vitrified bricks at that, and when she began to bombard the place the wreckage was immense. Broken crockery strewed the restaurant, the floor was covered with pieces of dishes, bones, cold meats, vinegar, mustard and other condiments. Finally a brick caromed off the refrigerator and struck Horton on the elbow, raising a lump as big as a hen's egg. He was taken to the Dispensary, where Dr. Newcomb dressed the wound.

HAS NOT SHUT DOWN.

Rumor That the Butler Tobacco Works Had Been Sold.

A rumor was circulated in the tobacco trade and on the streets to-day to the effect that the James G. Butler tobacco works at Walnut and Sixteenth streets had shut down and that the entire plant had been purchased by the American Tobacco Co. A Post-Dispatch reporter called at the works this afternoon and found every department in full operation. In the office he was informed that the company had not sold out, and had never contemplated anything of the kind. The rumor had reached there before the reporter arrived, but the officials said they hadn't the slightest idea how it originated.

SHOT HER ASSAILANT.

A 12-Year-Old Son Protects His Mother's Honor With a Shotgun.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Oct. 15.—Near Richmond, D County, Joseph Gashee attempted a criminal assault on Mrs. Holcombe, but the woman's 12-year-old son grabbed a shotgun and came to his mother's rescue, shooting her assailant dead.

FIGHT IN A DEPOT.

Negro Porter Shot Twice and May Be Fatally Wounded.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 15.—There was a fusillade in the waiting-room of the Union Depot at Decatur, Ala., this morning. Deputy U. S. Marshal J. L. Jones, who was in the room, was requested by the negro porter, Charles Stores, to desist from spitting on the stove. Stores' manner was rough and Jones resented it. Stores drew a pistol and fired at Jones without effect. Jones thereupon drew his gun and opened up hostilities. Five shots were fired and the result was two bullet holes through Stores that may prove fatal.

HOW NOSTRAND WAS HURT.

Fell Off a Bellefountaine Car, But Doesn't Know When.

J. S. Nostrand, who was found unconscious at Thirteenth and Locust streets Sunday afternoon, has improved considerably at the City Hospital and is now able to talk, though disconnectedly. When questioned Tuesday morning he said that he had fallen off a Bellefontaine car, but where or at what time he was unable to say.

Will Go Before the Grand-Jury.

John Arnold and George W. Benefield, charged with passing counterfeit $10 bills, waived a hearing before United States Commisioner Gray Tuesday and will be sent before the Grand-jury Wednesday. Pete Madden, saloonkeeper at 2138 Market street, and Pat McDermott of Twenty-second and Franklin avenue, are the complainants. The prisoners refuse to make a statement.

And the Dummy Said Nothing.

John Mahoney and Barney Burns, tramps, went to William Portner's second-hand store at 23 South Seventh street Tuesday morning and stole an overcoat from a "dummy." Officer Driscoll arrested them with the coat and swore out a warrant for petit larceny.

Decree of Incorporation Asked.

The Civic Federation of St. Louis filed an application in the Circuit Court Tuesday for a pro forma decree of incorporation. Its objects and intentions have already been fully detailed in the Post-Dispatch. The decree will issue in a few days.

Chief Desmond Ill.

Chief of Detectives Desmond, who has been ailing for several days, is confined to his home, suffering from a severe cold and complaint of the stomach. Detective Flynn takes his place during his absence.

Workhouse Prisoner Escapes.

William Abel, who was sent to the Workhouse under a sentence of one year April 10, escaped this morning while at work with a gang of prisoners on a clay bank. He has not been recaptured.

Decreased Its Capital.

The Johanning-Lang Hardwood Lumber Co. has decreased its capital stock from $40,000 to $20,000. Assets, $54,000; liabilities, $14,000.

NOT MARCHING IN VENEZUELA.

Reported Movement of British Troops Lacks Confirmation.

THOUGHT TO BE A CANARD.

President Bowman Sets Out the Position of Company Claiming Rights Under the Orinoco Concession.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—The report published in New York that British soldiers had been landed in Brazil and were proceeding to the disputed British Venezuelan territory is discredited by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, by Sig. Mendonca, the Brazilian Minister, and by Senor Andrade, the Venezuelan Minister, the representatives of the three countries concerned. It is agreed by these officials that a move of such supreme importance would be quickly communicated here, and in the absence of any such reports no credit is attached to it.

Sir Julian Pauncefote was seen and asked concerning the reported landing of British troops in Brazil, en route to Venezuela. He attached no importance to the report, and said he regarded it as another canard as to the seriousness of South American complications. The Ambassador had received no advices on the subject. It was clear to him, however, that no such move would be made, certainly not by way of the territory of an outside power.

The status of the much debated Venezuela and Nicaragua questions remains unchanged so far as the British officials are informed.

Minister Andrade of Venezuela said that the report of a force landing in Brazil was self-evidently false, as it was out of the question for troops to march the great distance from the Brazilian coast to Venezuela. If any such landing was attempted it could be made more easily in British Guinea, which is situated much nearer the disputed territory. The Minister has received no ward from his government indicating that there is no alarm in Venezuela.

Minister Mendonca of Brazil said that the report that British soldiers were crossing Brazil was manifestly vague, inasmuch as Brazil was about the size of the United States, and it was like a report that troops were "crossing America."

DISCREDITED IN LONDON.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Foreign Office officials were questioned to-day by a representative of the Associated Press as to the truth of the report published in the United States that an armed British force is marching through Brazilian territory and that its objective point is that part of Venezuela which is claimed by the British Government. They said there was no truth in the story, that there is no British force there and that there would be no object in marching through that portion of Brazil even if a British force had been available for the purpose outlined.

NO NEWS IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—At the office of the Venezuelan Consul in this city a reporter of the Associated Press was told to-day that the Consul General had received no news whatever of the reported march of the British troops on Venezuela.

CASHIER COLEAN

In Bed Sick at His Home in Fort Scott, Kan.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Oct. 15.—Cashier Colean of the State Bank who Saturday confessed to having embezzled $13,000, arrived in the city this morning accompanied by his wife and children. He was so weak he had to be assisted to a carriage and was driven to his home, where he is now in bed very sick and cannot be seen. Colean is believed to be penniless. State Bank Commissioner Breidenthal is here in charge of the bank and is now making an examination of the books. It is expected a receiver will be appointed in a few days. There are no new developments as to the condition of the bank.

At the West End Hotel it was learned by a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday morning that J. R. Coleon had registered there Thursday last, his wife arriving Friday. The whole party left Monday afternoon at 1:30. Coleon was seen at the Planters' Hotel about five hours later by an acquaintance who is stopping at the West End Hotel. Coleon had caused his baggage to be removed from the latter hotel. His friend was surprised at his presence at the Planters', but Coleon told him he intended leaving St. Louis by the next train for Fort Scott, Kan. It is supposed that he had decided to face the consequences of his alleged crime, but whether he carried out his decision is not known by his acquaintances here. Little is known of him at the West End Hotel. His stay there was brief. It was stated at the hotel Tuesday that he paid his bill in full there just before leaving.

Mrs. Colean has surrendered her diamonds, has paid up life insurance of several thousands and all she has in the bank. It now appears that his shortage will not be less than $30,000. When asked if the bank officers would prosecute Mr. Colean, Vice-President Stewart said he thought that they would. He thinks, however, that State Bank Commissioner Breidenthal will cause his arrest when the examination of the bank's affairs is completed. The condition of the bank is thought to be such that the resources valued in the last statement at $172,000 will fully pay off the $94,000 of deposits. The Bank Commissioner is here but will make no statement to the depositors yet further than the following notice, which is posted on the bank door:

"Have taken possession of this bank and all its effects for the benefit of depositors, creditors and stockholders; a receiver will be appointed to close up its business according to law.

"JOHN W. BREIDENTHAL,
"State Bank Commissioner."

TRIED TO FORCE A TRADE.

Andrew Shelton Didn't Want to Give up His Time Piece.

Andrew Shelton, a well-to-do stranger from Washington, Mo., had a close call for his time-piece Monday afternoon.

Shelton was walking quietly up the street, when a well-dressed man approached him and offered to trade watches. Shelton was well satisfied with his timepiece and refused to give it up. The other man continued to follow Shelton, insisting on a trade and wanting $3 to boot on the bargain. Shelton still persisting in his refusal to close the tempting bargain, as his undesirable acquaintance represented it to be, was struck in the face. Officer Gocking, passing at the time, placed both men under arrest.

In the First District Police Court Tuesday morning, Judge Peabody discharged Shelton and fined the other man, Joseph Marcus, $10.

Millers Meet at Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The Executive Committee of the Millers' National Association hold an important meeting at the Auditorium to-day. The association was organized last winter and has for its principal object the extension of the foreign trade in flour. The meeting to-day was for the purpose of formulating a plan of work through Congress. The chief thing aimed at by the millers is to secure the recognition of flour in all treaties and trade agreements made between the United States and other nations. The morning session was given to an exchange of opinions and the appointment of a sub-committee to report a scheme at the afternoon session. Among those present were C. A. Pillsbury, C. J. Martin, Minneapolis; J. D. Madeberg, Milwaukee; W. A. Coons, Coldwater, Mich.; A. R. James, George Urban, Jr., Buffalo; Charles T. Ballard, Louisville, M. H. Davis, Shelby, O.

City Counselor Marshall's Absence.

City Councilor Marshall has gone to Jefferson City to attend the Supreme Court. He has managed to get the city's cases bunched so that they will be heard in succession without delay between. He will be absent all this week.

DICK KERLEY DISCHARGED.

Judge Murphy Holds That There Is No Case Against Him.

Richard Kerley, charged with trafficking in dead bodies, was arraigned in Judge Murphy's Court at 12:30 p. m. When his name was called he walked briskly to the defendants' chair. Around him, appearing in his behalf, were Attorneys Charles Noland, Judge Claiborne and Col. Robt. S. McDonald.

All witnesses in the case were excluded from the court-room, with the exveption of Health Commissioner Starkloff, who occupied a chair next to Acting Prisecuting Attorney John A. Gernez. Maggie Dalton was the first witness called. She testified that she had been employed at the Female Hospital from Sept. 3, 1894, until March 11. During that time she frequently went to the dead-house at that institution. She was intimately acquainted with young Richard Kerley and frequently saw him in the dead-house, one occasion being when she surprised him while he was in the act of stuffing the body of Melvina Jones, colored, into a barrel. Charles Davenport, a watchman at the Female Hospital, was assisting Kerley. The witness never saw any more bodies packed.

At this juncture Mr. Gernez withdrew Maggie Dalton and put Health Commissioner Starkloff on the stand.

Judge Claiborne objected to the Health Commissioner's testimony on the ground that he could not testify that any selling of bodies had been done by young Kerley. This point was argued, and finally resulted in Mr. Gernez admitting that the State had no witnesses to prove that Kerley had sold bodies or to whom he had shipped dead bodies.

At this Judge Murphy declared he would discharge the defendant and Kerley left the courtroom in great glee.

The State had about ten witnesses, while the defense had no one except Kerley to testify in its behalf.

SETTLING BASIN LEAKING.

Cause of the Break Not Yet Discovered.

A break has occurred in basin No. 1 at the settling basins, Chain of Rocks, extending to basin No. 2. There has been no loss of water; it merely escaped from one basin into the other.

The cause of the washouf is not known, whether from defective work or not, but the dirt washed away below the walls. When inquiry was made at the Water Commissioner's office, no one had heard of the trouble, but it was significant that Mr. Holman was at the Chain of Rocks on a regular meeting day of the Board of Public Improvements, which is quite unusual. On account of his absence there was no meeting of the board, there being no quorum.

Over the telephone Mr. Holman said he did not know the size of the hole, as he had not seen it. The basins are being pumped out now to get to it. The four other settling basins are in use, so that there will be no interruption of the service. Mr. Holman said the damage would not exceed $500. The basins are maid in pairs, in view of just such contingencies, so that if an accident happens to any one basin the others will not be affected by it.

NUMBER OF EPISCOPALIANS.

Rev. Duncan Reports That There Are Now 618,500 Communicants.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 15.—The House of Deputies of the Episcopal Convention to-day first listened to the report of Dr. Littel of Delaware on the general theological seminary of the church, its progress and its needs.

The petition for the new missionary jurisdiction of Duluth, approved by the Bishops yesterday, was presented to the House and referred.

Resolutions were passed recommending that the Expense Committee raise a fund to pay the traveling expenses of Bishops in Europe, visiting churches there, and declaring it expedient to name a deputation to attend the next meeting of the Canadian Synod of the Church of England. Rev. H. C. Duncan of Louisiana, in his report on the state of the church, said that since the last conference, in 1892, ten Bishops had died, fourteen had been consecrated, four of whom went to missionary districts. The church now had seventy-nine Bishops, 4,544 clergymen, 567 candidates for lay orders, 190,820 baptisms in the past year and 131,473 confirmations. There were now 618,500 communicants, 5,117 church edifices and nearly 500 institutions of a benevolent or educational character.

Dr. Duncan showed that the body of communicants was comparatively growing more than the number of the clergy. The increase in the triennium had been 65,791, while the list of priests had grown but 157, a fact he attributed to "insufficiency and diminunution of stipends." The income for the three years was $35,000 less than for the preceding period. The committtee made recommendations for the patriotic services on the Fourth of July, for stricter regard for the divorce law of the church, for better Sabbath observance and for a more active propaganda of Christian teaching. It being sought to thank the author of the publication for its gratuitous distribution, a resolution refusing to permit the distribution in the convention of any publication not officially recognized was offered by J. Pierpont Morgan; and unanimously adopted.

The House of Bishops concurred in the action of Deputies providing for final adjournment on October 22, on which day the pastoral letter will be read. Most of the morning session was devoted to constitutional revision. An amendment was adopted to article V, making the consent of the Bishops of dioceses affected as well as that of the convention necessary before any diocese or missionary jurisdiction could be erected.

The action of yesterday, assigning the charge of Alaska to the Bishop of Olympia, was reconsidered by a two-thirds vote and the advisability of the election of a missionary Bishop was considered.

The Deputies finally passed the Packard resolution referring the subject of constitutional revision to a new commission composed of six clerical and six lay members. The Bishops will have no connection with the work of this commission. The House had previously defeated a proposal to refer the matter back to the present joint commission. The establishment of a provincial system was excepted from the matters referred to the new commission.

The Ku-Cheng Massacre.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Minister Denby and the British Minister to China have succeeded in overcoming the obstacles which threatened to make the Ku-Cheng Commission a failure so far as it was intended to secure the punishment of the Chinese who were guilty of participating in the riots at Ku-Cheng wherein much damage was done to missionary property and great indignities heaped upon the missionaries. At each stage the commission has been hindered in prosecuting its inquiries by the local Chinese officials.

POLICE BOARD CAUCUS.

Something Prepared for a Drop at the Meeting To-Day.

Something will drop at this afternoon's session of the Police Board. Commissioners Fruin, Bannerman, Forster and Lee, and Chief Harrigan, had their heads together all morning in the board room.

It was decidedly an executive session and was a caucus and not a regular session of the board, because the called meeting does not take place until 3 p. m.

A notable feature was the absence of Mayor Walbridge, ex-officio presiding officer of the board.

WILL BE LYNCHED.

The Negro Ellis, Who Assaulted a White Girl in Tennessee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Jeff Ellis, the negro who assaulted a 17-year-old white girl near Broden, Tenn., recently, after being chased over a large portion of Tennessee and Mississippi, has been captured in the later State and is being brought back to the scene of the crime. Since his arrest he has made a confession of this crime and two other similar offenses. It is a pretty fair conclusion that a lynching party is near at hand.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Opening Session of the Missouri Grand Lodge at Hannibal.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Oct. 15.—The Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias convened in this city at 10 o'clock this morning. All the officers of the Grand Lodge and about five hundred delegates were present. The lodge was called to order by Judge Adam Theis, a Grand Master of the Exchequer, who introduced Mayor Carter. The Mayor delivered the address of welcome, which was responded to by Grand Chancellor Frink. The Grand Lodge then went into session.

The first order of business was the report of the Committe on Credentials. One hundred and seventy-five delegates receiving the Grand Lodge degree, after which they were admitted as members of the Grand Lodge.

Fraternal greetings were sent to the Grand Lodge of Illinois, which is in session in Quincy. The regular business of the meeting was then taken up.

Reports of the Grand Record Keeper and Grand Master of Exchequer, as well as the report of the Grand Chancellor, showed the order to be in a very flourishing condition.

The Rathbone Sisters convened at 11 o'clock this morning. There is a large attendance.

GRAND LODGE OF MASONS.

The Seventy-Fifth Meeting Under Way at Jefferson City.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 15.—The seventy-fifth annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the State of Missouri convened at 10 o'clock today.

Grand Master J. B. Thomas and all the grand officers are present. About 250 delegates were present at the opening, and the noon trains brought many more. The Grand Mast[illegible] submitted his address, which showed t[illegible] organization to be in a highly prosperous condition. Six new lodges had been formed, on charter arrested, seven State Lodges of Instruction held and corner-stones laid of the Masonic Temple at Chillicothe and the new High School at St. Joseph. The report of the Committee on Accounts showed cash on hand last October, $28,594.60; receipts, $30,296.20; total, $58,891.35. Disbursements, $25,572.19, leaving a balance of $33,319.16 on hand. The committees were appointed at 2 o'clock, and at 3 o'clock the Grand Lodge accepted the invitation of Warden Pace to visit the State Penitentiary and marched thence in a body. To-night memorial services will be held on the death of Most Worshipful James P. Wood, Past Grand Master.

One matter of importance to be considered is a move to re-district the State. A. M. Hough of this city will probably be elected Grand Master.

BLAND'S TOUR.

The Silver Leader Will Lecture Through the Southern States.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15.—E. Y. Mitchell of this city, brother-in-law of R. P. Bland, has been selected manager for Mr. Bland, who will on Nov. 20 begin a lecturing tour of Arkansas, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida. Mr. Bland is now writing his lecture, but has not yet selected the title.

SUPREME COURT.

Important St. Louis Cases Advanced on the Docket.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—The Supreme Court to-day heard many motions from attorneys, a majority of them for the advancement of cases on the docket. A motion to advance was made in the Indiana railroad tax cases, and also in the Tennessee bank tax cases, the attorneys requesting that as early a day be set as posible for the argument. Similar motions were made in the case of the Laclede Gas Light Co. vs. Michael J. Murphy, Street Commisioner of St. Louis, and in those of the Pacific and Central Railway Cos. vs. the people of California.

New Corporations

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 15.—Articles of incorporation as follows were filed with the Secretary of State to-day:

Miller & Spaulding Stationery Co., St. Louis; capital, $15,000. Incorporators, Edwin E. Miller, George M. Spaulding, Laura I. Miller, Lucy J. Spaulding, all of St. Louis.

National Black Bulletin Co., St. Louis; capital, $10,000. Incorporators, Robert A. Brachvogel, Harry C. Harnis, Ernest Steinhardt, all of St. Louis.

The Imperial Mining and Smelting Co., Joplin; capital, $100,000.

The Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Chariton Co., Mo., Mendon.

Missouri Farmers' Institute.

LADDONIA, Mo., Oct. 15.—The Farmers' Institute of Missouri, under the auspices of the State Board of Agriculture, opened here yesterday for a two-days' session. There will be forty of these institutes held through Missouri. Among the exhibits of farm produce here are Missouri apples weighing 21 ounces each, ears of corn that weigh 17 pounds and an ounce, beans that are a foot long and pumpkins weighing 98 pounds and watermelons weighing 76 pounds. The farm product in Missouri this year is certainly the best on record.

United Elevator's New Low Point.

St. Louis United Elevator stock reached a new low level Tuesday. Saturday sellers held their stock firmly at $16. Monday's market opened weaker and Tuesday, without preliminary fencing, twenty-five shares were sold at $12, with an unspecified quantity offered at $12.50. The slump in the stock is attributed to slow subscriptions to the new bond issue.

Run Over by Cars.

TRENTON, Ill., Oct. 15.—John Conroy, aged 20, was run over by cars at 10 o'clock last night and his right arm and leg were crushed

WOMEN IN CONFERENCE.

Lady Officials of Benevolent Institutions Meet.

The third annual conference of the Missouri State Board of the Women's and Young Women's Christian Association began in the Sunday-school room of Second Presbyterian Church, Seventeenth and Lucas place, Tuesday morning. Many organizations not affiliated with the Christian Association were represented.

The President, Mrs. C. C. Rainwater, called the meeting to order at 10 a. m. and spoke a few words of greeting. Mrs. Kuhn was Secretary.

Mrs. Rainwater appointed as a Committee on Credentials Mrs. Ellers, Branch and Souther. Other committees named were: Nominations, Mesdames Springer, Parcells and Baldwin; Resolutions, Mesdames Springer, R. E. Wilson and Harnett; Press, Mesdames Kuhn and Bascome; Business, Mesdames Eller, Burge and Dr. Moore.

Reports from organizations were then called for. Mrs. J. D. Vincil, representing Memorial Home, said it afforded asylum to old men and to old men and their wives. The admission fee for an old man was $100, and, if he had his wife with him, $150. There are sixty-nine inmates and each of the home's seventy rooms is occupied. Since its establishment seven persons have been expelled. The expense of the home is between $400 and $600 a month.

Mrs. Wolfort, speaking for the Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites, said it had property worth $30,000 and made no distinction as to rank or station in the admission of applicants. Mrs. Wolfort, in a later address, called attention to the care given the Jewish sick and poor at St. John's Hospital.

Mrs. Dr. Moore of the D. O. C. said that the ex-Confederate Home at Higginsville had a property worth $35,000. The inmates number 220 and since the home was founded fifty-one have gone out with health renewed and twenty-one have died. In the past five years the ladies of the D. O. C. have given $30,000 to the home.

Mrs. A. H. Eilers outlined the nature of the work done by the Woman's Christian Home. Mrs. Harnett told the story of the origin and growth of the Blind Girls' Home and said that although the institution cared for sightless girls and women from every part of Missouri the State did not contribute a cent for their maintenance. Mrs. Haight said that the Baptist Hospital has had 436 patients, of whom 118 were cared for free of charge.. Mrs. Birge made a report for the Rebeccah Hospital.

It was announced that the first graduation exercises of the Woman's Training School for Nurses will be held at Pilgrim Church next Tuesday exening. The conference will continue Wednesday and Thursday.

MEETING OF THE BANKERS.

President Odell on the Need of a Scientific Financial System.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—The American Bankers' Association began its session in the Grand Opera House this morning at 10 o'clock, with an unusually large attendance of delegates and a liberal sprinkling of visitors and on-lookers. The association was welcomed to the city by Mayor King and to the State by Hon. G. G. Jordan, president of the State Bankers' Association, in a brief address.

To these words of welcome President John J. P. Odell responded in behalf of the visiting bankers and delivered his annual address. He suggested that the constitution be so amended as to permit State organizations to be represented in the body in the proportion of one delegate to every fifty members and that the Executive Council be instructed to undertake measures to encourage the formation of associations in those States not already supplied. He urged this for the reason that State organizations were in a better position than a national body to secure needed State legislation.

"A year ago, at your convention in Baltimore, a plan for the reformation of our national currency system was adopted, and while the recommendation of the association did not meet with universal approval, the action of the convention gave rise to a most extensive agitation of the currency question, both in and out of Congress, and a great deal of valuable discussion followed. The effort of the association to deal with this subject has not been fruitless, and it is to be hoped that the agitation thus initiated will continue until the Government shall abandon the issuance of notes, and a more perfect currency system shall be adopted. The evils of our present system were never more apparent than to-day. During the period since we last met together our country has passed through an experience that will not soon be forgotten.

"Following a season of universal liquidation and distress, the country was confronted by a national Treasury forced almost to the very verge of bankruptcy, and was saved from this only by the heroic and patriotic action of a wise and courageous President. For weeks uncertainty and confusion prevailed, and were not allayed until by the sale of a large amount of bonds the Government recovered its gold reserve. That this expedient offered but temporary relief we have had ample evidence, and the signs are not wanting to indicate that we have yet more trouble in store, unless we shall depart entirely from the present makeshift and pernicious system of Governmental note issues. With a scientific monetary system, based upon the standard which has received the indorsement of the most civilized nations, we may feel assured that the intelligent and energetic people of the United States will develop and utilize to an extent beyond the dreams of the wildest visionary the marvelous resources which nature has with such generosity bestowed upon us, until at last we shall take our true place among the nations of the earth, the foremost in material prosperity and moral worth, which will be manifested in the advancement of our arts and sciences, and in the daily life of our people. To-day, were it not for our uncertain currency system, we might well congratulate ourselves upon the condition of affairs. Abundant crops have rewarded the labors of the husbandman, the wheels of industry are moving more smoothly and rapidly, confidence is taking the place of doubt, assurance of hesitation, and altogether the prospect, but for one single cloud, is full of encouragement. With the increasing prosperity of the people we may hope to prosper, even as we suffer with them in their misfortune. To us, as bankers, is committed the duty of maintaining the credit of our people. This we can do by abiding by those principles of financial morality, the truth of which time and experience have demonstrated. Upon us, as an association, rests a large responsibility to combat error to contend for the truth, to assist in raising the standard of commercial and national honor, to extend the sentiment of brotherly fellowship—this is our mission. Are we capable of discharging the trust? I think we are."

The report of the Executive Council was then read by Mr. E. H. Pullen, chairman, and the treasurer's report was read and accepted.

BUZZARDS' BAY, Mass., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Cleveland and children left Gray Gables on a special train at 8:05 this morning for Washington. They expect to arrive there at 10:30 to-night. The train will run direct to Providence, where it will connect with the Boston express.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FT. SCOTT, Kan., Oct. 15.—Col. T. L. Wilson, who conceived the idea of building a railroad from St. Louis to Denison, Tex., in 1866, which resulted in the construction of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Road, died in this city to-day. He was the first President of the Tebon & Neosho, which was merged into the M., K. & T., and he built forty miles of the road from Sedalia southwest. He was then known as "Tebon" Wilson. Of recent years he has been a prosperous farmer near this city. The cause of his death was cancer of the face, which necessitated his retirement from railroad business a number of years ago. Cancer had eaten his nose off and his face was not in a condition to be seen.

A. P. A. ADVISORY BOARD.

Tuesday Morning's Work Done Entirely in Executive Session.

After spending Monday evening at the Exposition, members of the Advisory Board of the American Protective Association met at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in Druids' Hall ready for the business of the session. There was no preliminary open meeting Tuesday. The door of the hall was closed and a sentinel installed before the regular chairman called the Board to order.

Reading of the reports from the various States was then entered upon. They dealt chiefly with the condition of the order and the achievements attained, political and otherwise. At the close of the meeting it was given out by the chairman of the Press Committee that the reports were all very favorable.

A resolution was adopted thanking the Exposition management for having set aside a day at the "Ex." in honor of the order.

At 1 o'clock the Board adjourned until 3 o'clock.

Balch's Bond Forfeited.

Quincy A. Balch, charged with robbery in the first degree, failed to appear in the Criminal Court Tuesday when his case was called and his bond of $1,000 was forfeited. George Sauerbrum, the contractor, living at 5738 Garfield avenue, was security on the bond.

In June, 1894, Balch terrorized pleasure-seekers in Forest Park by numerous hold-ups, in some of which he resorted to violence to secure his booty. On June 11 he held up Thomas Corey, 1114 Cass avenue, and robbed him of $10. Corey followed him until he found an officer and then had Balch arrested.

Think Proctor Is the Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAPORTE, Ind., Oct. 15.—The officials of the Lake Shore Railroad believe that Alvin Proctor, who is in jail at Goshen, will make a confession which will clear up the mystery surrounding the famous hold-up at Kessler's siding, in 1893. Twenty thousand dollars was secured in that memorable raid. Evidence which incriminates Proctor in the hold-up has been brought to light by detectives who have been working for the heavy reward offered by the Lake Shore and the United States Express Company. It is believed that the assurance of immunity from punishment will cause Proctor to disclose the names of the raiders. Recently a one thousand dallar bill secured in the raid was presented at a Kendallville bank.

Anderson La Flore Justified.

Coroner Wait held an inquest Tuesday over the remains of Wm. Bell, colored, who died Monday at the City Hospital from a gun shot wound of the abdomen, inflicted by Anderson La Flore. The shooting occurred at 8:45 p. m., October 8, in the rear of 1735 North Broadway. The evidence showed the existence of an old grudge and that Bell pushed into La Flore's house and was shot as he was about to attack La Flore. A verdict of justifiable homicide was accordingly returned and La Flore released from custody.

Fined $15 for Getting Gay.

After hanging fire for several days the case against Charles Pabst for disturbing the peace was tried before Judge Stevenson Tuesday morning. Vitt lives at 1816 North Twenty-third street and works for the St. Louis Stamping Co. Pabst is a blacksmith at the St. Louis Car-works. There had been ill-feeling between them for some months and on Sept. 30 Pabst drew a pistol on Vitt and threatened to kill him. He was let off with a $15 fine.

Lena Wanted to Die.

Lena Flanders, an inmate of 501 Spruce street, attempted suicide by morphine Monday night. The cause was a quarrel with her lover, Fred Grace. She was pumped out at the Dispensary by Dr. Newcomb. She was well supplied with money and refused to go to the City Hospital, saying that she was able to pay for medical attention.

A Bohemian Attempts Suicide.

Eugene Luffler, a Bohemian, residence unknown, was found in an unconscious condition at North Market and Sixteenth streets Monday night and sent to the City Hospital, where it was found that he had taken morphine. Several days ago he went to Memphis and only returned Monday morning. No cause is assigned for the deed. Luffler's condition is serious.

THE MYSTERY OF A FLOATER.

Another Clew to the Man Found at the Reservoir.

MISSING JERE COUGHLIN.

His Relatives Say He Disappeared About the Time the Man Was Murdered and Thrown Into the Settling Basin.

That waterworks murder mystery which the police claim was a case of suicide may yet be solved.

On the morning of June 17 last the body of an unknown man was found floating on the surface of basin No. 4 and carted off to the Morgue. The police reported it a case of suicide without making the slightest investigation, and the body was interred in the Potter's Field.

At the Morgue the corpse was identified as Wm. Stocker, a laborer living near Tenth street and St. Louis avenue, by the wife of Stocker, who claimed to recognize the body by the clothes. Singularly enough Bill Stocker, or McGuire, as he called himself, was found at work in the cellar which was being dug for a new building at Seventh and Walnut streets a few days later.

Mrs. Stocker was positive that the clothes on the dead man were those her husband had worn and the latter refused to account for how the floater came by his clothing. Stocker had left home about the time the waterworks' victim met his death and was mourned as dead. When he was found alive and well by his son he stubbornly refused to explain where he had been or how the dead man happened to have on the clothing which Stocker wore when he disappeared from home. In the light of to-day's developments Stocker may live to regret his stubbornness.

Relatives of Jere Coughlin, formerly a well-to-do farmer living eight miles from Springfield, Ill., fear that he is the victim who was found dead in the basin. He disappeared April 1. His relatives have since learned that he was in the city for a short time after that and then all trace of him is lost. They declare that if it was his dead body that was taken from the basin that morning a foul murder had been done. An investigation is now being made and it is not improbable that the mystery may be unraveled.

Coughlin sold his farm and came to St. Louis in April, 1894. He was 37 years old, unmarried and a man of temperate habits. He had a florid complexion, brown hair and light mustache, was 6 feet tall, and heavy in proportion and had large hands and feet. This description tallies with that of the waterworks victim.

When the missing man first came here he bought a half interest in a meat market on South Broadway. A man named Leonard was his partner. Later Coughlin bought Leonard out and took a butcher employed by him as a partner. About this time Coughlin purchased four lots in Meacham Heights which he was to pay for in installments. He had boarded at the Laclede Hotel, but after he got possession of the meat market he took a room on South Eighth street and ate his meals in restaurants wherever his fancy led him.

Tiring of this Coughlin boarded with his cousin, Richard Shea, at 2319 Dodier street, where he remained about two months, leaving there about April 1. Mr. Shea now lives at 1509 Angelrodt street, and he and a brother of the supposed victim, Thomas Coughlin, are now searching the town over for him.

A clew which Mr. Shea is in hopes may throw some light on the mystery is that when he left Coughlin had a black valise of ordinary size on which the name "J. Coughlin" was stamped. No trace of this valise can be found. It is thought to contain a suit of clothes and some linen belonging to Coughlin and may be held as uncalled-for property at some hotel or boarding house.

As Coughlin always carried money about his person his relatives fear he was slugged and robbed and his body thrown into the water basin. There was blood found on the coping of the reservoir by one of the gate keepers several days before the body was found and the evidence of murder was so strong that he had the basin dragged and afterwards drained to satisfy himself that there was not a corpse concealed under the muddy water. The basin was not carefully drained and the body was not found, although its condition when it rose to the surface showed it had been in the water several days.

Coughlin's mother came to St. Louis during Fair week and from particulars she learned then she became convinced that her son was the victim and that he was murdered. The family only learned of his disappearance through a real estate firm who wrote to notify the family that he had failed to make payments on his property. Thomas Coughlin came here at once and began an investigation. The aid of Chief Harrigan has been solicited and a reward will be offered in a few days. Since Coughlin disappeared a number of notes have fallen due and the money is being held for him by a bank at Springfield.

In case the investigation now being made shows the waterworks victim to have been Coughlin it will devolve upon the police to arrest Bill Stocker, alias McGuire, and let him explain, if he can, how his clothes came to be found on the dead man.

APPLAUDS CULBERSON.

Judge Rector Says Law and Order Progress Should Not Be Stayed.

United States Judge John B. Rector of the District of Northern Texas was in St. Louis last night on his way home from a visit of six weeks to New Haven and Boston—his annual vacation.

A Post-Dispatch reporter asked the Judge what he thought of Gov. Culberson's action in calling the Texas Legislature together to stop the Corbett-Fitzsimmons battle, and the reply was this:

"The Governor did right. Our people have been exerting themselves for many years to promote law and order and to discourage and to reform or eliminate the lawless element that has done Texas so much discredit abroad in times past. Such an exhibition as this Corbett-Fitzsimmons affair would have operated as a revival of the ruffian spirit that our courts and Grand-juries have been at pains to suppress.

"Gov. Culberson's course was right. It has cost Texas some money, but I think the expense was well laid out. It has saved the character of Texas from a stain that many years would not have effaced."

William T. Gay Dead.

William T. Gray, an old real estate man, died Monday at Mullanphy Hospital of throat trouble, from which he had suffered for years. At Los Angeles, Cal., last winter he had a silver tube inserted in his throat, and has since been unable to speak. He was 67 years old and leaves a wife, from whom he was divorced, and several children.

Retail Salesmen's Ball.

J. S. Schwarz, E. Reed and L. L. Osborne, committee of arrangements for the ball of the Retail Salesmen's Association, Oct. 31, report affairs progressing finely and indications pointing to a successful entertainment. Concordia Club Hall has been engaged and will be profusely decorated. Tickets have been placed on sale and are being disposed of with a rapidity that guarantees a large attendance.

Victim of White Lead Poisoning.

Samuel Schaffner, 58 years old, is at the City Hospital suffering from white lead poisoning. Schaffner lives at 614 South Fourteenth street, and has been employed by the Collier White Lead Co. during the past ten years. During that time the white lead was absorbed into his system and he is now in a serious condition.

Death of Frederick A. Winkler.

Frederick A. Winkler, founder of the Seidel & Winkler Store and Office Fixture Co., died Monday at his home, 1027 Park avenue. He was 69 years old and leaves a widow and five grown children.

Y. M. C. A. DAY.

There Are Prospects of an Enormous Attendance To-Night.

The Young Men's Christian Association have charge of the Exposition to-day. The organization will have a strong representation from all its branches. The attendance at the Exposition for the closing week promises to be enormous. Last evening it was impossible to get near Music Hall after the concerts once started. All the attractions were enthusiastically applauded. The soloist, Miss Jessie Foster, aroused enthusiastic applause. She sang Eckert's "Echo Song" in a manner that proved her right to the term artiste. Miss Foster's voice, clear as a bell, sweet, fresh and flexible, was heard to splendid advantage in the composition selected. She responded to a whirlwind of applause with a graceful encore.

Miss Foster's voice is of such wonderful range that she can sing the Trilby impromptu—Du Maurier describes it as the greatest feat within the possibility of the human voice. A great many requests have been sent to her to sing it to-night, but she cannot promise, as it is a trying feat. The evening programmes follow:

NEW RULE AS TO JURIES.

It Is Being Hotly Contested by Members of the Bar.

The new rule of the judges of the Circuit Court in regard to impaneling special juries has already raised no end of a rumpus. This rule was decided upon during the summer vacation and although the term is yet young, there are signs of a general rebellion among the attorneys.

Under the old rule the Jury Commissioner was ordered by the court to "select" a special jury. Under the new rule inaugurated at this term the order instructs the Jury Commissioner to "draw" a special jury. This distinction makes a vast difference in the venire, which is claimed by the lawyers to be unsatisfactory in many respects.

When the case of McGinniss against the city of St. Louis was called in Court-room No. 4 Tuesday morning, both sides announced they were ready for trial. There had been a special jury called in the case. In announcing himself ready for trial Chas. C. Allen, for the city, said that he desired to reserve an objection to the method of summoning the jury. After the jury had been called, Mr. Allen said:

"I desire, your honor, to raise some objections to this venire under the statutes bearing on the point." He then offered the following motion:

"Now comes the defendant and moves the court to annul and set aside the order as heretofore entered on October 7, 1895, for a special venire for October 15, 1895, in the above entitled cause, and for grounds of such motion avers:

"1. That said order as entered is not properly entered, and is not the order prayed for in the motion of defendant for such special venire.

"2. That said order is not according to law.

"3. That said order requires and directs said Jury Commissioner to 'draw' the names of jurors, when it should have directed him to 'select' the jury.

"4. That said order is entered in conformity with rule No. 37 of the Rules of this Court, which rule is contrary to the statutes and laws of Missouri."

Judge Dillon promptly overruled the motion. Before the trial proceeded Mr. Stone, for the plaintiff, raised a point. He said that as this case would probably go before the Supreme Court he desired to be recorded as objecting to the right of the city to call for a special jury. In his opinion the city has no right to spend a taxpayer's money to call a special jury.

Jury Commissioner Mansfield gave this explanation to a Post-Dispatch reporter: "The rule is new to me, but I am simply an officer of the court and follow its instructions. It results, however, in completely nullifying the special jury law. Under this rule a special jury cannot be obtained. This order instructs me to draw the jury instead of select it, as the law says. Now, I have only one jury wheel, so a special jury drawn this way is really not a special jury. But it is none of my lookout. I must do as the judges order."

Aside from the fact that this rule makes it practically impossible to obtain a special jury, attorneys claim that it will operate to greatly retard the progress of trials in jury cases. The panels under this rule call for fifty jurors, while the old rule only demanded eighteen. Now there are fifty jurors to examine as to qualification, while before there were only eighteen. This makes the selection of a jury a tedious and time-consuming job.

In Court Room No. 3 the same question was raised by both sides in the case of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern Railway against the Knapp-Stout Lumber Company. The entire day Monday was consumed in trying to select a jury on one of the venires under the new rule. One man was found who could not qualify on account of not being able to understand the English language. This raised the question as to how the jury was summoned and precipitated discussion. Both sides objected to the venire and Judge Withrow expressed his opinion that the matter had better be decided before the case went on. But no one seems to know who should decide it. Tuesday afternoon a number of attorneys will meet and formulate some plan to have the validity of the new rule passed upon.

A similar motion to that made by Mr. Allen in Judge Dillon's court was made before Judge Klein with the same result. Until this point is decided there will be endless confusion arising in special jury cases.

Long-Bertram.

Mrs. Nannie L. Bertram will be wedded to Mr. H. E. Long at the residence of the groom's sister, Mrs. Joseph Vincent, 5109 McPherson, at 7 p. m., Rev. Dr. Williams of Union Church officiating. The ceremony will be private, only the near relatives and close friends attending. A wedding dinner served by Peckman and reception will follow, after which Mr. and Mrs. Long will leave for the South, on a wedding trip of a month's duration. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Long will reside at 3203 Lucas avenue. The Vincent home will be handsomely decorated for the ceremony with potted palms, flowers, etc. The bride will wear a wedding dress of heavy white gros-grain silk, ornamented with rare old lace and pearls.

A Horse on a Fender.

The fender on motor car No. 323 of the Southern Electric Railway struck and carried a horse 10 feet at Ninth and Lami streets Monday. The animal was not hurt, but the fender was damaged. Carrie Brenner of 2631 South Broadway, who was driving the horse when the car struck him, was not injured. The wagon escaped damage.

Beaten by Unknown Men.

James Shannon, an Iron Mountain engineer, was beaten by unknown men without apparent cause at Broadway and Lafayette avenue at 1 a. m. Tuesday. He received a broken leg and a scalp wound. He was sent to the Missouri Pacific Hospital.

A GUBERNATORIAL BOOMLET.

Judge Stone of Kansas City an A. P. A. Candidate in Missouri.

One result of the American Protective Association national "advisory" meeting, now in progress in St. Louis at Druid's Hall, has been the launching of a brand new boom for the next governorship of Missouri. Col. John B. Stone, presiding Judge of the Jackson County Court of Kansas City, has sprung from the collective brain of this advisory body, ready for the rostrum, the forum and the fray. The Judge is now a full-fledged candidate for Governor.

The conditions under which Judge Stone was elected to his present position last fall have led his friends and admirers to think that the same plan may result in his elevation to the gubernatorial chair, if the thing can be worked as smoothly as it was in Jackson County.

That politics makes strange bed-fellows is a pretty straight truism in Judge Stone's case. He is a life-long Democrat, and was a Confederate soldier, having gone through the rebellion as an officer of the 4th and 62d Alabama regiments and received several chunks of union lead at the second Manassas and in the battles of the Wilderness. He inherited the ardent Americanism of the old Southern school of politicians and fell easily into line with the American Protectives when that organization came into being.

He was nominated by this society last fall for Judge, the nomination was concurred in by the Republicans and he was placed on the Republican ticket and got his seat by a count of something more than 300 votes, while a number of his associates on the ticket failed of election. That is, in brief, a repetition of the story of Judge Stone's success, and of the queer fellowship that the Kansas City situation brought about last year.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Stone, though not a delegate to the A. P. A. conference, delivered a speech of a most fervent order behind the barred doors of Druid's Hall.

At the close of his talk the Judge was warmly congratulated by delegates who had cheered and laughed and applauded while he was speaking.

Now the scheme is to plan a State fusion between the Protectives and the Republicans on the lines followed at Kansas City. The Judge and his local friends were encouraged quite heartily by the delegates from other States, and it is not an exaggeration in the slightest sense to say that the scheme is now on for all it is worth.

Judge Stone said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night at the Rozier, before leaving for Kansas City:

"If you should see some of our friends about the hotel here they would probably tell you that I am talked of for the Governorship; but I don't care to be quoted exactly as saying it—I would much rather others would do that part of the talking.

"In our local canvass last fall we figured out but a trifling loss to the Republican ticket by reason of its affiliation with our people, and that there were many accessions from the other side, by reason of membership or of sympathy with our cause. The impression prevails among our friends that similar conditions might be developed in a canvass on broader lines, if the elements saw fit to get together; but we have no distinct plans for the use of our voting power, and would say nothing about them if we did have.

"I think it may be said that this advisory council has assembled mainly because the management of the Exposition had set apart to-day as 'American Day,' and our people were disposed to signalize it by this little demonstration. We have had a pleasant meeting thus far; but I think you will find nobody connected with the conference who will talk about its results."

"Dr." Geo. Smart Discharged.

Judge Murphy discharged Dr. Geo. Smart of North St. Louis, accused of violating the statutes by professing to be a physician and prescribing medicine. Judge Murphy held that there was no evidence to show that Dr. Smart ever appended the letters "M. D." to his name and his Honor did not believe that "Dr." and "M. D." were always synonymous.

Attempted a Bold Theft.

Two unknown men drove up to the store of the Gold Spring Distilling Company, 1109 Third street, and attempted to put a barrel of wine lying on the pavement into their wagon. They had it on a skid when a member of the company appeared. They ran away, leaving their wagon.

DIRECT FROM AMSTERDAM

St. Louis Will Import Its Java Coffee and Spices.

Within a month the shipment of Java coffee, spices, cocoa beans and other products of the Dutch East Indies will begin direct from Amsterdam to St. Louis. This will be an innovation upon established methods of a good deal of interest to both dealers and users of these staple articles in St. Louis and in the territory which depends upon St. Louis for its supply. It will be especially true with respect to coffee and cocoa, as these are the articles most in use.

J. Van Biema, head of the large Amsterdam commission and trading house of Van Biema, Nykerk & Co., had a conference with one of the big St. Louis tea and coffee concerns Tuesday morning and an agreement was reached to the effect above noted. It is a deal involving a large amount of money and virtually establishes the St. Louis house as the agent of the Dutch Government for the Central and Western sections of the United States, as the Government has a monopoly of these articles and sells them as any other dealer. The Amsterdam house handles a large proportion of these products of the Dutch Indies, which come to the United States, and the object of Mr. Van Biema in establishing a market in St. Louis direct from the Dutch capital is to extend trade by cheapening the price to consumers in this territory. The arrangement made this morning practically eliminates the New York importer and jobbers from the St. Louis Java coffee trade, and will, Mr. Van Biema says, effect an appreciable economy in high grade Java to this market, as well as in the other minor articles. This, he thinks, will push them along and widen the market.

Mr. Van Engers, a native of Amsterdam, now connected with the New York correspondent of the Dutch house, accompanies Mr. Van Biema, and both are stopping at the Planters'.

SPOILED HER PRETTY CAPE.

Miss Eunice Ramsey, brunette and petite, the young St. Louis girl who made her theatrical debut last August in "The Derby Winner," is back in town. She left the company two weeks ago at Lawrence, Kan.

Miss Ramsey had an ardent ambition to twinkle pre-eminently as a star in the theatrical firmament, so when last summer she was offered a part in Al Spink's "Derby Winner," visions of a meteoric flight upward to fame and wealth flashed before her pretty eyes. Even then she could see her future glory eclipsing that of Nethersole or Bernhardt. But up to date her experience as a thespian has been anything but pleasant. Two weeks ago she and Miss Viola Arthur, another St. Louis girl who had joined the "Derby Winner," shook the show at Lawrence, Kan. From there they went to Kansas City, where Miss Arthur still remains, and Miss Ramsey returned to her mother in St. Louis.

Miss Arthur's experience has entirely dispelled her stage-struck mania, and she vows she will never tread the boards again, but Miss Ramsey's fiery ambition for histrionic eminence hasn't been quenched in the least. She is anxious to try again as soon as an opportunity presents itself.

When seen at her mother's home by a Post-Dispatch reporter Miss Ramsey indignantly denied that she had been discharged because of her inability to fill the part assigned to her and said:

"There could be nothing in a rumor that I wasn't up to my part, for the day I telegraphed mamma that I had left the company and was coming home my friend Jerry Hunt received a letter from Mr. Munson saying I was giving entire satisfaction and filling the part admirably. The whole trouble was caused by jealousy.

"Mrs. Al Spink was jealous of me, made things so disagreeable and threw so many obstacles in my way that I was forced to resign.

"She had nothing in the world to do with the show, but constituted herself supervisor of the wardrobe. I had a particularly attractive cape I wore in the part, with a lining that gave it a jaunty effect, and what does Mrs. Spink do but pull the lining out of my cape, saying it didn't suit her. And Mr. Spink was afraid to open his mouth. I couldn't stand it any longer, so Miss Arthur and myself left the company at Lawrence, Kan.

"In spite of this bad beginning, I don't intend to give up the stage. Next time I think I will try something different—something in the ingenue line, I believe, would suit me better."

Miss Ramsey's firm intention is not to join any company that is given to one-night stands.

Wholesalers Cutting Out Retailers.

At the meeting Monday night of the Retail Grocers' Association Secretary Brokate of the Retail Butchers' Union discussed the practice of wholesale packers selling direct to consumers and said that the retail butchers were doing their best to stop it. A resolution asking retail grocers and butchers to discountenance the efforts of wholesalers to sell meat direct to the consumer was introduced and laid over for thirty days.

When Your

CAKE Is All Dough

When your cake is heavy, soggy, indigestible, it's a pretty sure sign that you didn't shorten it with COTTOLENE. When this great shortening is rightly used, the result will surely satisfy the most fastidious. Always remember that the quality of COTTOLENE makes a little of it go a long way. It's willful waste to use more than two-thirds as much as you would of lard or butter. Always use COTTOLENE this way, and your cake and pastry will always be light, wholesome, delicious.

Genuine COTTOLENE is sold everywhere in tins, with trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin.

TRUE LOVE CAN NEVER DIE.

This Estranged Pair Met, Forgave and Married in One Afternoon.

There is a pretty romance surrounding the marriage of Miss Genevieve Richardson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Richardson, and Geo. W. Strodtman, which was so quietly solemnized on Saturday afternoon two weeks ago. The young couple have just returned from the Atlanta Exposition, where they spent their honeymoon and the story is out.

So quietly was the ceremony performed that it was generally supposed for a time to have been an elopement, but this is disproved by the fact that the bride and groom called at her home for the purpose of asking the parental forgiveness on the night of the wedding, but found papa and mamma out. Then they went to Atlanta, and after telegraphing back that they were wed, proceeded to enjoy themselves to their hearts content. They returned home Sunday and were forgiven and in the evening there was an informal gathering of friends, who called to offer congratulations.

The wedding took place at Lafayette Park Presbyterian Church, fully six miles from the homes of the contracting parties, and this probably gave rise to the rumor that they had eloped. But all that is now explained away by the groom, who says the marriage license was secured on the afternoon of the King Hotu parade and that of the several ministers they called upon Rev. S. C. Palmer was the only one they found at home.

Young Strodtman and his pretty bride-to-be had been sweethearts since childhood and had been engaged for several years. The families on both sides were satisfied with the match, but in this case as in many other the course of true love had a whole lot of bumps in it. Last fall Dr. and Mrs. Richardson went to Florida to spend the winter. They took Miss Genevieve with them and in some manner this caused an estrangement between the young lady and her fiance.

When she returned from the land of the cypress her lover did not call. Friends and relatives supposed the match was off and although later the young man became somewhat reconciled, that fondness which the lovers had always shown for each other was no longer manifest.

On the day in question, however, Strodtman was preparing to leave for Atlanta on a night train and while down town met his former sweetheart. The old love returned. When Strodtman told her he was going away their differences were forgotten and it was agreed that they would be married at once and that she should accompany him. They went to the license office and from there set out to find a minister to tie the nuptial knot.

The bride's father is public administrator of St. Louis, and owns a handsome home at 3913 North Eleventh street. She is a leader of the fashionable set and is an accomplished young lady. The groom is in the insurance business, with an office at 3616 North Broadway, and is a member of one of the wealthiest families in North St. Louis. There was no objection to the marriage, but Dr. Richardson told a Post-Dispatch reporter he thought his daughter was too young and that he would have preferred a wedding at home. Mr. and Mrs. Strodtman are staying at the bride's home, but will go to housekeeping as soon as they can furnish a house.

Pulpit and Suffrage.

A meeting of the St. Louis Equal Suffrage Club will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in room 22 of the Lindell Hotel, to hear Rev. Dr. Boyd discuss woman suffrage from the standpoint of public morals.

DOESN'T WEAR BLOOMERS,

But the Congregation Objects to Mrs. Elmer and Her Reverend Husband.

Because the minister's wife is over three score years and yet rides a bicycle, therefore is the congregation of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer divided against itself.

Bloomers and bikes have made more than their share of trouble since they became the fad and in more than one instance have they figured as an issue in church affairs. Not many moons ago there was trouble in an Ohio congregation because the fair young organist insisted on appearing at service in gaudy red bloomers. The wife of the rector of the Church of the Ascension is not spectacular in her bicycle togs, but she pushes her pneumatic tire along the well-kept roadways of Cabanne place at times when lady members of the congregation think she should be giving a helping hand in church work.

The rector of the Church of the Ascension is Rev. William Elmer of 5333 Cabanne place. He is a man of independent wealth and serves as rector of the aristocratic little chapel for a nominal consideration.

Perhaps this is just where the trouble lies, for, as Mr. Elmer is not afraid of losing his job there is nothing to deter him from doing and saying as he pleases. Likewise his wife, who is quite an elderly lady, does not feel that she should exert herself too much over church work when her husband is really acting as rector through courtesy.

With this state of affairs as a foundation up comes a squabble over high church and low church services. Of course there are two sides in the congregation and each wants its own way. Mr. Elmer, who was a Baptist before he married the widow of the late George Hall and became an Episcopalian, is a complacent man. He didn't like to offend either side, so he gave them both a show and instituted a compromise service that proved irritating all round.

It is further alleged that Mr. Elmer is not a pleasing orator. This could hardly be expected of a man who doesn't work for salary and feels pretty free to preach what he pleases. As an instance in point, it is claimed that Mr. Elmer publicly reprimanded the son of a prominent member of the congregation.

Mr. Elmer was seen this morning by a Post-Dispatch reporter. He is not much over 40; his wife is near 70. He denied that his wife wore bloomers, but admitted she was a bicycle devotee. He said that there was trouble in the church and that it was due to friction between the high and low church members. He said he would resign on the seventh anniversary of his rectorship, next Easter.

Condition of the Mullanphy Fund.

At the monthly meeting of the Mullanphy Board Secretary Fishback reported that the receipts for September, including the cash balance Sept. 1, were $7,545.65. The expenditures were $6,701.41, which included $5,500 placed on time deposit to the credit of the fund. The special deposit now is $20,500. President Coste announced that the conversion of the real estate of the fund into money for more profitable investment is being considered by the Associate City Counselor. He added that the Mullanphy heirs are satisfied with the plan.

Carter's Victim Is Dead.

Will Parks, colored, shot Sunday by Moses Carter, colored, at Tenth and Gratiot streets, died at the City Hospital Monday. Carter was taking Nina Stubblefield to church and says he was jeered at and set upon by several rivals. He fired five shots and two bullets struck Parks. Carter is under arrest.

YOUR TIRED STOMACH.

"I have no appetite," you say, "and the little I do eat does me no good. At first it feels cold and dead in my stomach and by and by I have aches and pains that sometimes go to my chest and back. I feel weak, low spirited and out of sorts all over. I fancy the demon of dyspepsia has got me." That's the way you talk, and no wonder. But wait a moment. Let us reason together. Perhaps thus far your stomach is merely tired. You have been eating too much, eating the wrong things, and irregularly. You have given it too much to do, and like all living things, when overworked, it stops at length from sheer exhaustion. There may not be an actually diseased condition as yet. Still it is nature's warning, and you must heed it or worse will follow. "But I must eat or starve," you say. True enough, but safety usually lies in middle courses. Here is one for you. You don't need drastic purges or exciting stimulants. Your condition is one easily relieved, if we go about it gently and sensibly. The tired stomach won't work under whip and spur. It has probably had too much of that already. What you require is something that is at once a food and a digester of food. Such an article is the Shaker Digestive Cordial, discovered and prepared by the Shaker Community of Mount Lebanon, N. Y. Taken right after eating, so as to mix with the food, it does the stomach's work for it, gives it the advantage of further rest, strengthens [illegible] in a natural way, and soon enables the stomach [illegible] do full duty. There is nothing else like this [illegible]le, safe, certain and palatable remedy. Yet [illegible] respect your doubts, and authorize drug[illegible] sell a trial bottle for ten cents.

Arkansas Horticulturists.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 15.—The State Horticultural Society met here today. Many prominent fruit growers are present. The citizens of Washington County are giving a handsome display of fruit and vegetables and grains rivaling the Atlanta Exposition.

THE MARKETS.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.

Exports of flour and wheat during Sept. were equal to 11,282,559 bu against 12,548,786 bu in Sept., 1894. Aggregate exports during the past three months were 28,916,285 bu against 38,898,283 bu for same time last year.

Receipts at Liverpool for past three days were 75,000 bu wheat, of which 36,000 bu from America, and 233,000 bu corn.

Russia shipped 3,024,000 bu wheat and 48,000 bu corn last week, an increase of 400,000 bu in wheat over preceding week.

New Orleans closed yesterday 80,000 bu corn for Liverpool.

Instead of 8,750,000 bu shipped by all countries to Europe last week, the amount proves to be 1,-180,000 bu less than that. And once more New York has worked the West.

Shipments so far this week from St. Louis market are 22,752 bbls flour, 116,310 bu wheat, equivalent to 218,700 bu combnied.

During September the United States exported 555,211 bu more corn than wheat, and during the past three months 593,358 bu more corn than wheat.

Construing a war between this country and England into a bullish influence causes one to ejaculate in the language of Chimmie Fadden: "Wot t'ell!"

Walter E. Orthwein leaves to-night for New Orleans to take charge of the office there of the Wm. D. Orthwein Grain Co.

WHEAT.

This market showed a decided reversal in form this morning, yesterday's weakness and nervous hesitation having given way to strength and seeming confidence. There was no let-up to receipts at Western and Northwestern markets, 1,446 cars being posted for Minneapolis and Duluth, against 1,220 one year ago, 264 cars at Chicago, against 216 and 122,000 bu at St. Louis, Toledo, Detroit and Kansas City, against 110,000 bu one year ago. But there were not such powerful arguments to-day as they were yesterday, when backed up as they were then by depressing conditions generally. This morning's Liverpool cable was firm and ¼d higher and London steady. Instead of nearly 9,800,000 bu shipments to Europe last week they proved to be nearer 7,000,000 bu. Then, for some reason best known to themselves, the trade evolved the startling idea that a war between Uncle Sam and John Bull over the Venezuela question was a bullish argument in favor of high prices. All in all, considerable sentiment was worked up and a stiff advance took place in domestic markets.

Clearances of 423,000 bu in flour and wheat from four ports helped along the bull turn, as did advices of export buying at the seaboard. The closing Liverpool was also quoted 1d higher, but continental markets showed little change. Domestic markets maintained their advance well and the close was firm.

Spot grades—Higher for red winter, which held firmly on call. No. 2 red salable there at 63⅝c regular, 63¾c E side, 64c in Terminal; No 3 red at 61½c regular, 62c in Farmers', Terminal and E side. No 4 dull, with St. Louis and Central offered at 59c, bid 58c regular; 59c for Advance, 59½c for Terminal. No 2 hard winter 1c higher at 61½c in United and bid for Terminal, but 57c best bid for No 3 do and No 4 do offered at 55c, no bid. No 2 spring sold regular ½c higher at 59c, but No 3 do offered at 57c and 56c the best bid.

CORN.

This market was strengthened by the advance in wheat and the "war" talk, but trading did not pick up much during the forenoon. The weather continued favorable, with no signs of a change. Receipts were still light here, but 655 cars in at Chicago and 529,900 bu at Western markets, against 150,000 bu one year ago. The day's clearances were quite large and English markets steady.

Spot grades—Strong and higher, with buyers of No. 2 on call at 28¼c for regular, but none offered below 30c. An indifferent bid of 28c for No. 2 white, but it sold late yesterday at 30c. No. 3 dull, being offered in Farmers' at 27½c and 26c bid E. side.

OATS.

The future market was strong and recovered the point it lost yesterday. A scarcity of sellers was still marked.

Spot grades—Stronger and in demand; No. 2 sold in St. Louis at 17¼c; that bid Terminal and asked for Farmers'; No. 3 offered in Farmers' at 16¼c, bid 16c, and 16½c bid United and Terminal. No. 4 offered at 15¼c, bid 14¾c for United, 14⅞c for St. Louis. No. 3 white in demand at 17½c (⅛c better) for regular and 18c bid Terminal.

Samples—Steady, but a slow and rather heavy market. Demand mainly accumulative. No 4 sold in elevator at 14⅝c, No. 3 at 16¼c, No. 2 at 17½c, No. 3 white at 17½@17⅝c, No. 2 white at 19c.

RYE.

Steady. Offerings small, but so was the demand. No. 2 offered regular at 37¼c bid, 36¾c and 37c bid for Terminal. No. 3 offered regular at 35¼c, though that bid for Central. By sample, track this side, No. 2 sold at 37¼c and No. 4 at 34c.

HAY.

Received, 1,740 tons; shipped, 690 tons. Timothy of any description was reported as slow to sell and for the choice timothy $13.50 is the very outside to be obtained, due to more liberal offerings of the better grades and such an excessive supply of inferior stock. As noted above, receipts again heavy, which adds to the depressed state of affairs. Prairie holds up well, as choice grades are scarce and in demand. Clover is really firm. Good wheat and rye straw is ready sale.

Sales: Track and warehouse, this side—Prairie—1 car No. 3 at $4, 3 do at $5, 1 do at $5.25, 2 do at $5.50, 2 No. at $6, 3 do at $6.50, 1 No. 1 at $7, 3 choice at $9. Clover—1 car grassy mixed at $9, 1 choice at $11.50. Timothy—3 cars No. 2 at $9, 2 No. 2 at $10.50, 4 No. 1 at $11, 4 do at $11, 1 car do at $11.50, including 17 bales at $6, 2 No. 1 at $11.50, 2 do at $12, 4 choice at $13, 2 do at $13.50.

East side—Mixed—1 car clover and timothy at $11 round. Timothy—1 car No. 2 at $10, 1 No. 1 at $11.50, 1 choice at $13.

STRAW—Sales: East side—2 cars rye at $5.50.

SEEDS AND CASTOR BEANS.

GRASS SEEDS—Timothy higher; clover steady. Timothy, fair to prime, $3.25@3.70; clover mixed and inferior, $4.50@5.50; good, $5.75@6; red top, trashy and inferior, $2@5; good to choice, $6@9; millet, 60@85c.

FLAXSEED—Unchanged at 90½c.

CASTOR BEANS—Nominal at $1.25 for prime.

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The stock market opened quiet and irregular. Leather preferred was traded in ex-dividend of 2 per cent, and reacted ⅝ per cent, rallied 1, and then lost ½ of the rise. The general market was steady at the end of 15 minutes.

The Grangers were in good demand after 10:15, and by 11 o'clock had scored advances extending to ⅝ per cent in Northwest. The general list also ruled higher, particularly Chicago Gas, which gained 1⅛. Fifty thousand dollars silver certificates changed hands at 68⅜. Speculation continues strong on an increased volume of business.

The improving tendency continued at midday and general gains have been scored. Tobacco rose 1⅛ and Lake Shore and Erie Telegraph each 1 per cent. Other advances were fractional. The sales to noon were 102,000, including 88,600 listed and 13,700 unlisted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The committee on stock listing of the New York Stock Exchange at its meeting last night made no report in regard to the application of the Central Trust Co. to have listed its certificates of deposit of Chicago Gas stock. It is reported, however, that the Trust company has satisfied the committee that it secured a majority of the stock. An effort will be made to have a special meeting of the Governing Committee to-morrow to take action in regard to listing of the certificates.

THE ASSASSIN.

Kennard Wrote Half in Jest and Got an Answer Wholly in Earnest.

Kennard passed the paper to Nash.

"Read that," he said.

Nash did as he was told; he read the advertisement to which Kennard was pointing with his finger. We give that advertisement, rendered from the original French into English:

An individual wishes to be rid of the insupportable burden of existence. For particular reasons this individual wishes to leave behind a certain sum of money. In exchange, therefore, for a suitable amount the advertiser will undertake to perform any deed which shall inevitably result in death. Address Tired, 30 bis, Rue de Pekin.

"Candid almost to a fault," was Willy Nash's comment. "Gerbert, what do you think of this?"

Having read it, Mr. Gerbert shrugged his shoulders.

"It is either a hoax—in which case it is plainly nothing; or it is true—and what is it then? How many people are there, do you suppose, who are tired of their lives—look at me, for instance; look at me! You laugh?" As a matter of fact, they had exchanged glances—but the thing had not amounted to a laugh. "Very good! You English are of a different race to we French. The things which, with your coarseness, but prick you, with our delicacy cut us to the heart. My God, yes! But that has nothing to do with the advertisement."

Mr. Kennard studied the advertisement again.

"I think, by way of a preliminary, that I should like to make this gentleman's acquaintance."

"Seriously?"

"So seriously, that I propose to write to him at once, making an appointment for to-morrow. If you are at my place tomorrow morning at 11 you will be able to see if he keeps it."

. . . .

"Enter!"

There entered—a woman. They started. They might not have been able to say what it was that they had expected, they had not expected this. The woman was slightly built, of medium height. She was dressed in black. She wore a veil which was so thick that it obscured her features. But one guessed, from her carriage, that she was young. The two men stood up. She remained in the doorway, with the handle of the open door still in her hand.

"Monsieur Hugh Kennard?"

"And—this gentleman?" The woman motioned with her hand towards Willy Nash.

The woman seemed to hesitate. The two men said nothing. They gave her not the least encouragement. At last, apparently arriving at a resolution, coming right into the room, she shut the door.

"This, Monsieur Kennard, is your letter." She held out a letter which Mr. Kennard recognized as the one which he had written. "You said eleven. To me the hour was a little awkward. But—I am come."

"To whom have I the pleasure of speaking?" asked Mr. Kennard, after a pause, during which he had looked at his friend and his friend had looked at him.

"To an individual."

"What is the sum which mademoiselle has in her mind?"

"Ten thousand francs."

She drew herself upright, throwing back her head with a little defiant gesture, as if the sum she named had been a superb one. The two men started. They stared at each other. Willy Nash distinctly smiled.

"Ten thousand francs!" cried Mr. Kennard. "Is it possible that Mademoiselle is willing to give her life in exchange for ten thousand francs?"

"It's not my life I give. My life is nothing—to me, or to any one. I ask ten thousand francs in exchange for the deed which you would set me to do. In other words, I desire that my death may be worth something, though my life is of no account. What is it that Monsieur requires?"

"Suppose I were to require you to kill M. le President?"

"Kill M. le President! That—that would not be very pleasant."

"Does Mademoiselle suppose that a deed, the doing of which would inevitably result in death, would be surrounded, as a matter of course, with all the elements of pleasantness?"

"Monsieur laughs at me. I desire that Monsieur will not laugh. I am ready. If Monsieur will give me his word that he will pay ten thousand francs in a certain quarter, so soon as he learns that M. le President is—no more, I will do what he requires."

When he spoke again, Mr. Kennard's tone was even unwontedly dry.

"Am I to take it that Mademoiselle is in earnest?"

She hesitated, then, with both her hands, she raised her veil.

"If Monsieur will look at me, he will see I am in earnest."

Tears were in her eyes. Mr. Kennard dashed across the room to her.

"For goodness sake, child, don't cry. Come, sit down and tell me all about it."

"Monsieur, I desire you not to touch me." She withdrew her hand from the pocket of her dress. In it she was holding a revolver. Mr. Kennard stared at her, his whole face a vivid note of exclamation; "You—little firebrand!"

Before they could stop her she had gone.

. . . .

When the door opened again it was Mr. Gerbert who came in. Mr. Kennard went and laid his hands upon his shoulders. "Gerbert, I've been having an interview with the assassin."

Mr. Kennard was six feet four and Mr. Gerbert was about four feet six.

Mr. Gerbert placed himself in Mr. Kennard's largest armchair.

"What sort was this fellow who found it necessary to advertise the fact that he found his life an insupportable burden?"

"The fellow was a woman."

"I might have guessed it. The curses have come home to roost. She has, doubtless, made life an insupportable burden to so many men that now it is her own turn."

"Keep it up, Gerbert, you'll be a cynic yet before you're done."

"This woman, was she old or young?"

"A girl, sir, a mere child, not out of her teens—eh, Nash? A little slip of a thing you could blow away with a breath. With the face of a saint, sir, or an angel, eyes which were the eyes of innocence if ever yet I saw them. And yet, by George, she offered for 10,000 francs to kill the President—kill him, sir. And she spoke as calmly as if she were telling you her size in gloves. Upon my soul, I believe she'd do it, too."

"Ten thousand francs—was that the sum she asked?"

"Ten thousand francs, sir. I might have understood it if she had asked ten million, but for a pittance such as that."

"I perceive. You have yourself your price then. It is strange this woman's price is mine. Guarantee me 10,000 francs, and I will myself kill the President with my own hand."

Mr. Kennard looked at Mr. Gerbert for some moments in silence. Then, going to the mantelpiece, he began to fill his pipe from a tobacco jar which stood upon a bracket.

"Gerbert," he said, "you promised to introduce me to Mme. Gerbert. When are you going to keep your promise?"

"It is too late."

"Don't talk nonsense." The big man had filled his pipe. As he lighted it he puffed out clouds of smoke. "Gerbert, if you've nothing particularly on, ask me to spend this evening with you; and if you've no especial objection to the fellow—such as most people seem to have—I'll bring Nash."

M. Gerbert raised himself out of the depths of Mr. Kennard's easy chair.

"I see no reason why you should not come—I see no reason. M. Kennard—M. Nash—I hope to see you in my little apartment this evening about 8. For my wife I cannot promise. I see very little of her myself. I cannot undertake that you will see anything of her at all. But for me—to me you will be very welcome." He moved to the door. "Until this evening, my friends, about 8."

. . . .

M. and Mme. Gerbert lived, it seemed, au cinquieme. Mr. Kennard and Mr. Nash were conscious as they mounted higher they seemed to be leaving even cleanliness behind them. The last staircase was in a state of almost dangerous dilapidation. The plaster was coming in great patches off the wall.

They knocked three times and still there was no answer. Mr. Kennard was about to propose a retreat when M. Gerbert himself opened the door.

"Enter, gentlemen." They entered a little solemnly. When they were in M. Gerbert stood with his back to the door. "You see, gentlemen, this is my little apartment. I told you it was a little apartment, did I not?" He had done so, but not how little, not how bare it was of furniture. The room was a mere cockloft. It was lighted by a tin lamp which stood upon an old wooden table. This table, a bed in a corner and a chair or two was practically all the furniture the place contained. It was not only the abode of poverty, it seemed to be the abode of actual destitution. Still standing with his back to the door M. Gerbert took an obviously wry-mouthed pleasure in openly avowing the fact. "I heard you knock, gentlemen, three times. Why did I not open? Because I was ashamed. I have had the pleasure of your acquaintance now two years. You have known me as a gentleman, as one of yourselves. You may believe that I felt it difficult when the moment came to prove to you that, after all, I was only a beggar and lived in a loft."

Mr. Nash was seated as much at his ease as if he had been paying the most commonplace of calls. He watched M. Gerbert as though he found him unusually interesting, if only as a study. Mr. Kennard wandered about the room. Every now and then he ran his hand through his hair. He paused before a little shelf which was fixed against the wall. The only thing upon it was a photograph. He took this in his hand and, half absent-mindedly, began to look at it. Suddenly his wits seemed to cease wool-gathering. He took the photograph to the table, bending over so that the lamp might show him more plainly what it was that he was looking at.

"Who's this? He was staring as if he experienced a difficulty in crediting the evidence of his own senses. "Why, it's the assassin!"

M. Gerbert had momentarily turned away. At the sound of Mr. Kennard's voice he turned again.

"I beg your pardon?"

"It's the individual who found life an insupportable burden."

M. Gerbert went to the table. He saw what Mr. Kennard was holding.

"That is the portrait of Celestine—of my wife."

"Your wife! Your wife!" Mr. Kennard's voice rose almost to a roar. "This is the girl who came to me this morning, and who, in exchange for 10,000 francs, offered to kill the President."

M. Gerbert's eyes visibly dilated. He caught at the edge of the table as if to help him stand.

"Are you sure?"

"Sure!" Taking his host by the shoulder, as he shouted each new insult, Mr. Kennard shook him as if he had been some naughty child. "You little mountebank! You tailor's dummy! You shell of a man!" In his excitement Mr. Kennard actually lifted his host right off his feet and held him up before him in the air. "With your attitudinizing and the rest of your —— folly, you've driven that little girl, who loves you as only a woman can love a fool, to try to gain you a wretched 10,000 francs in exchange, you little ass, for her own life."

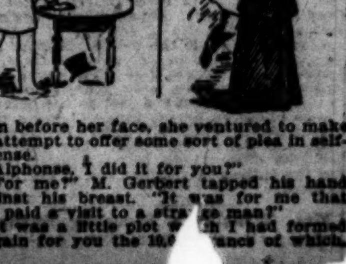

Mr. Nash came and laid his hand upon his impulsive friend's impulsive arm.

"Steady, Hugh!"

Thus recalled to himself and to the conventions of civilized society, Mr. Kennard replaced his host upon his feet upon the floor. M. Gerbert seemed so taken aback by the treatment he had received as to be able for the moment, to do nothing but pant and gape. In the sudden silence a passkey was heard being inserted in the door without. It was opened. A woman came in. It was the woman who that morning had visited Mr. Kennard.

"Alphonse!" she exclaimed. "What is it?" She caught sight of Mr. Kennard and knew him. "Monsieur Hugh Kennard! Mon Dieu!"

M. Gerbert had continued to gaze in silence at his wife. As if moved with the courage of desperation, taking her hands from before her face, she ventured to make an attempt to offer some sort of plea in self-defense.

"Alphonse, I did it for you?"

"For me?" M. Gerbert tapped his hand against his breast. "It was for me that you paid a visit to a strange man?"

"It was a little plot which I had formed to gain for you the 10,000 francs of which you know, you are in need. I had thought to gain them for you in exchange for my life—so that my death might be worth something to you, though my life had been worth nothing at all. And, Alphonse—husband! I have only returned to tell you that I think I have gained for you the sum which you require."

"The sum which I require—my wife, at what price?"

The strangest smile flitted across the girl's face as she held out her hands and answered:

"What does it matter?"

"To you—nothing at all. To me—everything. I have my good name—I! I have my honor." M. Gerbert crossed his arms upon his chest. "Already, because of you, my honor has been dragged in the dust. Your English friend has used me as if I were a thing of the gutter here in my own apartment."

Mr. Kennard interposed.

"I do assure you, my dear Gerbert, that it was a misunderstanding."

"A misunderstanding?" Four feet six lowered up at six feet four. Before the pigmy the giant seemed to cower. "It is a misunderstanding, M. Kennard, which can only be explained with your life or with mine."

The girl advanced. The man shrank back.

"Mme. Gerbert, have the goodness not to defile me with your touch. To the other things which you brought me, it but remained to add dishonor. That also you have brought me, last of all. Since, therefore, you have lied to me and have returned to crush me, unto eternity, with the last offering of your shame—which, unfortunately, because it is yours, a thousand times more is mine—for me it but remains to go."

M. Gerbert made a movement toward the door. Kennard caught him by the shoulder.

"Gerbert, don't be a fool."

In an instant M. Gerbert was like a wild cat in a frenzy. Leaping upon Mr. Kennard, he attacked him literally both tooth and nail. He poured forth language which was not only unparliamentary, but also unprintable. The big man was so taken by surprise that he made not the slightest attempt even at defense. The paroxysm of his fury exhausted, the little man stamped on the floor and shrieked with rage.

"If I had a pistol," he screamed.

His wife, who was standing a yard or two away from him, took something from the pocket of her dress.

Before they had suspicion of her purpose she placed the barrel of the revolver against her brow and fired. It was done so quickly that, although Mr. Kennard rushed forward while the words were still, as it were, upon her lips, he was only in time to put his arm around her body as it was falling dead.—Condensed from Black and [illegible]ite.

Y. M. C. A. ASSESSMENT.

The Illinois Supreme Court Sustains Auditor Gore.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 15.—The Supreme Court has rendered a decision sustaining Auditor Gore in his contention that the building in Peoria owned by the Y. M. C. A. is subject to assessment for taxation. The building, assessed at $13,000, is not devoted exclusively to the use of the Y. M. C. A., but is also occupied by professional and business men. Auditor Gore had assigned these reasons for reversing the action of the Board of Superviors, which had declared the property exempt:

"The statement of facts submitted shows that this property is not used for purely charitable of educational purposes, neither is it used exclusively for public worship. On the contrary, a large part of the building is rented to various tenants, and a considerable yearly income is derived therefrom. It is, therefore, used for profit, and is not, in the opinion of the Auditor, exempt from taxes."

THE LA PAZ STORM.

Many Cities on the Mexican Coast Suffered Heavily.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 15.—The Pacific Coast Steamship Company, owner of the steamer Willamette Valley, have at last received a letter from Captain Von Helms of that steamer, giving an account of the storm which swept the coast of Mexico and nearly destroyed La Paz. Captain Von Helms' letter indicates that the destruction caused by the hurricane was far more general than might have been inferred from the telegraphic dispatches. San Jose del Cabe was badly damaged and Mazatlan suffered heavily. The Willamette Valley escaped the storm by anchoring in Magdalena Bay.

Ignoring Railroad Commissioners.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 15.—Judge McKenna of the United States Circuit Court has granted a temporary injunction restraining the State Railroad Commission from putting into effect on October 16 the proposed 8 per cent reduction of the local wheat rates and directing them to show cause next Monday why the injunction should not be made permanent. The charge of the complaint as a whole and the fact that the Federal Courts have been requested to ignore the Railroad Commissioners indicates that Mr. Huntington intends to make the same fight here he did several years ago against Texas Railroad Commissioners.

Mrs. Wickes' Alimony.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Laura Wickes, who, on the allegation of cruelty, secured a divorce from Vice-President Wickes of the Pullman company, complains in court that of the money due her, as alimony, from the rental of two houses on Grand boulevard her husband has kept back $142 for making repairs and $42 charged against her as commission.

The Rabe Murder Trial.

LEXINGTON, Mo., Oct. 15.—Henry Rabe, who killed his wife last May, was put on trial here yesterday evening. He is charged with murder in the first degree. He had a quarrel with his wife and she ran away from the house. It is claimed that he seized a Winchester rifle and shot her through the body near the hips. There are over forty witnesses in the case and it will take several days to try it. Rabe is very wealthy, and will make a bitter fight. His defense, it is said, will be insanity.

VANDERBILTS MAY MAKE UP.

Miss Consuelo's Marriage May Lead to Her Parents' Reunion.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The Brooklyn Eagle is authority for the report that a reconciliation is probable between Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, and that immediately following the marriage of their daughter, Consuelo, with the Duke of Marlborough, a second ceremony will unite the parents a second time in matrimony.

The marriage of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt with the Duke of Marlborough is recognized as more the wish and desire of her father than of her mother, and this union has been used by the friends of both parents to bring about a happy understanding between them. This has been kept a close secret in the innermost circles of the Four Hundred, but it has progressed so happily that it need no longer be so closely guarded.

In the settlement of the marriage contracts the Duke of Marlborough is understood to have received $3,000,000, and an additional $10,000,000 was settled on Miss Consuelo.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—It is practically settled that the bridal breakfast to follow the wedding of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt to the Duke of Marlborough, Wednesday, Nov. 6, will be given by the bride's mother, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, at her new residence, southwest corner of Seventy-second street and Madison avenue. Though cards for the church ceremony will be general, not more than 300 invitations to the house will be extended. Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt's house on Fifth avenue is now closed. Mr. Vanderbilt when in town occupies his rooms at the Metropolitan Club and lunches and dines frequently at Delmonico's or the Waldorf. It is now expected that Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will return to their residence on Nov. 1. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, if there is no other change of plan, will remain at Newport until Nov. 15.

The Duke of Marlborough has returned to this city from Kentucky, and is at the Plaza Hotel.

MRS. VANDERBILT WANTED.

But Efforts to Secure Her as a Witness Have So Far Failed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—That it is not easy to reach the presence of a Vanderbilt was shown when the much discussed case of Mrs. Mary E. Leverich against the Bidwell-Tinkham Cycle for $20,000 damages came up before Judge Wallace in United States Circuit Court. It was brought out that all efforts to serve a subpoena on Marlborough's prospective mother-in-law had failed. She was wanted to testify for plaintiff, and the trial has been postponed several times to get her testimony, but without avail.

WHAT WAS THE DRUG?

Some Mystery About the Suicide of A. Brooks of New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A man who late on Sunday night registered at the Palace Hotel, Newark, as A. Brooks of New York, was found dead there last evening. He had not been seen all day, and, as no answer came to repeated calls at his room, the door was broken open. Brooks' body was on the bed, and near it lay a small bottle containing what was evidently some powerful poison. This told a story of suicide. The man had taken the poison into his nostrils by means of a paper funnel, having placed the small end to his nostrils and stopped up his mouth with a towel. The poison was neither ether nor laudanum, and County Physician Washington and several druggists were unable to determine its name and properties. County Physician Washington thought the liquid was nitrate of amyl. If that is so, the present case is the first one reported of a man being killed by it. An authority says that no serious case of poisoning suffered by man from nitrate of amyl has ever been known. The poison is a pale yellow liquid, very volatile, produced by passing nitrous acid gas through purified amylic alcohol. It is taken to relieve spasms, such as hiccoughs. Its effect is to increase the action of the heart, produce a sense of suffocation, and induce muscular weakness. Three or four drops on a cloth and inhaled is generally sufficient to cause the relief sought.

JUST LIKE A CHILD.

Veteran Wm. H. Garland Could Not Endure Railway Travel.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 15.—The excitement and exertion of travel proved too much for aged Wm. H. Garland, who fought in the civil war as commandant of the United States battleship Constitution, and yesterday his trip from Milwaukee to Georgia was interrupted by the Chicago police, who found it necessary to convey him to the County Hospital.

Mr. Garland is 92 years of age, and since the war has lived in Milwaukee. All of his relatives have died off in the Wisconsin town, and he decided to join a grandson in Georgia. Yesterday he started South, riding for the first time in fifteen years on a steam railroad. He attracted general attention on the train. He was as much interested in what transpired as a child might have been, and he became so exercised that he finally collapsed, becoming totally unconscious. Word was telegraphed to Chicago, and when the train pulled into the Union Depot, the veteran was lifted into an ambulance and conveyed to the County Hospital, where he will be cared for until he is sufficiently revived to continue his trip.

REPULSED BY A WOMAN.

A New York Highwayman Forced to Flee From Mrs. Elizabeth Ushaway.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Ushaway is perhaps 35 years old. She is a stout little woman with a pleasant face. On Sunday evening she was attacked and an attempt was made to rob her of a pocketbook containing $100 on her own doorstep, within half a block of the Adams Street Police Station, Brooklyn. She defended herself so vigorously, however, that the highwayman ran away, with the blood streaming from his nose, and the stout little woman whom he had intended to rob in hot pursuit. He managed to get away, and Mrs. Ushaway did not report the case to the police, because she thinks she knows the man and wants to do a little detective work on her own account.

HEATING NEW YORK CARS.

An Apparatus That Will Promote the Comfort of Passengers.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Before the end of the week 200 cars of the Broadway cable road will be equipped with the Gold heating apparatus, which is said to maintain a temperature of 70 degs. The apparatus consists of a small furnace under the car, inclosing a coil of pipe, which connects with a radiator running the entire length of the car under the seats, thus forming a complete system of circulation. The radiator is filled with a non-freezing solution and is encased by metal shields, which are kept moderately cool, but allow the warm air to pass through and radiate in the cars.

Capture of an Italian Who Stabbed a Man a Year Ago.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—After a chase almost around the world, Goviano Michael Morelo, an Italian wanted in Wilkesbarre, Pa., on a charge of murder, has been captured. A year ago he fatally stabbed Emanuel Loro in front of a church which they had both just left. He escaped to the mountains and, despite a reward of $1,000, he managed to elude the police. Months afterwards a man was arrested in Italy, supposed to be Morelo, but who proved his innocence. Then he was traced to Valparaiso, but disappeared just as the detectives were about to arrest him. Then he turned up in San Francisco, but left before officers reached there. However, they traced him to this city, where he was finally located in the Italian settlement and at last was arrested.

LOVE OVERCAME SCRUPLES.

Why a Newly Wedded Pair Adopted a 5-Year-Old Daughter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Parmalee, who left California some weeks ago on their wedding tour, have started for the Pacific coast. Their friends will be surprised to see them return with a 5-year-old daughter.

They came East on the Canadian Pacific Railway and made this city their destination, because Mr. Parmalee wanted to collect a legacy of $19,000 left him by a relative. At Calgary, Ont., a sour-faced woman boarded the train with a bright little girl. So winsome were her ways that the newly wedded pair took to her. The sour-faced woman seemed glad to have the care of the girl taken off her hands.

She told them she was taking the girl, Bessie White, to an orphanage at Winnipeg. Before the town was reached, however, she disappeared, deserting her charge, who began to cry for her mother. Many of the passengers regarded the Parmalees with suspicion, and every now and then they had to make explanation that they were not kidnapers.

At Winnipeg they took Bessie to the Orphan asylum. The officials looked at them askance and declined to believe their story. They had never heard of Bessie White. A meeting of the directors was held the next day, and they were about to be persuaded when the resentment of the Parmalees was aroused at the palaver and they said they would adopt the child. They had become attached to Bessie and she to them.

There were complications as they neared Connecticut, where they are well known. Friends and acquaintances who knew of their recent marriage asked about their 5-year-old daughter. Mrs. Parmalee got tired of their jokes, and when they reached this city and put up at the Elliott House, they were reticent about Bessie, who attracted attention because of her beauty. Mr. Parmalee told the story to the wife of the proprietor of the hotel, who imparted it to a reporter.

Bessie said her parents had separated, and that her father had kidnaped her, but afterwards got tired of the burden and abandoned her.

Mr. Parmalee said he stood aghast when he thought of the long explanations that would be expected in California; but that he loved little Bessie and meant to keep her. He is well-to-do, and dclared that he valued his adopted daughter more highly than the $19,000 legacy he came East to collect.

HOW THE RICH ARE FAVORED.

Abuses in the Levying of Real Estate Assessments in Cities.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A delegation from the Manhattan Single Tax Club will call upon Mayor Strong this afternoon and present him with a memorial calling attention to the unjust discriminations in the enforcement of the law relating to real estate assessments in this city, and the way the rich are favored.

One instance in point is the case of over 200 lots in the upper part of the city owned by W. W. Astor. An offer of $5,000 for each would be treated with scorn, yet that would rate the whole at over a million dollars. The valuation for taxes is $95,000, an average of about $325 a lot. Many similar cases cited. An effort will be made to reform the abuse.

Resubmission in Iowa.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 15.—A special dispatch to a morning paper from Des Moines says: It is reported on good authority that the Republican State Central Committee has just completed a poll of the preferences of the Republican candidates for the Legislature in the matter of the resubmission of the Prohibition amendment, and has found that a majority of them favor resubmission. This situation has alarmed the Republican managers both within and without the Central Committee who are anxiously working to further the interests of Senator Allison as a presidential delegate. They are afraid that if the Legislature which re-elects Allison to the Senate should go on record as favoring Prohibition, it would prejudice Allison as a candidate for President in the eyes of the Republicans of other States. Under these circumstances a special effort will be made to elect anti-Prohibitionists who have been nominated by Republicans in several close counties in order to keep the Republican Legislature caucus from being too strongly dominated by the Prohibitionists.

Murdered Man Identified.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Oct. 15.—The body of the man found Sunday between burning hay racks on the Patterson farm, was identified yesterday as that of William S. Ellis, a laborer of this city. He went riding Saturday night with an unknown man. The Coroner's verdict was that he came to his death from two gunshot wounds inflicted by an unknown.

Ball Player Fatally Shot.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 15.—A special to the Blade from Spencerville, O., says W. W. Rupert was fatally shot while hunting yesterday. The gun of his companion was accidentally discharged, the charge striking Rupert in the chest. Rupert is a well known minor league ball player and played with the Kansas City and Fall River (Mass.) [illegible] during the season just ended.

NEGLECTED THE LICENSE.

Hence Harry Simons Was Forced to Put Off the Wedding Indefinitely.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

PORT JARVIS, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Miss Myra Emery and Harry Simons were to have been married on Friday night, but through an oversight on the part of the young man their wedding was postponed indefinitely. The wedding day arrived, and with it the guests bearing their presents gathered in the parlor. All eyes were fixed on the entrance for the arrival of the bridal party; but the guests did not know that Simons had hurriedly departed through a rear door to secure a license. He did not know that one was necessary, and it took a trip of fifteen miles to get it, therefore there was no wedding.

HER ENTRANCE

—into society, and womanhood as well, is an extremely critical period in every girl's life. At this time she needs advice, and, what's more—help of the right sort. If she puts her faith in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription it can bring only good results. It's a medicine that's made especially to build up women's strength and cure women's ailments—an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial, and bracing nervine; purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and perfectly harmless. For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, the "Favorite Prescription" is specific.

TERRIBLE PAIN AND FAINTING SPELLS.

Mechanicsburgh, Cumberland Co., Pa.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—When I commenced taking your medicine I was very sickly. I had frequent spells of fainting, terrible pain in my head, and life was a burden to me. I was attended by one of the best physicians in our town, but with no good results. At last a neighbor advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did, and after taking one bottle I felt greatly benefited. I would advise all ladies similarly afflicted to try "Favorite Prescription."

MRS. JACOBS.

Yours truly.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE—By virtue of the provisions of a decree of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, rendered at the June term, A. D., 1895, thereof, and on Tuesday, September 10, 1895, in a cause therein pending, wherein Ephraim J. Stannus, assignee et al., are plaintiffs, and Ralph L. Kingsland, et al., are defendants, being cause No. 95,518, and wherein the undersigned was duly appointed and qualified commissioner to sell the real estate hereinafter described, in default of the payment into court by defendants, James O'Connell and Mary O'Connell, for said plaintiffs, within ten days from the date of the rendition of said decree, the sum of fourteen hundred and thirty-eight dollars ($1,438) with lawful interest, to be computed thereon from the date of said decree until paid, and also all costs of said suit; and whereas, the said James O'Connell and Mary O'Connell, defendants in said cause, have neglected to pay into said court in said cause, the said sum of money, interest and costs, as aforesaid, within ten days from the date of the rendition of said decree.

Now, therefore, I, the undersigned commissioner, will, on to-wit, the

at the east front door of the Court-house in said City of St. Louis, to the highest and best bidder, on terms of one-third cash and one-third in one and two years, deferred payments to be secured upon the property sold, and evidenced by the promissory notes of the vendee, bearing six per cent interest, payable semi-annually, or for all cash, at the option of the purchaser, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and three o'clock p. m., sell the following described real estate, viz.:

Situate, lying and being in the City of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and more particularly described as follows: The west twenty-five (25) feet of lot No. fifteen (15) in block No. 5037 of Mary E. Burson's subdivision of said city, as the same appears of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for said city, said property containing a front of twenty-five (25) feet on the south side of Farlin avenue by a depth of one hundred and seven (107) feet six (6) inches southwardly to an alley fifteen (15) feet wide; and bounded on the north by Farlin avenue, on the south by said alley, on the west by the east twenty-five (25) feet of said lot number fifteen (15) and on the west by the east twenty-five (25) feet of lot number fourteen (14).

4513 THOS. F. FARRELLY, Commissioner.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of a special execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, returnable to the October term, 1895, of said court, and to me directed, wherein John S. Ziegler is plaintiff and Leroy Payne, Cordelia B. Payne, Thomas Cratty and Christopher Columbus Morris are defendants, I have levied upon and seized the following described real estate, which is also described in the deed of mortgage mentioned in the plaintiff's petition, situated in the City of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and charged with the lien of indebtedness therein mentioned, on which this action is founded, and described in said execution, as follows, to-wit:

A lot in block five (5) of W. C.
